Chinese Canadian loses election

Everytime a person other than white runs for a political office in the States, we perk and take notice. This past week, the Nisei press in Canada took note of Douglas Jung, first Chinese Canadian ever to aspire for public office. He lost in the Jan. 9 by-election by a near 6 to 4 margin. (In British politics, special elections held to fill a vacancy for the unexpired term are called by-elections.)

In seeking a seat in the British Columbia legislature, the constituency was represented by downtown Vancouver, the west-end, east-end suburbs and the large Vancouver Chinatown.

Of the 15,000 Chinese in Vancouver, only 2,500 were reported to have voted in the by-elections and even then, their vote was split between the two candidates.

Therein lies the heart of our quest. How much support can be assured by a candidate of a minority race from his own kind? There have been expressions of racial blocs in voting, but it can only be conjectural since ballots themselves are secret.

While some may vote for a man because of his good looks, or his golden voice or his religion, we seriously doubt a candidate can safely assume solid support from a community because of his ethnic background. Too many other factors enter into the minds of the citizens. It may also be that persons of a minority group are more critical of their kind.

However, on specific issues dealing with a particular group, those concerned directly will display definite reactions. We can note this on problems dealing with veterans, Negroes, labor, religious groups, the aged, etc.

If a Nisei were to run for office, the astute candidate would least rely on support from his kind and prove himself to the constituents-at-large.

Asians regard Alaska-Hawaii territorial status as mark of U.S. colonial power

HONOLULU.—The territorial status of Hawaii and Alaska mark the United States as a colonial power in the eyes of the peoples of Asia, Lawrence Nakatsuka, press secretary of Governor King, told members of a World Brotherhood committee last week.

The statement came out during a luncheon discussion with members of the organization's committee on media of communication.

It was the first talk Nakatsuka has given since his recent return from a two-month tour of Asia which was taken under State Department auspices.

Nakatsuka made the point that since many Asian nations have only recently won their independence from colonial domination, the problems of colonialism are still uppermost in their minds. They see Hawaii, with its limited citizenship rights, as a colonial possession of the United States. The preponderantly Oriental population causes them to equate this second-class status of the islands with an anti-Oriental attitude on the part of the national government. It is for this reason that the Governor's secretary believes statehood for Hawaii would be a potent force toward improved international relations with nations of the Orient.

The speaker said that, in his talks in the eight countries visited, he emphasized Hawaii as an American community and indicated by concrete facts how the people of Asian background have progressed under the American democratic system. To the question as to whether we are getting our message over to Asia, Nakatsuka re-

MIYAMURA APPOINTED VFW CHIEF AIDE-DE-CAMP

GALLUP.—Hiroshi Miyamura of Gallup, who holds the Congressional Medal of Honor for service in the Korean war, has been appointed a national aide-de-camp to the Commander in Chief Timothy J. Murphy of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. The appointment was made in recognition of Miyamura's outstanding service to the organization of overseas wartime veterans. Miyamura, vice-chairman of the

REGULATIONS HUMANIZING DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS OFFICIALLY APPROVED

WASHINGTON.—In a directive issued by Commissioner Joseph L. Swing of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Immigration Service now has in effect procedures in deportation proceedings humanizing what was heretofore considered harsh treatment meted to aliens the Washington Office of the Japanese American Citizens League reported.

Of particular interest is the change which now provides that before any action is taken on deportation proceedings an order to "show cause" must be first issued by the Immigration Service rather than the previous "warrant of arrest," which was required before any administrative remedy could be instituted.

The security of the nation, however, is still provided for under the new regulations, for a warrant of arrest may be issued if it appears to the officer in charge that arrest of the respondent (alien) is necessary or desirable.

Another feature, which was first recommended in the Administrative Procedure Act, enacted by Congress in 1946, and is in keeping with democratic procedures is the provision that the special inquiry officer and examining officer be not the one and same person. In this manner, the person who prosecutes will not also be the individual who determines the outcome of the proceedings. Heretofore, the function had been assigned to one person.

The decision of the special inquiry officer may be either oral or written. Procedures have been outlined in both respects.

On any issue of deportability, the district director or officer in charge of the suboffice can assign an examining officer to such cases.

Any respondent, however, may be represented at the hearing by an attorney or other representative qualified to practice before the pertinent jurisdiction, and if other than a Service interpreter is used in the hearings, he must swear to interpret and translate accurately.

Except as provided under Sec. 242.22(c) of the new regulations, application may be made during

80 return to JACL shelter after new Yuba flood crisis

YUBA CITY.—Water rose to within a foot of the levee top Monday following a violent storm buffeting Northern California for the second time since the disastrous Christmas week flood.

It forced some 2,800 Yuba City residents to evacuate their homes; for the second time in three weeks and 80 Issei and Nisei returned to the JACL shelter at the old Marysville Gakuen.

Civil defense authorities Tuesday declared the new flood crisis was over and allowed them to return by Wednesday.

Concerned over welfare and health of flood victims, several registered nurses with Red Cross inspected JACL billets and mess facilities this week. They were:

Mrs. Helen M. Flanagan RN, St. Louis, director, disastrous nursing, Western States; Mrs. Myra G. Faraday, RN, disastrous nursing, v.c., San Francisco ARC, exec. sec., Dist. 9, Calif. State Nurses Ass'n; Jo Ann Rohrer, RN, and John Day, ARC; and Mrs. Isabel Hammond, RN, director, nursing service, Phoenix, Ariz.

Refugee relief director thanks JACL for assistance

WASHINGTON.—The Washington Office of the Japanese American Citizens League recently received a letter from Pierce J. Gerety, Refugee Relief program deputy administrator, thanking the JACL for its assistance toward attainment of humanitarian objectives in this emergency program.

Gerety reported that visas were being issued at an increasing rate and the length of time between the giving of an assurance for a refugee and the issuance of a visa was being shortened.

Through this program he stated

Support scarce as Chinese Canadian loses bid for B.C. legislative seat

VANCOUVER.—The anticipated heavy support of this city's Chinese voters did not materialize for Vancouver Centre's Progressive Conservative candidate, Douglas Jung, in his attempt to become the first Chinese Canadian member of the British Columbia legislature.

The 31-year-old lawyer came out second to Social Credit candidate, Leslie Peterson, in the provincial by-election held Jan. 9. Jung polled 3,691 votes to the Social Credit member's 6,073.

Only 2,500 of the more than 15,000 Chinese in Vancouver voted, splitting their favor evenly for the two candidates.

The constituency takes in downtown Vancouver, the thickly-populated West End district, the East End suburbs and the large Vancouver Chinatown.

In pre-election talks, Jung saw his candidacy as a symbol of the Progressive Conservative rebirth in British Columbia.

"Because I am Chinese, it foretells of increased Chinese interest in politics, and because I am young, it shows that young people are a large part of Conservative strength. It's the start of a new era."

