

DOCUMENTARY ON NISEI BY CBS-TV SLATED JAN. 31

JACL Collaborates in Production of Story
Dealing with Evacuation

WASHINGTON — A documentary entitled "The Nisei: The Pride and the Shame" will be telecast nationally on The Twentieth Century program by CBS on Sunday, Jan. 31, 1965, the Washington JACL Office learned today.

The documentary deals with the wartime evacuation and its implications for all Americans even today, against the backdrop of the part played by Japanese Americans in that event and thereafter. Three so-called eyewitnesses will be seen and heard on this popular, prize winning, half-hour program. They are Sen. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Mike Masuoka, Washington JACL Representative, and Dr. Eugene Rostow, dean of the Yale University School of Law.

The Twentieth Century series is now in its eighth season on the air. It is produced by Isaac Kleiner, with Burton Benjamin as its executive producer. Sponsored by the Prudential Insurance Company of America, with Walter Cronkite as reporter, the documentary was written by Earle Luby. Original music score for the program was prepared by Glenn Paxton.

JACL Assists in Research

The Washington JACL Office revealed that the National JACL had cooperated with CBS in its research for the past year. It said that Pat Okura of Omaha, immediate past national JACL president, and Mas Satow of San Francisco, national JACL director, together with the Washington JACL Office, had supplied the research staff with information, documents, and other materials.

"Although the Evacuation took place more than 20 years ago, what happened then and what can happen today to American citizens is a very important lesson that no citizen should overlook," Kumeo Yoshinari, national JACL president, declared in Chicago on learning of the telecast date.

"We are confident that CBS has done its usual accurate and perceptive reporting and that its theme will provide Americans with much food for thought."

Altadena heads nat'l

Nisei for Goldwater group

WASHINGTON—Dr. Clifford S. Sato, Hawaiian-born, specialist in chemical research, was appointed National Chairman of Japanese Americans for Goldwater-Miller, R. Clifton White, national director of the Citizens' Committee, announced this past week.

"Dr. Sato is responsible for developing a nationwide organization of Japanese American Independents and Democrats for the Goldwater-Miller ticket, White said.

Sato is also working closely with the co-chairmen of the Citizens' Ethnic Division, actor Caesar Romero and Mrs. Claire Lee Chenault, widow of the late "Flying Tigers" commander; and with Mrs. Colby Bowden.

A member of the American Chemical Society and the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Sato began his science studies at the Mid-Pacific Institute in Honolulu in 1943. He graduated with his B.S. degree in 1951 from the Univ. of Hawaii and in 1955 received his Ph.D. in biochemistry from Michigan State.

For many years Dr. Sato has been associated with research institutes and study groups. From 1955 to 1961, Dr. Sato conducted research on biosynthesis of rubber and pectic substances, mechanism of hormonal control of plant growth and nucleic acid and protein syntheses while affiliated with the California Institute of Technology. For the next two years, he engaged in industrial research development, and production of radioactive biochemicals. In 1963 he joined the Institute of Medical Research of the Huntington Memorial Hospital in Pasadena to research the cause of "otosclerosis," a disease which is the major cause of deafness, in addition to brain metabolism and chemistry research.

An Army Signal Corps veteran of World War II, Dr. Sato lives with his wife and 4-year-old son in Altadena, Calif.

Last June, Sato was among 26 candidates appearing on the Altadena ballot for city incorporation and councilmanic election. The voters defeated the city incorporation measure.

Americanization Class Graduates

DENVER — Thirty-five graduates of the Americanization classes sponsored by the Japanese Assn. of Colorado, were presented diplomas recently by officials of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service here at the Tri-State Buddhist Church.

The classes were taught by Harry G. Matoba, acting president of the Japanese Assn. of Colorado (vice-president succeeding Arthur F. Takamine, president, who recently died), and consisted of aged Issei and recently arrived wives from Japan.

