Iowa Floods Make Hundreds Homeless

MISSOURI VALLEY, IA.—(Soundphoto)—The driver of this truck, from Spirit Lake, Ia., abandoned his vehicle on Erie street here when floods brought the city its greatest disaster in history. Water ran 10 feet deep through the streets in some places, causing at least $500,000 damage and forcing 1,200 residents from their homes. Two deaths were reported.

Nisei Girl, Representing Seattle Y-Teens, 'Covers' And Enjoys National Convention of YWCA in Frisco

By TOMI FUJINO

My sincere thanks to you, Budd Fukel, for this thrilling opportunity of writing this article in your popular NORTHWEST TIMES. My next bid of thanks goes to the Y-Teen Inter-Club cabinet members who made this unforgettable experience at the National Convention possible for me. You see, since only one girl could go to convention from cabinet, a secret ballot vote had to be taken and the result was that I was elected to go.

In the weeks of convention tension (or preparation) the realization that I was actually going to the convention was made on securing my official recognition of absence from school. The office workers were thrilled beyond words for me and though my teachers were a bit reluctant to let me go they all wished me a pleasant trip and so, I was ready to go.

My send-off was such a grand one that I was the envy of the other delegates. The wonderful kids in BELLAMI presented me with a gorgeous orchid corsage and a gift of $15. Seattleites were unconscious of the rain on that Saturday afternoon but darned if I could help from shedding a few tears. It was those wonderful kids, including our adviser, Connie Handa, who caused it all and they surely made me happy.

We arrived in San Francisco at 2:35 p.m., Sunday, as scheduled. San Francisco had its smartest stores, unique shops world famous scenic places, scenic views, points of interest, and sophisticated entertainment. Three of us Y-Teens and an adult took a taxi to the Cliff Hotel — and I must tell you about his because we got such a bad time of it from the other people and never did quite hear the end of it. The ride on the taxi lasted approximately two whole minutes but it cost us each fifty cents. The other girls who had a slightly longer ride, paid just fifteen cents. That was the first peculiar thing about S. F. The majority of taxis don't have meters so if a driver wants to charge you $5 for a two-minute ride, there really wouldn't be much you could do except pay the man and try not to swear too loud or too long.

During our brief stay I roomed with Irma Betcher and Barbara Johnson. After a shower and a considerable amount of telephoning, we finally decided to go to Fisherman's Wharf where we had dinner at one of their famous grottos. Then we took a cable car (similar to those that used to run on Yesler Way) back to town and boarded the Chinatown Tour Bus.

While we were waiting for the tour to start, who should we see but Iona Massey getting into a long, sleek limousine in front of that famous St. Francis Hotel. That tour brought me the closest I ever hope to get to Alcatraz. After the thoroughly interesting trip, we were taken back to the hotel where we flopped into bed for a sound sleep in preparation of a week of busy conventioning.

Monday, March 7

This day was started off with a luncheon for Y-Teens and Y-Teen leaders at the YWCA Residence Club. The big shots (more or less) ate in a separate room. Miss Betcher (Y-Teen executive) chose me (because I'm a cabinet officer) and Mrs. John Graham, Jr. (chairman of the Teen-Age committee) to represent Seattle. We had lunch with two adults from Iowa, but those other lucky Y-Teens say they had a "rip-roaring" time. After our welcome to S. F. as members of a national and world organization, we went to the Civic Auditorium where the Eighteenth National Convention of the YWCA was opened officially by Mrs. J. Birdsell Galkins, president of the YWCA's of the U.S.A.

There, the planners of this convention were introduced and a get-acquainted program was held. And guess what! Another male delegate was made known — a man from the Community Chest. The other male delegates were two handsome boys, one from the Boy Scouts and the other from the YMCA. The evening session lasted from 8 to 9:45. Dr. Laurence Sears of Mills College speaking to us about "Living in an Unpredictable Age".

Tuesday, March 8

Howard Thurman, D. D., co-pastor of the Church for the Fellowship of All Peoples, San Francisco, who has established an unusual reputation as an author, preacher and lecturer of religion and particularly in demand by college audiences as an interpreter of religion, opened the morning session with his "Quest for Stability" invocation as he was to do the whole week. Dr. Thurman (who is a Negro) was chairman of the Pilgrimage of Friendship to India, Burma and Ceylon in 1935-1936, and Ingersoll lecturer on the Immortality of Man, at Harvard University for 1947, so you can imagine how inspiring he was.

The business session was then in order. A report of the Constitution Commission and Basic Standards was given and discussion and action on the proposed constitution and by-laws (whew!) were held. I don't think I'll ever get over the tremendousness of this organization, the YWCA, known as the largest and most powerful women's organization in the whole world.