Although the Chinese have been in Canada for nearly 100 years, they have been permitted to use vote only during the past decade (as have all Oriental Canadians). No Chinese ever had aspired to a public office. No interest was shown in political affairs and only a small number registered when the voters' list was opened to them.

Since the immigration gates were opened to relatives of Chinese Canadians a few years ago, Chinese have been coming in at the rate of 2,000 or more a year, and the total in Canada is now around 35,000. Nearly 20,000 of them are found in British Columbia, mostly in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster.

Catch-It Calf contest

Denver

■ This is stock show week in Denver. Livestock people from all over the country converge on the city to show off their cattle, horses, sheep, pigs and lesser farm animals, and to admire those of others. There's also a rodeo, which is part of the high-jinks. There isn't much of a Nisei angle to the stock show because most Issei and Nisei farmers aren't stockmen. A few of them feed cattle as a sideline, but that's as far as their interest goes.

Over the years, a few Nisei farmers have shown their wares in the seed show, and they've done right well, too. Sometimes a Nisei or Sansei boy or girl takes part in a 4-H project or exhibit, but even they are scarce. But this year, a 13-year-old 4-H boy named Don Chikuma won a measure of fame for himself and his family by placing second in the catch-it calf contest.

SPECIAL CASE FOR LITTLE DON CHIKUMA

■ Actually, this is a contest that extends over an entire year. It started during the 1955 stock show, and maybe that requires a bit of explanation. The contest starts with a number of well-heeled ranchers, businessmen, supply houses and others donating calves. These calves are released in the arena together with twice as many boys armed only with short lengths of rope. Each boy tries to catch a calf, tie the rope around its neck and drag it out of the arena. Since there are twice as many boys as calves, it makes for a lot of spirited competition. Once a boy gets his hands on a calf, nobody else can interfere. If that calf breaks away, it's fair game for any boy. As you can imagine, there's a tremendous amount of action in the arena, some exciting do-or-die struggles, and a lot of laughter on the part of the spectators.

The calf that a boy catches and drags out belongs to him. He is required to feed and care for the calf, keep track of feeding costs and make periodic progress reports to the person who donated the calf in the first place. One year later, he brings the calf back to the stock show for judging.

Don Chikuma's was a sort of special case. He was so small at the 1955 show that he was unable to subdue one of the calves. In the audience were Howard and Waldo Haythorne, ranchers from Maxwell, Neb. They were so impressed by Don's spirit that they just up and gave the boy a calf to work with.

Don's calf was a whitefaced Hereford which weighed 480 pounds. (Now you see why a little fellow might have trouble hauling one of these cow-critters out of the arena.) He named the calf Thorny, babied it throughout the year, stuffed it with feed. He gave the calf a shampoo just before bringing it back to the show and brushed it until its coat glistened. When Thorny was put on the scales, he was found to weigh 1,325 pounds—he'd gained a whopping 845 pounds in a year's time. This showing, plus the accuracy of Don's records and the various other points which are counted in the judging, were good enough to win Don second place.

LESSON IN ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

■ Don is the son of the Sam Chikumas and lives on a farm near Brighton, Colo. He's a seventh grader at Brighton Junior High, and a busy member of the 4-H club. Don was mighty happy about winning second place, but he's sad, too, because he must part with Thorny. The calf was born to be slaughtered. As the stock show comes to an end, Thorny will be put up for auction. When he's sold he'll be led off to the slaughterhouse where he'll be converted into fine beef.

For a while, I suppose, Don will lose his appetite for beef, but he'll get over that. After paying his expenses he'll be able to bank a good part of the money he will receive from the sale of Thorny. He can use the money for his education, for other 4-H projects, for starting his own herd or for anything else that will make him a better farmer and rancher. Just the experience of raising Thorny, Don will admit, was a valuable education in animal husbandry.

Pick successor to
of Nippon Times

TOKYO.—Shintaro Fukushima, a former diplomat who served many years in the United States and in contact with U.S. officials here, was elected president of the independent English-language Nippon Times last week.

Immediately upon taking over his new post, the 49-year-old Japanese leader pledged that the English-language Times under the leadership would "continue the policy of very close cooperation in the interests of Japanese-American friendship."

A stockholders' meeting selected Fukushima to succeed Kiyoshi Togasaki, who will become representative director of the Times. Togasaki, who is prominent in Tokyo's civic activities, is board chairman of the International Christian University.

Fukushima served as consul in New York and Los Angeles and secretary in the Japanese legation in Canberra before World War II.

He said that the recent visit of Russia's top leaders, which he observed during three days in New Delhi, India, gave tremendous impetus to the Communist argument in that country and in Burma. He believes the United States will have to define better what it has to offer in its way of life and then "sell" its message in terms that can be appreciated and understood by the peoples of Asia, whose culture and whose standards of living are so largely different from ours.

Iowa doctor installed as

WEBSTER CITY, Iowa.—Dr. Sam I. Kuramoto, osteopathic physician and surgeon here, was installed as the new commander of the Triune Commandery No. 41 last week by members of the Masonic group.

The same week, he was installed as vice-president of the local Kiwanis.

Dr. Kuramoto and his wife, the only Nisei residents in a city of 8,000 residents, are members of the Twin Cities UCL while Dr. Kuramoto is a 1000er. Both have been living here the past 10 years.

(The first "Nisei of the Bien-nium" application for 1956 was being requested for Dr. Kuramoto, the Mile-Hi JACL Office reported this week. Nominations for this award, made at the national JACL convention, may be sent to Dr. T. T. Yatabe, Suite 400, 39 W. Adams St., Chicago 3.)

Leap Year—Monkey Year

Tokyo

● We are in a leap year—1956. Young ladies are blessed with the arrival of this year—but it applies in America. In Japan, this year happens to be a Monkey Year, which is regarded as unlucky for marriages. The word of monkey (saru) has the same pronunciation as the Japanese verb "to leave" and this suggests a divorce if a girl is married in a Monkey Year. For that superstitious reason, fewer weddings are expected this year.

Traditionally, the Year of the Monkey does not commence until Feb. 4 (Setsubun), the actual date the Monkey Year starts according to the lunar calendar. Hence, there were wedding ceremonies to avoid the pitfalls on a Monkey Year wedding being observed on New Year's Day this year. That never happened before!

FAVORABLY CONSIDERED IN FOLKLORE

● In both fact and fiction, however, the monkey in Japanese lore is considered favorably. The animal is in good standing. Persons born in a Monkey Year are said to be very wise—possibly, sly, too.

The monkey figures in many Japanese proverbs: To teach your grandmother to suck eggs. A good marksman may miss.

A conceited man who flashes his wisdom is said to be a "monkey with a hat on". While the Western world compares unfriendly relations as "cat and dog", the Japanese use "dog and monkey".

A Japanese variant to Aesop's fable about the dog trying to catch the shadow of his bone in the brook is found in the story of the monkey seizing the moon. A Buddhist parable, the story goes something like this: some long-armed monkeys, seeing the reflection of the moon in a well under a tree, resolved to catch it. They made a long chain of monkeys from the tree to the water, when suddenly the branch to which they clung broke and the monkeys drowned.