Citizenship classes have been conducted since about June, 1954, and approximately 750 Japanese nationals have been graduated in the six or seven classes conducted by Matoba.

Matoba, board member of the Mile-Hi JACL and Issei Story chairman for the local JACL, figured in the 1953 case before the U.S. District Court for Colorado, testing whether a Japanese alien who had been classified in class V for military service in 1914-18 would be eligible for naturalization as a U.S. citizen. Together with the decision of the San Francisco court before U.S. District Judge Louis E. Goodman in the Kazuichi Tsuji case, the Harry G. Matoba case established that Japanese Issei males were eligible for U.S. citizenship despite their Class V classification during World War I.

8,000 ALIENS WHO SERVED IN U.S. ARMED FORCES MAY BE NATURALIZED

HONOLULU—About 8,000 aliens, most of them Filipinos, may become U.S. citizens as the result of a precedent-setting decision made Oct. 6 by Federal Judge C. Nils Tavares.

Case involved Lazaro Villaneuva Dariano, a native of the Philippine Islands who has been in the U.S. Navy almost 10 years. The judge approved his naturalization petition, although the sailor had never been admitted to the U.S. for permanent residence.

Gary Fujiwara, naturalization examiner for Hawaii, filed a brief with the court urging Dariano's plea for citizenship be granted, noting that the Immigration and Nationality Act provides any alien may be naturalized as long as he served honorably in the U.S. Armed Forces during World War I, World War II or the Korean War.

The act also requires the alien must have been in the United States or its territories upon enlistment. This condition has kept thousands from becoming U.S. citizens. Dariano enlisted in the Navy on Jan. 11, 1955 at Cavite, the Philippines, and reenlisted in 1960 at Norfolk, Va.

For purposes of the Immigration and Nationality Act, the Korean War period starts June 25, 1950.

Ex-Japan diplomat named to Demo campaign group

NEW YORK—Mayor Robert F. Wagner, chairman, All Americans Council of the Democratic National Committee, last week announced the appointment of Shigeo Morita as sub-chairman of the Japanese Division of the State of New York.

Morita was appointed to this position by Taul Watanabe of Los Angeles, who is National Chairman of the Japanese Division of the All Americans Council.

Morita is a special agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Co., serves by appointment of Mayor Wagner as a special advisor to the Consular Corps committee, a director of the Japanese American Assn. in New York, a community and welfare service organization, and was formerly assistant to the Consul-General of Japan in New York.

Morita has been in New York for the past 10 years, and has recently changed his passport from Diplomatic status to permanent resident status.

DEMOCRATS SIT IN DRIVER'S SEAT IN 50th STATE

Sen. Fong, Blaisdell
Stand as Lone Pillars
Among Republicans

BY ALLAN BEEKMAN

(Special to the Pacific Citizen)
HONOLULU — In the few days before election day, there is no doubt that the Democrats occupy the driver's seat in Hawaiian politics. The once-proud Republicans have abdicated. They are disgruntled. Their candidates, when public identification with Barry Goldwater and his policies. They seem to quake at the prospect that Goldwater might come to Hawaii to campaign.

The Democrats are working as a team. Their candidates are proud to say they support Lyndon Johnson and his policies. They have the prestige that comes from being identified with the national administration and from receiving its wholehearted backing.

Nevertheless, amidst the ruin of the Republican Party two stout pillars still stand: Mayor Neal Blaisdell and Senator Hiram Fong. These pillars have no edifice to support, for the Republican Party as an identifiable entity has ceased to exist. The pillars claim the right to continue their present function strictly on the basis of individual merit.

Blaisdell has long been a warm Republican. He has built a political machine that operates independently of the party. Backed by this machine, he is rated a formidable opponent of Masato Doi.

Doi's Strength Weakening

Blaisdell gives the impression of being supremely confident of the outcome of the election. He refuses to debate his adversary. He publicly ignores the charges of Doi, leaving the task of replying to underlings.