OPPOSES RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOLS

During the past state legislative session a strong effort was made by Protestant religious groups to change the constitution to allow released time from public schools for religious instruction. The religious groups were proposing that two hours a week be released; they will take care of the instructions.

There is a prevailing feeling that young people "are going to the dogs" because of the lack of religious teaching. Children are not receiving enough of the vital religious instruction to make the world "workable". The church groups behind this proposal feel that a release of only two hours a week is not asking much.

Also, the program will be entirely voluntary. Students in the public schools can choose which religious group instruction they would like to attend; if they prefer, they do not have to attend any.

The question that immediately comes to my mind is: If the kids are going to the dogs, will two hours of released time per week save the situation? If the Sunday Schools, the home influence, and parental examples have not succeeded too well, will the two released hours per week do the job?

One of the encouraging aspects of the public school system has been its work of unifying diverse groups. To a very great extent class differences have been minimized; students are considered as equals. Religious differences, racial differences, occupational differences, and other background differences have been relegated to more or less unimportant roles.

What would happen if the two released hours per week became a part of the regular school program? Immediately, differences would be emphasized. Ideas, such as, that guy is a Jew, or he's a Buddhist, or he's a Catholic, would be entertained and emphasized, with the probability that the differences (the boundary lines) would be more greatly experienced in group relations.

Children are all too anxious to pick on differences. Remember the red-haired kid in the class? What about that skinny tall one, or the big fat blonde? Didn't they suffer merciless ridicule? What about the Japanese kid who brought "onigiri" for lunch instead of sandwiches like the rest of the kids? He was made fun of so heartlessly that he ran home crying. Kids exercise little discretion; somebody else's differences are their jokes and fun.

Public school educational system can stand some changes. The question is, what kind of change will be most helpful. There is serious doubt in my mind as to whether or not the release time is the answer.

If character, integrity, inspiration, good will, charity, etc., are the desirable qualities, then it seems the existing framework can supply the impetus for the acquiring of these qualities. For example, mathematics can emphasize truth, art can emphasize beauty; music can emphasize harmony; science can emphasize the power available to mankind if we only learn to understand, harness, and live with nature rather than against it. Athletics can encourage sportsmanship and cooperation; club activities can encourage selflessness and charity.

One minister, in opposing the measure, stated: "The 'sacred' writings of all the great religions should be read by children in their teens, if not before. If the purpose of this proposed law is to 'build character', it defeats its purpose by making a separation between 'religious' and 'secular' instead of using all knowledge (from math to literature) for the development of the 'good' man. Better to have courses in comparative religion taught by good, well-prepared teachers as a normal part of the curriculum."

This bill passed the State Senate, but died in the committee of the House. May it rest in peace.

Nisei Y-Teen Delegate Describes National YWCA Confab in Frisco

The morning session was from 9 to 12:30, the afternoon session from 2 till 4:30, and the evening session from 8 to 9:45. Those were the regular hours during which the convention functioned.

In the afternoon, Miss Betcher insisted that I have luncheon with her and others. The purpose of this luncheon was to discuss the topics on the radio broadcast in which Y-Teens representing the Northwest, Southwest, Northeast, Southeast, and South were to participate. I was to provide the background material in reference to Seattle's Youth Committee and Betty Pierce from Seattle, who represented the Northwest, on Y-Teens. In the afternoon, we went to the Don Lee Broadcasting Co., Station KFRC, where another woman and I formed the audience. I'll have you know that I managed to get in a cough before the broadcast ended.

After the broadcast, Betty and I returned to the hotel to discover that everyone had left to eat dinner at Omar Khayam's. So, not to be outdone, we went to the Golden Pheasant. We then got together with the rest of the kids and went to the CBS Broadcasting Co., which is conveniently located around the corner from our hotel, to see the Regal Pale Beer Program with Armand Girard and Lois Hartzel. Then we taxied to the Civic for the evening session.

I think I enjoyed that evening session especially because the YWCA international leaders led the program and talked to us on conditions in their lands. Those speakers were Sarah Chakko, president of Isabella Thoburn College (Lucknow, India) and a vice-president of the World's YWCA; Daw Katherine Khin Khin, principal of St. Mary's Diocesan School in Rangoon and vice-president of the Rangoon YWCA; Burma; Mlle. Lucile Richard-Molard, France; Mrs. J. H. Sun, China; and Dr. Corine Alcaraz, wife of the Ambassador of Mexico.