Monkeys are prominent in Japanese folk tales. We have Momotaro, the Battle of the Monkey and Crab, and the Silly Jellyfish.

SEE NO EVIL, HEAR NO EVIL, SPEAK NO EVIL

● The carving of the three monkeys of Nikko is famous. It is known as the "Monkeys of Three Countries" (India, China and Japan). One covers his eyes with his hands, another his ears and the third his mouth. We immediately recall: Mi-zaru, Kika-zaru, iwa-zaru (seeing not, hearing not, speaking not). Actually, there is an excellent Japanese pun contained in this saying as "zaru" (a negative verb ending) is a homonym for monkey.

Replicas of this carving are commonly seen by the roadside as they are associated with Koshin, the god of the roads. In Shintoism, these monkeys are used to teach the moral: see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil.

'SARU' MEANS RED TROUBLES

● For the young people of Japan who have to get married in a Monkey Year, they wed at informal ceremonies. They avoid elaborate and orthodox affairs. They will never marry between Aug. 9 and 21—because these are Monkey Days of the Monkey Month of the Monkey Year. A confirmed Japanese zodiac believer would never move first without consulting his calendar. It may be an unlucky Monkey Day.

Many people believe there will be many fires this year because the monkey's face is red, corresponding to a fire being red.

Let us see what will happen this year. There may be many troubles in Japan. Red troubles, probably, communistic in nature.

Vital Statistics

● Vital Statistics. No other feature in the Pacific Citizen commands as much careful inspection as this section from the standpoint of readership-interest . . . We have been naturally proud of the wide coverage provided in the Vital Statistics . . . In the past few weeks, we admit the pickings were slim, but we plan to catch up. With the rush of Holiday Issue over, we can resume our routine of perusing the Nisei vernaculars, JACL and church news bulletins, metropolitan dailies and the country newspapers for items in our Vital Statistics columns . . . Occasionally, we are treated with a tiny envelop containing a birth announcement from a considerate mother . . . Or it might be a postcard hastily sent so the news gets into the columns early. We meet proud fathers on the street at times passing out cigars. But the buck George Nakamura of the Mid-Columbia JACL chapter sent us last week for cigars on the happy occasion of Michael Dean, born Jan. 10, is something new. I'm puffing on a Corona now, George, thanks . . . We also want to mention the letters reaching our desk telling of engagements and weddings . . . And to the question that has been often asked: Is there a charge for insertions in our Vital Statistics?, we always say: No!

● The style we use in Vital Statistics changes from time to time. You'll note the changes in the birth section . . . They're made in the interest of cutting production-time, since it's not the easiest thing for the printing department to tackle . . . And at the same time, by cutting down production time we manage to include more items per issue . . . We're always happy to include the maiden name of the mother, when available, in the births sections; the date of engagements; wedding dates are a must; and hometown of survivors in death notices if different from the city in which the deceased had lived.

● In our birth section, geographical breakdown has been by cities and counties in California, where concentration of persons of Japanese ancestry is the heaviest . . . For other areas, it has been either by cities or states. We have found this method the most expedient . . . If we had the time, we might entertain counting the number of birth as reported in last year's PC to wrap up this column, but we haven't.

Neuberger talks to Portland chapter on U.S.-Japan trade

PORTLAND. — President Eisenhower's reciprocal trade program has the praise of Democratic Sen. Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon.

Sen. Neuberger told a Portland JACL gathering that the President has done "the wise and farsighted thing" in continuing the trade program started under Secretary of State Cordell Hull in 1936.

He spoke at a Portland JACL installation banquet Dec. 18.

The senator also declared that "trade, no aid" makes sense in relations between the United States and the rest of the free world.

He said:

"A nation like Japan will be driven straight into the arms of Red China unless Japan can carry on beneficial commerce with the United States."

Sen. Neuberger warned that the United States will be wiser to make tariff concessions that will allow the sale of Japanese goods in this country than to have to "feed and clothe Japan out of the United States treasury."

Mile-Hi membership campaign underway

DENVER.—Sam Y. Matsumoto of Henderson was named as Denver area membership chairman by Mike Mayeda, 2nd vice-president in charge of membership for the Mile-Hi JACL. The chapter has set a goal of 1,000.

Betty Suzuki, past chapter membership chairman, announced she has already signed up more than 50 members personally. The local JACL office has signed up 26.

Chapter membership fees are $3 per year, $5 for couples, $2 for students and servicemen. (Rates vary according to chapter.)

SEI KAMI PRESIDENT OF RICHMOND-EL CERRITO C.L.

RICHMOND.—Sei Kami, a successful architect, was recently elected president of the Richmond-El Cerrito JACL chapter. Besides serving for two years on the local chapter's Executive Board, Sei is also a charter member of the newly organized Optimist Club.

The newly elected members of the Board and Officers will be installed at the joint Eastbay JACL dinner-dance to be held on Sunday, Feb. 5 at the beautiful Sands Ballroom in Oakland.

Fresno JACL, Chinese group hold charity hop

FRESNO. — The fifth annual March of Dimes dance, sponsored by the Fresno JACL and Chinese Fay Wah, was held last Friday night at the Rainbow ballroom. Hugo Kazato represented the JACL and Mrs. Min Saito, the Women's Auxiliary, in preparing for the affair.

This was believed the only time the two minority groups have joined hands in promoting an affair in which the total proceeds are donated to charity. The past successful affairs have drawn many favorable comments from the National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis, because of its uniqueness.

VENICE.—The 1956 officers of the Venice-Culver JACL chapter were elected at a chapter meeting held at the home of George Inagaki here last week. Dr. Tak Shishino, optometrist, will serve as president, succeeding George T. Iso-da.

BALLICO. — Albert Morimoto, Cortez JACL president, called the first cabinet meeting of the year Jan. 11 to plan the year's program. A general meeting was held last Saturday at the Gakuen.

SEQUOIA JACL PREPARING BUSY YEAR AS FIRST CABINET SESSION HELD

BY YAEKO YUKI

REDWOOD CITY.—According to the tentative calendar prepared at the first cabinet meeting of the Sequoia JACL recently, the chapter is headed for a busy year.

The 1956 officers met at the home of Kei Nakano, 2nd v.p., after being hosted by a home-cooked Chinese dinner prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nakahara.

Chapter president Nakahara and cabinet were installed by William Werder, chairman of the supervisory board, at a dinner Jan. 7. Mas Satow of JACL Headquarters was guest speaker. Among guests were Issei naturalized this past year, local county supervisors and editors of the Redwood City Tribune and Palo Alto Times.

SATOW ADDRESSES FOUR COLORADO C.L. CHAPTERS

DENVER.—National JACL Director Mas Satow spoke before four Colorado chapters last weekend. He was main speaker at the Ft. Lupton installation Friday and in the same role Sunday at the San Luis Valley JACL ceremonies.

