SELECTIVE SERVICE

REPRINT

American citizens of Japanese ancestry have been placed again under the selective service rule and will be liable for induction into the armed forces on the same basis as other citizens of this republic. The same physical qualifications will be required as in other cases, while their loyalties will be subjected to careful scrutiny. Although the war department has not announced plans for using these Japanese American soldiers, it is believed that many of them will go into service as replacements for the combat team of Japanese that has made such a good record in the Italian campaign.

This decision on the part of the government will meet with the approval of most other Americans who have felt that these nisei natives of Mipponese descent should perform duties of citizenship regardless of race, Many persons have pointed out the unfairness of passing over this group in selecting men for our fighting forces—unfairness to loyal Japanese who were placed on a different status—unfairness to many of our own boys who were sent away to war while the Japanese remained safely at home.

Besides serving in the Japanese American combat units, these nisei have performed valuable services in the army and navy intelligence departments in the Pacific theater of war. Their record in Italy has been outstanding, according to the war department, which fact has, no doubt, been a large factor in the decision to reinstate Japanese under selective service rules. The ones now serving, for the most part, are volunteers, indicating that this now class of inductees will provide many good fighters for the nation. They will not, it is believed, serve with other troops except as needed in military intelligence work.

This new order should go far to eliminate misunderstandings of other American citizens as to the status of these people and to assure them that the nisei Japanese will carry their share of the war burden,