Wednesday, March 9

The Seattle delegation had a luncheon in the Redwood Room of our own hotel, the Cliff, this noon. It was really something meeting our own delegation and among the 32 delegates was Mrs. Paul Suzuki, board member, and wife of Dr. Suzuki. In the afternoon, the Civic Auditorium, Room 405, was the scene of the second Y-Teen Supplementary meeting in which the three-year progress report was given. You might be interested to know that one of the participants in this program was a Nisei delegate, (Miss) Maki Ichiyasu. Teen-Age program director of Honolulu, T. H. Barbara (my roommate) and I had dinner with a Y-Teen delegate from Portland and after the session, had a snack before we retired.

Thursday, March 10

This day, we went as usual to the session. Because Betty and I missed eating at Omar Khayam's with the other girls, we were invited to accompany the adults. Altogether, there were eight of us. I sat with Miss Blasdale (president of the Seattle Association), Mrs. Cart, and Mrs. Pierce. The host insisted on ordering for us and I got Tchakok-belli, which is chicken jointed and sauteed in Sherry Wine (woops) and tomato sauce. Boy, was it elegant! For dessert, we had Paklava, and the host, who really spoiled us outrageously, ordered the waiter to give us any silverware to eat with and told us that we must use our fingers instead. Imagine! Eating with our fingers in such an exciting place. I'll never forget it.

Friday, March 11

Since there was no session in the afternoon, we went to the Cliff House and had delicious Crab Louis. We visited the souvenir shop which is the largest in the world. There were so many "largest in the world" things to see — Golden Gate Bridge, Treasure Island, Bank of America, Top o' the Mark (America's most spectacular cocktail lounge and simply marvelous) Chinatown, Union Square (largest garage), etc. Getting on though...

To our disappointment, we discovered that Playland didn't open till 7:30 at night so we had to content riding on the merry-go-round and seeing the penny arcade. In the evening, Betty, Gert and I went to the Civic where they had an evening of relaxation with people of different races performing their native dances. After that, we went to see Red Skelton and Dave Rose and his orchestra.

Saturday, March 12

This morning's session was opened by Lilace Reid Barnes, president of the World's YWCA. In the evening, Y-Teens and their leaders had a Chinese dinner in the Chinese YWCA, and then another meeting. Gertrude and I walked around Chinatown and visited old St. Mary's because we couldn't see ourselves attending a stuffy (to us) opera. The other girls, though no more cultured than we, went. So after they returned, we all went to the Top o' the Mark, which I mentioned before. Hotel Mark Hopkins, located high atop Nob Hill (it struck me as being Snob Hill), is the former home-site of the railroad barons and bonanza kings and commemorated by impressive hotels and apartment buildings bearing their names. Imagine! Fences worth $30,000 and foundations made of stone which took three or four years to dig up and transport. Later, we went to the St. Francis Hotel to hear Freddy Martin and his orchestra. Earlier in the evening, Gert and I were informed by the elevator boy (buddy-buddy) that Howard Duff was in the Redwood Room having cocktails. We were all dressed up like little women but did we come down a few notches — and fast — when we heard that! We would have gone in after him, but the $2.50 cover charge — well, And so, we waited and along with Howard Duff we got Dan Duryea and Shelly Winters' autographs. And people, they were charming!

Sunday, March 13

In the morning, Gert, Alice and I attended the 8 Mass at Old St. Mary's, which is the first Catholic Church in the original Yerba Buena Community. The afternoon found us with Mrs. Nelson at the Golden Gate Park reviewing the Steinhart Aquarium; National History Museum; Simpson African Hall; DeYoung Museum; Oriental Tea Garden; and the Conservatory. Then we dropped into Playland and rode on a few of the amusements rides. Such a perfect day with beautiful weather — no rain is what I mean.

Monday, March 14

It was with decided sadness and reluctance that we packed and arrived at the Civic Auditorium for the closing session. The various reports were given, and the newly-elected officers were introduced. And after her closing talk, "The Kind of People Needed", Mrs. Calkins, declared the Eighteenth National Convention of the YWCA's of America adjourned until the next triennium.

Yes, out of this convention grew many things — among them, a new president of the YWCA's of America, new friends by the hundredfold, and a renewed will. The major aspects of the YWCA program for the next triennium are: Civil Liberties and Democratic Rights; International Relations; Economic and Social Welfare; Minority Groups; Public health; and Education.

YWCA? Because it's for the right things in life — for the common welfare of all races, religions, and backgrounds. I believe that we, members of the Young Women's Christian Association, are doing more than talking about these things. We're actually putting our beliefs into practice and that's a fine thing. I think we deserve a pat on the back, and if prejudices start in the home, as it is often said they do, there'll be a mother (who naturally will be a YWCA member) to set her children on the right track.

Yes, with more than 2,000 women leaders from 1,049 community and student YWCA's in the U. S. and 38 foreign countries, we weren't just a world-wide organization; we were a second Congress, searching not for the kind of gold found in San Francisco in 1849 but for a better element called world peace.