Satow spoke Saturday night at a Mile-Hi general meeting at Ca-thay Post. Rupert Arai, public relations chairman, was in charge. Satow also met with Mile-Hi JACL cabinet officers, led by John Sakayama, at a dinner preceding the meeting.

On Monday night, he spoke before the Arkansas Valley JACLers.

He plans to visit Northern Wyoming and Montana JACL chapters about the time of the National JACL bowling tournament in Salt Lake City, Mar. 1-4.

CHICAGO CORNER: by Smoky H. Sakurada

Quakers fight bias

Chicago

It may be said that Chicago was the first metropolis to offer diversified job opportunities to the Nisei-at-large and it came some 10 years ago when the war still waged in the Pacific. Problems in employment for persons of all races are still being tackled on the basis of education, fair employment procedures and laws. Last week in the Chicago Daily News was an illuminating and encouraging report of how the Quakers are getting firms to ignore prejudice and hire on the basis of ability . . . Directing the program is a familiar name in this Corner: John Y. Yoshino, who has guest-written here several times, and served as vice-president in charge of program last year for the local JACL.

QUIETLY PIONEERING IN PROGRAM

A couple of dozen large Chicago firms are quietly pioneering in equal job opportunities for persons of all races. To them, Brotherhood Week, which occurs Feb. 19-26, is an all-year proposition.

For years many mass employment industries—such as steel mills and stockyards—employed Negroes and other non-whites. But the firms now adopting an integrated personnel policy are distinguished from the others because, traditionally, the fields in which they specialize have been closed to non-white groups.

They include six insurance companies, four department stores, four banks, six specialized manufacturers, a law office of 28 attorneys and an airline.

Although there are other firms following these policies, this group got started through the job opportunities program of the American Friends Service Committee, a Quaker group. The AFSC placed 70 persons in important industrial positions last year.

John Y. Yoshino, the earnest young director of the program, quickly agrees that the AFSC is not solely responsible for delivering the key to many non-whites in industry.

"No one person, agency, group, or church can take complete credit," he says. "Perhaps a church sermon on Sunday talks effect Monday and a businessman really exercises his ethical, religious belief. Maybe it is the pressure of the U.S. government contracts committee seeking to abolish job discrimination in firms working for the government."

Yoshino cited a recent example of a company enlisting AFSC aid in starting an integrated personnel policy. "The head of an insurance firm operating here 50 years said they had considered knocking down the racial employment bars. I told him 'Fine,' but heard nothing more for some time. Then, several months later, the company's office manager came to see me and we talked over the ABCs of integration."

The ABCs meant: Is top management convinced of its merit? Has it been discussed with intermediate supervisors? Would there be a sympathetic reception to non-whites or one of cold formality?

"The office manager was troubled about that last one," continued Yoshino. "One of the supervisors came from the South. He didn't think he could place a Negro typist under her. I told him that wasn't necessarily a danger sign. The supervisor could still be a person of fair outlook."

"Then days later he called again—more trouble. One of the older, more valued employees said she'll quit if a Negro were employed. I told him the same situation arose before. In the showdown most of the objectors did not. It was a calculated risk the company had to take—and it did."

OLD EXCUSES, NEW ANSWERS

Yoshino listed the most frequent excuses offered by firms opposing integration:

- ✓ The employees won't accept other minority race workers.
- ✓ The customers won't either; business will drop.
- ✓ The community isn't ready for it.
- ✓ Let someone else start, and we'll follow.

To these he replies:

- ✓ Don't underestimate the religious and democratic principles of your employees.
- ✓ Customers, and the community, are accepting integration. Leading stores can prove it. Someone else is already doing it first.

Why aren't the firms named here? Let the personnel chief of one of America's largest insurance companies tell you:

"We are taking this as a matter of course. We seek no publicity because we are doing just what should be done. We would like, but the best way to get where we are bound is to go quietly and—just get it done."

International Sportsmens Club

Seattle

■ When a club or organization zooms to prominence, popularity and a position of high esteem in the neighborhood, it's worthwhile to see what makes it tick.

We're speaking of the International Sportsmens Club, founded in 1950 and now boasting a paid-up membership of 250. Membership is divided evenly between Nisei and Caucasians, plus a finger counting number of Chinese and Filipino sportsmen.

This is not just another fisherman's club. The International Sportsmen cultivate a wide field of interests, and the visitor to their meetings and other events is immediately impressed with the warm feeling of fellowship. In fact, the club constitution sets out a specific list of aims which include the cultivation of fellowship among sportsmen, and the creeds and ideals peculiar to this breed of American—cooperation with farmers and landowners, conservation, and cooperation with other sportsmen's clubs.

A brief run-down of their activities can best describe the scope of the club members' interests. There have been demonstrations by a famous pair of retrievers, of new casting rigs; ammunition and arms manufacturers have put on displays and fine color movie demonstrations; the state game department and Coast Guard have put on graphic lectures in the interests of conservation, safety in the woods, safety in ocean fishing and power boat navigation. An interesting fact about the attendance is that it's always very close to 100% of membership.

Here in this club, an Issei or Nisei will share his knowledge and technique in salmon fishing with a skeet shooter from uplands who breeds and trains retrievers. The results are obvious. More and more Nisei broaden their sports horizons. Where one acquires a new shotgun and a dog, another will pop up with rifle and deer license, and another will branch off into steelheading which is becoming very popular with the introduction of new tackle and techniques.

The wife and kids watch dad's new interests too, for there has been a big rise in pleasure craft boating which is big time in these Pacific Northwest waters. Linc Bappu (and brothers) and also Art Louie on Jackson Street have added power boat showrooms to their conventional sporting goods layouts. It's easy to see the sky's the limit. All the eager sportsmen have to do is to increase their incomes some more.

SOME NISEI FLY TO ALASKA TO FISH

■ The sport of salmon fishing still retains its position as No. 1 activity, however. Some local Nisei fly to Alaska for a "long weekend" of that heavy duty salmon fishing. Biggest event of the year with the Sportsmens Club is the annual salmon derby which is usually held on Labor Day. The entry fee is a modest $2. All the city is invited. There are usually 1,100 to 1,200 fishermen.

Top prizes include such items as; a boat, a 10 hp outboard, complete camping outfit with tent, and high quality rods and reels. Such prizes are financed by the derby proceeds, but donations by local merchants provide such an extensive array that anyone who catches any kind of a fish is assured of being a prize winner.

A guy named Smith may win a sack of rice or a tub of shoyu, and a lot of good natured trading goes on, but more and more, we notice, Caucasian prizewinners are insisting on keeping their Japanese grocery type prizes. There was an extra "added feature" to the '55 derby. President Torby Nyland works for a big western milling company, so each contestant who bated any kind of a fish got a large economy size box of Biskit Mix as an additional prize.

Second biggest event of the year is the annual banquet and installation of officers. This year when, Dr. Kelly Yamada succeeded Torby Nyland as president, the restaurant was filled to capacity of 600. Crying need, bigger and better banquet halls in this community.

The International Sportsmens Club is a member of the King County Sports Council, which in turn is affiliated with the Washington State Sports Council, and them's no small potatoes. We, in this community are indeed proud that a club which dates back to 1950 can attain such stature and popularity.

MINORITY WEEK

JIM CROW BAN IGNORED

■ Officials of several Mississippi towns this week said their railroad and bus stations will remain segregated despite a Federal ruling against segregating interstate passengers.

Police in Jackson, Miss., put up segregation signs in the railroad station and bus station to enforce Mississippi's segregation laws. Policemen were being stationed at the Illinois Central Railroad Depot to enforce the city's stand if they are needed, police Chief W. D. Rayfield said.

Laurel, Gulfport and Greenwood are among other cities which said train and bus stations will remain segregated.

'1000' CLUB NOTES

We missed our 1,000 mark at deadline by about 40 members, but in considering the fact that the listing on the honor roll page represented a $24,000 income for the National JACL, we are indeed thankful for and inspired by the response of these loyal JACLers.

Heading for 2,000

■ As to Operations Breakthru, we have a National goal of 2,000 members in good standing to meet by convention time this year. We believe this can be reached, providing every chapter and its 1000 Club chairman start moving at the first of the year to fulfill their individual goals.

We are proud to announce that Gresham-Troutdale of the Pacific Northwest, with HENRY KATO as chairman, is the first chapter to attain their Breakthru goal of 17% of the '55 chapter membership; in other words, 1 out of 6 chapter members joined the 1000 Club roster since Sept. 1, 1955. Incidentally, Henry is the newly-elected 1000 Club Chairman of the Pacific Northwest District. We want to congratulate him and wish him the best of luck and, at the same time, thank TORU SAKAHARA, the retiring 1000 Club District Chairman, for his long and faithful service in this capacity.

In a similar manner, we announce that SUD MORISHITA of Idaho Falls is the new Intermountain District 1000 Club Chairman. Good luck to you, Sud, and our thanks to retiring district chairman 'Cannonball' JOE SAITO, remembering that in the fall of '47 at Idaho Falls, Joe was one of the originators of the National 1000 Club—No. 7, to be exact.

Rebate as Incentive

■ We got another boost from National Director MAS SATOW in his memo to all chapters regarding the 60% rebate to chapters which exceed their financial quotas to the National budget. This includes all 1000 Club money turned into National. It will be a further incentive for chapters to go all out in getting more 1000 members during 1956.

The machinery is all set. DAISY UYEDA at National Headquarters is performing a magnificent job in keeping their records, and ditto for MRS. ESTHER HAGIWARA.

MATSUMURA RE-ELECTED SAN JOSE C.I. HEAD

SAN JOSE.—Phil Matsumura was re-elected San Jose JACL president for the 1956 term. The chapter held its installation ceremonies last Friday at a dinner chaired by Henry Uyeda at Lou's Village.

Salt Lake CL opens membership drive

Sue Kaneko, exec. asst.; Alice Kasai, "Nisei of Biennium" comm.

The chapter and its JACL auxiliary will pack and ship items to the No. Calif. flood disaster victims.

SALT LAKE CITY.—The Salt Lake JACL Auxiliary recently installed its 1956 cabinet officers at one of the gayest parties ever held. The dinner-dance was chaired by Josie Hachiya, Marge Nishikawa and Grace Kasai. Mrs. Tomoko Yano is the new president.

at the Midwest Office in sending out notices and follow-up lists. She just completed a box score form which will keep every chapter appraised to its monthly progress on the 1000 Club drive. SUMI SHIMIZU, my Gal Friday, is right in there to keep the necessary correspondence flowing. I'd be lost without her volunteer help. So now it's up to each chapter and its 1000 Club chairman to show that all of us can get together and help maintain a strong National JACL.

Remember Finance Chairman DR. ROY NISHIKAWA's words—that the 1000 Club members, representing a little over 6% of the National JACL membership, contributed 43% of the last fiscal income. Nevertheless, the budget was short by some $20,000. Let's all pitch in to help wipe out that deficit by an honest-to-goodness effort through the 1000 Club. IT CAN BE DONE!

Chestnuts and Santa

• Old stuff to the JACL regulars over the years, especially to the national and district officers, but fresh and interesting to newly elected chapter officers, as it's intended to be, is the 3rd annual chapter clinic of the Pacific Southwest District Council.

The clinic is more of an orientation program than an indoctrination for newcomers among the chapter leadership. Some indoctrination was already there when these new leaders accepted their posts. No doubt a good bit of it rubs off from the clinic. The rest will come with the experience of tenure.

From the way the host Pasadena chapter is preparing for this February 12 event, that Sunday should prove to be a fruitful one for all who attend. The past two clinics were highly popular and this one'll be better yet. An innovation will be a mock meeting to provide a lesson in parliamentary procedure, do's and don'ts with comic-relief as only Doc Toru Iura of the famed Kaboochi Troupe can stage.

Two fog-city CL experts, nat'l director Mas Satow and past Sanfran prez (also '56 convention chairman) Jerry Enomoto, are flying in to help the sessions along. And a surprise luncheon program will be announced next week.

In Budahead, clinic, romanized as kuriniku, offers an etymological challenge, but again we come through with our usual gems of research: kuri (chestnut), ni (two) and ku (nine), or Twenty Nine Chestnut Trees, an arid-climate resort center conducive to good health as a clinic should be, and fashioned somewhat after the Mojave Desert town of Twenty Nine Palms.

Then again, since chestnut also means an old joke and niku is the Hokkaido equivalent of Nick or Nicholas, kuriniku is a short, real short way of saying St. Nicholas is a joke, or don't believe in Santa Claus, which, in case you're wondering, isn't the kind of stuff taught at the PSWDC clinic.

• Harry Osaki, better known as one of America's top five silversmiths than as a leader in the Boy Scout movement, was flabbergasted the other weekend while attending the annual BSA dinner at the Huntington Hotel in Pasadena when he was one of six men, the others all considerably older than Harry, to receive scouting's highest award, the Silver Beaver. Only one other Nisei has been so honored to date.

The PC Holiday Issue of 1951 chronicled Harry's achievements but he's gained much in reputation, prestige and creative artistry since then. His aren't mere personal attainments for he's helping crystalize the high degree of acceptance enjoyed by all Nisei. A great scout and a great guy.

• VISITOR THIS WEEK: George Kodama, '55 prexy of the San Diego JACL . . . Congrats to Airman Percy Hicks of the Albuquerque chapter who reports the arrival of a daughter at 0806 of 6 Jan 56 . . . his missus is from Japan.

Overheard in a Barber Shop

San Diego

■ In the long course of much time spent in the rathskellers and tonsorial parlors of Nihonjin-machi I (and probably you) have heard many things uttered solemnly as truth. I enumerate some of them here for you. Nearly all of these idols of the barber shop, I confess, at one time or another I believed. The comments are mine.