I just thought of something. Since this was the first time in YWCA history that Y-Teens have been able to participate in convention, and since I was the only Nisei Y-Teen delegate — hmh, do you think I might have set some sort of record? Also, call it coincidence if you like, but I think the two earthquakes in S. F. were caused by the YWCA convention. Could be the world was shuddering at the will of the women attending it?

These were my observations at the convention and that's why I'm indebted to the Y-Teen cabinet and to all the Y-Teens in King County who put me in the cabinet, therefore placing me in the eligible position to attend convention. That's why I'm thanking you, Budd Fukui, for letting me tell your readers my reactions of convention. And, most of all, that's why I'm proud of belonging to this great organization. And that's why I'm more than glad to make up the 35 assignments I have to make up in school by the end of next week.

As my Dad says, that's how Cinderella must have felt, and I'm sure glad the shoe fit!

THE Sporting Thing by bf

Ruling on Golf Prize Awarding, Is a Mystery

In the local Puget Sound Golf club, the ruling is that no one is eligible to receive the top four prizes in any tournament unless he had participated in two out of the last previous meets.

Why not? Due to business or social obligations, a fellow might not be able to play each tournament, to say nothing about practice rounds.

So, he plays with his regular handicap, he happens to catch fire and wins the meet, but he is informed that he is not qualified for the better awards.

The ruling on the awarding of golf prizes is a mystery — as mysterious as the "mystery voice" in the "Sing It Again" program.

LOTUS DROPS 51 TO 49 TILT TO PLACER

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 26 (Special Wire to N. W. Times)—Lady Luck frowned on Lotus YBA, which, although playing its heart out, bowed to Placer YBA, 51-49, Thursday night in an exhibition basketball game here.

The barnstorming Seattleites were behind in the first quarter, 15-8, and at half-time, 25-19. They were in front in the third period, 39-38, but were headed off in the final quarter.

Johnny Kusakabe (18), Kay Saito (8), Blotz Suyama (8) and Gaylord Iwasaki (6) were the visitors' sharpshooters.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 26 (Special Wire to N. W. Times)—Inability to hit their shots at the foul line cost the Seattle Lotus YBA a 42-41 loss to the Sacramento Stags, California YBA champions, Wednesday night here. The Seattleites muffed nineteen free toss chances.

The visitors, who were led by Gaylord Iwasaki (14), Iso Nishimura (11) and Richard Tsuji (6), led all the way and outplayed and outfoxed the Stags until the waning moments of the game. By quarters, Lotus was out in front 16-13, 24-18, 36-29.

FLORIN, Calif., March 26 (Special Wire to N. W. Times)—Lotus YBA appeared to be in fine fettle Tuesday night when its men dumped Florin YBA, 71-64, in a wild-scoring basketball game here. The Seattle barnstorming outfit, paced by Johnny Kusakabe (19), Iso Nishimura (14), Gaylord Iwasaki (10) and Blotz Suyama (9), displayed speed and skill in this contest.

Lotus was ahead at half-time, 35-28, and in the third period, 51-45. Only in the first quarter were Lotus and Florin deadlocked, the score being, 19-19.

Besides winning the ball game the barnstormers also won the applause of the crowds.

Kawaguchi, Teen-Ager, Thrills Crowds As He Busts Pins for Terrific 666

CITY MERCHANTS LEAGUE STANDINGS (As of March 24) Table with columns W, L and list of players and scores.

NIGHT'S HIGH Singles—Roy Kawaguchi, Richard's, 256. Series—Roy Kawaguchi, Richard's, 666.

They'll be talking about Roy Kawaguchi of Richard's Jewelry for quite some time in the City Merchants league of Main Bowl.

For the promising teen-ager last Thursday night led his outfit to a sweeping 4-0 victory over the heavily-favored Hattori Realty.

But that was not all. Young Kawaguchi posted the season's high singles, a 256, and the season's high series, a 666. His games were 256, 200 and 210.

Firing his shots consistently into the 1-3 pocket, the youngster was a picture of almost perfect bowling form. As the pressure grew, the crowds gathered but the cool teen-ager continued to bowl brilliantly.

Four "taps" in the third game robbed him of a sensational "700" series.

Kawaguchi's showing overshadowed his tam's anchorman Kenny Arita's 582 pin-smashups.

The other results were: Seventh Ave. Service 2, West Coast Printing 2; Tad's Gardening 2, O. K. Cafe 2; Jackson Grocery 3, Kashiwagi's 1. Good 500-plus series were blasted by Toki Mizuki (568), Nobu Kyono (556), Ted Nakata (554), and Shig Takemura (592).