(1) If you see old Chinese men shuffling into a Chinatown chop suey restaurant, this will be a good place to eat. Anyone for fan-tan?

(2) Off-spring born of Caucasian-Japanese unions are goodlooking, particularly the females. Baloney is a many splendored thing.

(3) In Japanese American and Chinese American society 1B is ostracized while VD is laughed off. How true. Penicillin is cheaper than sanitariums.

(4) High school "C" students do better at college than "A" students. Then send only the "C" students to college and make bootblacks and pinboys of the "A" students.

(5) Any observation made by any Hakujin about Nisei is profound and accurate. Somebody find General De Witt.

(6) Orientals are more concerned with "saving face" than Americans. Who's always trying to keep up with the Joneses?

(7) American Oriental homes may look like shacks from the outside, but they are tastefully, even luxuriously, furnished inside. Come on-a my house.

(8) "I cried because I had no shoes until I met a man who had no feet". N.A.M. propaganda.

(9) If you stood on the corner of Randolph and State sts. in Chicago during the war, every Nisei you ever know would pass by. And the first thing each of them said was "What camp were you in?"

Coffee's Strawberry will defend CL keg title at Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY.—Coffee's Strawberry, surprise team winner at the 1955 National JACL Bowling tournament, will be here Mar. 1-4 to defend their title, squad captain Dub Tsugawa of Sacramento informed Choppy Umemoto, tournament chairman.

With entry deadline date of Jan. 29 approaching, the following week should indicate whether the preliminary survey of 80 men's and 30 women's teams expected to compete in the 10th annual Nisei classic was accurate.

Umemoto stated it was difficult at the present to mention the starting time of events, but the first squad will not start any earlier than 10 a.m.

The committee has also arranged for transportation between Pal-D-Mar Lanes (site of men's events) and Ritz Bowling Palace (site of women's events).

Lylienne Gray, women's event chairman, was equally hopeful of having all the defending JACL women's champions return to defend their titles. A pre-tournament welcome will be held Feb. 29 at Olie's Terrace Room. Tickets for the Mar. 4 award dinner-dance are available at $5 per person from local bowlers. The schedules:

MEN'S EVENTS (Pal-D-Mar)

Mar. 1 (Thu)—6-game Sweeper
Mar. 2 (Fri)—Team
Mar. 3 (Sat)—Doubles
Mar. 4 (Sun)—Singles

WOMEN'S EVENTS (Ritz)

Mar. 2 (Fri)—4-game Sweeper
Mar. 2 (Fri)—Team
Mar. 3 (Sat)—Doubles & Singles
Mar. 4 (Sun)—Mixed Doubles

DENVER.—John T. Noguchi, past Mile-Hi chapter president, obtained approval of the local JACL to present a bid for the 1958 National JACL bowling tournament. Seattle is also bidding for the 1958 tournament.

Five men's and one women's team will participate in the 1956 classics at Salt Lake City, Noguchi revealed. Oakland is preparing for the 1957 tournament.

When the team captains meet at Salt Lake City the first weekend of March, they will decide on the site of the 1958 tournament.

Tomita rolls 643 in Oregon state tourney; in accident going home

PORTLAND.—Taylor Tomito of Hood River led the onslaught on pins at East Side Bowl Jan. 8 to lead the Class C Singles in the 15th annual Oregon state bowling championships. He rolled a 643, the highest series in the tournament to that date. Tourney leaders include:

Class A Singles—(4th) Harry Inukai, Hood River, 592.
Class B Singles—(5th) Min Asai, Hood River, 562.
Class C Singles—(1st) Taylor Tomita, Hood River, 643.
Class C Doubles—(10th) T. Tomita-George Tamura, H. R. 1013.

On their way home, Tomita, Hasegawa and Inukai were highway death in Multnomah county outside of Portland. They were in a car driven by Hitoshi Imai, who stopped in the center lane of S.W. Barbur Blvd. and signaled to make a left-turn.

Driving on to his outside lane was a car driven by William Headley, accompanied by his wife. A third car driven by Arthur C. England skidded in trying to avoid Imai car, hit the left rear of the Headley car and crashed into the rear of the Imai car.

England was thrown from his car. Mrs. Headley stayed on the scene while her husband telephoned for officers. While assisting the injured motorist, Wynn LeHuquet, driving a panel truck, failed to observe the accident and his car struck Mrs. Headley before he saw her. She died some hours later.

Four occupants of the Imai car suffered neck injuries and shock. Further check last week revealed that Imai would wear a neck brace for a week.

76 keg squads vie for N.C. invitational honors

SAN FRANCISCO.—Seventy six bowling teams (56 men's and 20 women's) roll this weekend in the sixth annual No. Calif. Nisei Invitationals at Downtown Bowl. Special feature will be the ragtime-mixed doubles with $1 of the $5 fee to be turned over to the JACL flood relief project.

Nisei, whether bowling in the tournament or not, are being urged to participate in this special event.

Gish Endo racks 10 strikes in row—280

SAN FRANCISCO.—Gish Endo went on a strike-getting spree at Sports Center Jan. 10, hitting 10 in a row for a 280 high game in the All-Star league there. He had a 675 total for the session, starting with a 226 and ending with a 169.

His teammate Fuzzy Shimada rolled a 220-214-211 for 645, but their Art's Men's shop lost 2-1.

Richmond-El Cerrito CL sponsors cage team

RICHMOND.—As part of the chapter objective to render community service, the Richmond-El Cerrito JACL executive board voted to sponsor a basketball team in the No. Calif. NAU Single Aye league. Shig Yoshimine, member of the board, is coach.

On the squad are Den Nihel, Roy Moriyama, John Hamachi, Eddy Nabeta, John Masunaga, Haruo Narasaki, Ken Fujimoto and Albert Hata.

Young Adult Buddhists to convene Feb. 18-19

FRESNO.—The Western Young Adult Buddhist League will meet in convention at Fresno on Feb. 18-19. Host for this eighth annual affair will be the Fourth District (Central California group).

Mike Iwatsubo, local insurance-man, spearheads the planning committee of the statewide gathering. Seven YABL groups are assisting.

Manual Arts prexy

Los Angeles

It's that time of the year when schools have their elections. Precedent was set at Manual Arts High School where 17-year-old Florence Okamoto, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Minoru Okamoto, has been named student body president. She succeeds Norris Lieu, Chinese-American, who last semester became the first person of Oriental ancestry to gain presidency at the S. Vermont Ave. institution.

Florence became the first girl at Manual Arts and the first Nisei to win the top position. She had to beat two other male aspirants. She was Girls' League president and secretary; a member of the Diaconian Society, honor service group; and Guardians, an organization which helps new students get oriented.

It was back in February, 1951, when Jeanne Yamada, now doing graduate work at UCLA, became the first Nisei girl to be elected student body president at Roosevelt High School.

FROM GAS STATIONS TO NEWSPAPERS

One of these weeks we hope to have a "close-up" on Taul Watanabe, who started several years ago with a chain of gas stations and has continued to expand into many other fields. He has just inked a long term finance and lease-back deal with the Gardena Valley Newspaper Company, which claims 23,000 paid-up subscribers in the area. Taul purchased a two-story building with all its newspaper equipment and then leased it back to Mrs. Don Miller and Don Algie for 49 years.

Still in the blueprint stage is his announcement to construct a super market near Disneyland; plus a 24-unit, air-conditioned $100,000 motel in Buena Park, also close to Disney's dreamland mecca.

Watanabe heads both the Home State Investment Co. and the Syndicate Land, Inc., which proposed the big undertakings. Buzzing with business now is their Town and Country shopping center, which started operation in early December. A supermarket, under Thomas Kunibe's ownership, had its ribbon-cutting ceremony on Wednesday. Other units in Gardena's most progressive enterprise have all been sub-leased.

Next, Taul reports, they plan to enter the retail and manufacturing field.

COWBOY YOKOZEKI

We ain't sayin' nothin' yet but our Downtown L.A. chapter president, attorney David (the cowboy) Yokozeki, is gettin' to look more like one every day. That's probably our outstretched imagination than that dust from the Chatsworth ranch that's gettin' in his dern nails. When Dave ain't punchin' his addin' machine at his law office on Spring St., makin' with the dern money, he's producin' his western saga, "Count the Dead," that Tats Kushida mentioned in his "Sou'wester" column last week.

Dave is big boss of Nacirema (American spelled backward) which is already headin' for a gold mine. When finished, the gun-tootin' film will hit some 7,000 theaters all over the nation. Yokozeki's combine is not participating in the picture as actors, but by golly, the quiet barrister could probably whip a mean pistol if he wanted to.

By the way, the ol' cuss has some weather-beaten stamps he wants to dispose at a profit. So we visits him one night and thumbs through his mildewed album (only one) and, shucks, we finds one tobacco-stained, perforated item we never seen. We raised a big yap when we comes across the Columbian 8-center. But it was torn around the edges. We couldn't horse trade that night because he wanted a "fantastical" price of $100,000,000. We're gonna have Tats, our righthand cowhand, to work on him, the onery cuss. Vamonos, mis amigos.

Hollywood mainstream

Denver

After getting his toes wet through financial participation in a low-budget horror film called The Phantom from 10,000 Leagues, Dave Yokozeki of Los Angeles has taken the full plunge into the Hollywood mainstream. Yokozeki—as Tats Kushiida first reported in the PC several weeks back—has organized a company called Nacirema ('American' spelled backwards) to make low budget films for theatrical second bills and eventually for TV sale. Dave has his own and other East First Street money in the new unit. Dave is listed as producer of the company's first film which went into production this past week at the California studios in Hollywood. The picture is Count the Dead, from an original western story by Richard Dorso, and stars Howard Duff, Gloria McGehee and Dick Foran.

Nacirema has at least two other projects in preparation. One, tentatively scheduled this spring, is Joe-San the Great, adapted from an original baseball story by Chester Smith. Joe-San will be made in Japan and will tell the story of a Caucasian American ball player who joins the Tokyo Giants of the Japanese Central baseball league, the team on which such Nisei as Wally Yonamine, Jyun Hirota and Dick Kashiwaeda are real-life stars.

Films produced by Nacirema are to be distributed by an active independent, American Releasing Company.

UPBEAT IN ACTIVITY

There's been an upbeat in activity among the several score film players of Japanese ancestry in Hollywood in recent weeks, mainly due to two pictures, Walter Wanger's Mother-Sir and Mike Todd's Around the World in 80 Days. Both of these films have Japanese backgrounds, but most of the Japanese sequences were shot in Hollywood. According to Bob Kino, actor-singer and erstwhile night club m.c. who launched a new career as a TV comedian on the Milton Berle TV hour recently, more than a score of Nisei and Issei performers appeared in each of the films.

Mother-Sir, adapted from the book of the same name, is a comedy about the effect of American women on Japanese life in the early days of the occupation. It stars Joan Bennett, Gary Merrill and Shirley Yamaguchi. Among the Japanese Americans in the cast are Teru Shimada, one of Hollywood's most competent Oriental actors, Tom Komuro, Karie Shindo, Donna Jean Okubo, Bob Okazaki, Rollin Moriyama, Shizue Nakamura, Arnold Ishii, Jim Yagi, Jimmy Taguchi, Ziro Tenkai, Kyoko Kamo, Julia Katayama, Mieko Shintani, Tsumeko Takahashi, Yoshiko Niya, Michiyo Kamo, Matsukichi Kamo, John Matsutani, Miyoshi Jingu, Kosaburo Baba, Kimiko Hiroshige, Ken Taguchi, Karen Yamamoto, Jack Shintani, Kuni Morishima, Tomiji Nagao and Masa Kunitomi. Many of these same performers appear in the Mike Todd film which was made in the new widescreen Todd-A-O process.

'SAYONARA' PRODUCTION

The Hollywood tangle over who would produce James Michener's Japanese American love story, Sayonara, finally has been unraveled and William Goetz, an independent producer, has emerged the winner. It all started, apparently, when Michener's agents, the William Morris agency, tossed the book on the Hollywood market. Goetz, MGM and 20th Century Fox are bid for it. Meanwhile, film and stage rights to Sayonara were assigned to Joshua Logan, who proposed to make a musical out of the book for Broadway before transcribing it on celluloid. The disappointed Hollywood trio immediately started litigation which has tied up plans to adapt Sayonara to stage and screen for more than a year.

Recently Logan sold the film rights to Goetz under an agreement under which MGM and 20th dropped their claims. Recently, Warner Brothers registered Sayonara as a film title, lending weight to speculation that they will release the Goetz film. It is expected that Logan, who made his stage success Mr. Roberts into a film for Warners, will handle the megaphone for Goetz.

The agreement means that Logan can now proceed with his plans to present Sayonara on Broadway. Music for the production already has been composed by Irving Berlin. Sayonara concerns the love of an American jet pilot for the star dancer of the Takarazuka girls' troupe.

EDDIE IMAZU

Last time we saw Eddie Imazu was way back in World War II days and Eddie, one of Hollywood's veteran craftsmen, was at the war relocation center in Rohwer, Ark., wondering if he ever would be able to resume his career at MGM. The war and mass evacuation had come along at a time when Imazu was being assigned as art director on some of MGM's most important productions.

When Eddie Imazu left MGM for mass evacuation and an uncertain future, he was told that the studio always would have a job for him. In a Hollywood where promises sometimes are lightly held, MGM is a paragon of integrity. Imazu returned from the Arkansas relocation camp to his studio job. One of his first films after his return was a Civil War story starring Van Johnson, Romance of Rosy Ridge, which, by coincidence, had an Arkansas background.

This year should be Eddie Imazu's best. He is art director of one of the studio's biggest productions of 1956, Teahouse of the August Moon, and it will be under his direction that MGM will build a complete Okinawan village in a valley near Kyoto, Japan. The picture will star Marlon Brando, Glenn Ford and Machiko Kyo.

SOME FINAL ITEMS

Speaking of art directors, there's Bob Kinoshita who is chief set designer on Rebel in Town, which Bel-Air is making for United Artists. The picture stars John Payne and Ruth Roman. The ballet, "Small House of Uncle Thomas", which stars Yuriko Kikuchi in the same role she danced on Broadway, is one of the biggest production numbers in The King and I, now in production at 20th Century. Casting is expected to start soon on Home Again, the Japanese American evacuation story, for which Michael Blankfort has been doing the screen play.

Hawaiian-Alaskan statehood question: presidential compromise necessary if both territories are to be admitted into Union

Washington

As the new Congress settles down to its legislative responsibilities, reports from Hawaii indicate that statehood hopes are high again in the Paradise of the Pacific.

Most of this new-found optimism stems from the President's State of the Union message, in which he specifically called for immediate statehood for the deserving Territory of Hawaii in the strongest language yet used by a chief executive on this subject.

It seems that what the Islanders liked most about the President's message was his recognition of what has been their proud boast for many years, that Hawaii is the proven place for the East and West.

"To the Islands, Asia and Europe and the Western Hemisphere, all of the continents, have contributed their peoples and their cultures to display a unique example of a community that is a successful laboratory in human brotherhood," evaluated the message.

Presidentially appointed GOP Gov. Samuel W. King exulted that "the President . . . has made statehood an issue with worldwide implications," while his Democrat predecessor, former Gov. Oren E. Long, admitted that "so far as messages of presidents on statehood is concerned, it is the best ever delivered."

The influential Honolulu Star-Bulletin, owned by Betty Farrington, Republican Delegate to the Congress, editorialized that the annual message meant that the Administration saw that "Statehood for this Territory would be a powerful influence in Asia," answering "completely the wily Communist charge that Hawaii is a 'colony' of the United States Government."

Even in Hawaii, however, the President's recommendations for statehood were not received without political overtones.

Frank Fasi, young and articulate Democratic national committeeman for the Territory, explained that "while it is an admirable statement, it means nothing unless some action is taken."

Former Democratic Governor Long warned that the President's failure to bracket Alaska with Hawaii actually meant that no real progress had been made in the cause of statehood for Hawaii.

Though advocates, both Republicans and Democrats, have not yet worked out their strategy for this congressional session, it seems clear that most statehood leaders are convinced that only on its own merits will Hawaii be able to secure statehood this year.

"If we're tied to Alaska again, we're dead" is the consensus.

Status of Bill

Last May, when this same Democratic Congress in its House of Representatives considered this subject it voted substantially against a single package combination providing statehood status for both Hawaii and Alaska which had been reported by its Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

Since that time, Democratic chairman of the Committee Clair Engle of California has maintained that no useful purpose would be served in reviving this issue, since he is committed to the combination deal for both of the remaining territories under the American flag.

On the Senate side, Subcommittee Chairman Henry Jackson, Washington Democrat, of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee has taken the position that his Subcommittee is not disposed to take up this matter since the House apparently will not accept a single package deal for Alaska and Hawaii.

Both congressmen Engle and Jackson are on record for Hawaiian statehood, but both are adherents to that Democratic thinking which insists that the only way in which GOP votes for Alaska statehood can be insured is by combining the aspirations of both areas together in a single package deal and serving it up on a both or none proposition.

As practical politicians, they both realize that the Democrats alone do not have the necessary votes to assure Alaska statehood, since the hard-core opposition to statehood for both territories comes from their own southern colleagues; accordingly, they recognize the need for substantial GOP support if Alaska too is to gain statehood.

As long as they are not confident of sufficient GOP votes to present Alaska with statehood, they will continue to insist upon a package combination as the only means of possibly rallying sufficient Republican support for the Northern Territory on the theory that enough Republicans may want to grant statehood to Hawaii to also provide Alaska with the same status at the same time.

Thus far, their strategy of tying the two remaining territories together has not resulted in statehood for either or both regions; rather, it has resulted in pooling the votes of those opposed to statehood for either of the territories with those opposed to both.

Hawaii, traditionally, is Republican in its political outlook, while Alaska is just as traditionally Democratic; though at the present time, both of the Hawaii assemblies are controlled by the Democrats and the last Alaska legislature prior to this one was Republican dominated.

The idea of balancing a Republican territory with a Democratic one in order to maintain proportionate representation in the Congress is not a new doctrine, though in the pre-Civil War years it was a device to keep a balance between the so-called "slave" and "free" states.

With the last two Congresses so closely divided, especially in the Senate where a single vote or two decided the majority control, this matter of whether a traditionally Republican or Democratic territory is admitted to the Senate with its two votes is more than of academic interest to the leadership of both political parties.

Since this whole question is one of political expediency, it seems to this observer that the Democrats may well be overlooking a most worthwhile calculated risk; that is, driving through statehood for Hawaii at this time when they are in power and thereby possibly gaining for their party the grateful support for many years to come of the Hawaiian people who have been frustrated for so long in their greatest ambition.

And, at the same time, these Democrats would be furthering the cause of Alaska statehood, for the precedent of granting statehood to non-contiguous areas will have been established.

It is unfortunate from this particular standpoint that the Democratic leaders in both the House and the Senate—Texans Sam Rayburn and Lyndon Johnson, Speaker of the House and Majority Leader, respectively—are opposed to statehood for both territories, while the GOP leader in the House, Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, has expressed himself as believing that Alaska is not yet qualified for statehood.

The GOP leader in the Senate, however, California's William Knowland, is on record for statehood for both territories, either singly or jointly.

Thus, the personal inclinations of the leadership at this time are such that, combined with the political exigencies of the situation as seen by the Committee chairmen involved, no action is likely this year unless it is on a combination bill for both Alaska and Hawaii.

In Ike's Lap

In this context, it becomes clear that the only alternative is some compromise by the President which will enable many Republicans who are presently opposed so much to statehood for Alaska that they voted against the package bill last year to embrace the presidential compromise.

The President's personal prestige is so great, particularly within his own party, that should he either propose or accept a compromise regarding Alaska, without doubt enough Democrats would vote for a combination bill that, with Republican support, statehood for both Alaska and Hawaii would be realized in 1956.

Should the President take such decisive action at this time, it is believed by this observer that, in all probability, the grateful and thus far frustrated voters of both Hawaii and Alaska would be so indebted to the Republicans that they would embrace that party for many decades to come as the party that gave them statehood status.

Last year, it was suggested that the President considered the possibility that certain areas of Alaska might be reserved as military reservations and that only the more populous southern area be provided with statehood.

At that time, such an alternative appeared to be satisfactory to the Democratic leadership interested in the statehood issues and there is no indication that this year they would not likewise look with favor upon such a compromise.

In other words, the fate of statehood for Hawaii, and Alaska, this year depends pretty much upon the President and whether he considers the price he must pay for statehood for Hawaii is too much if Alaska too is included in the bargain.