Doi's opponent in the primary, Robert Dodge, has finally come round to endorsing Doi for the general election. But Doi's strength is still being dissipated by pockets of resistance — some appearing where they might least be expected to occur.

For example, surveys have shown that the teeth of the people of Hawaii are among the worst in the nation. The teeth of the Nikkei are the worst of those of the people of Hawaii.

As Chairman of the City Council, Doi advocated fluoridation of the water supply as an aid to improving the teeth of Hawaii's youth. On the Japanese language radio programs, Dr. Kikujiro Kondo has vigorously denounced fluoridation. His denunciation has concentrated the attention of the Japanese speaking public on Doi's advocacy of fluoridation.

Doi took to the air to explain his position in a ten minute Japanese language address. He pointed out that Kondo, though having the degree of doctor, is a Doctor of Divinity. Doi suggested that when it comes to fluoridation it is better to rely on the advice of dentists and medical doctors. He also said that as mayor he would be unable to vote on the issue of fluoridation anyway, voting being done by the City Council.

Automatic Approval

In the light of Judge Tavares' ruling, the local Immigration office said it would automatically approve applicants like Dariano's and there would be no need for more individual hearings before a Federal judge.

Dariano was naturalized before Tavares the same day—and all smiles.

No Public Polls

In its Oct. 25 issue, the Honolulu Advertiser endorsed Blaisdell for the mayoralty. Since the Advertiser waited until this late date to issue an endorsement, there is the suspicion that it has done so after consulting a poll, or polls, that indicate Blaisdell to be the probable winner.

No reliable polls have been made public. But in a poll taken at the Univ. of Hawaii, 921 students cast

Tea Garden bonsai to be returned

SAN FRANCISCO — Priceless bonsai plants which were removed from the Japanese Tea Garden in Golden Gate Park during the wartime Evacuation will soon be returned, the Recreation and Park Commission president Walter Haas reported last week.

The plants were purchased by Dr. Hugh M. Fraser of Berkeley for his wife in 1942. Upon her death, she willed them back to the Tea Garden. The commission has expressed delight to have the plants and shrubs returned.

The new collection will be placed in an unlandscaped portion of the garden near the west gate. The garden was developed by Makoto Hagiwara since 1910.

The Japanese Tea garden is now being leased as a concession by the city recreation and park commission. The concession was acquired about 10 years ago by Shota Yasuda, Jackson Hirose and Harold Iwamasa.

Prewar vernacular files loaned to History Project

LOS ANGELES—The bound volumes of the Sacramento Ofu Nippon, from 1909 through 1923, were loaned by Mrs. Shigeki Oka for the Japanese History Project, it was announced this week by Joe Grant Masuoka, project administrator.

Other documents are also being donated by various Issei as the research progresses, he added.

JACLER LOANS OWN OLYMPIC GOLD MEDAL

CINCINNATI — To tie in Olympic Game interest in the H & S Pogue Co. Chrysanthemum Show being held currently at the Arcade, the gold medal won by Yoshi Oyakawa in 1952 at Helsinki is on display.

Oyakawa, who garnered the gold medal in the backstroke event, is teaching high school here and has been active with the Cincinnati JACL, serving on its board this year. The medal was flown here by his parents in Hawaii.

To tie in the Tokyo aspect, Japanese dolls were also loaned by JACL members for display.

Nisei leaders earn decoration for Tokyo Olympics

BY TAMOTSU MURAYAMA

TOKYO — Two Nisei leaders were decorated by the Japanese government with the Fourth Class Order of the Sacred Treasure last week for their outstanding contributions to the success of the Tokyo Olympic Games.

Fred Isamu Wada of Los Angeles and Dr. Katsumi Kometani of Honolulu were conferred the honors at the Education Ministry by Minister Kiichi Aichi. This was the ministry in charge of the Games.

Wada has been known as a great supporter of Japanese Olympic affairs since the war. He invited swimmers Hironoshin Furuhashi and Saito Hashizume to compete in America. Furuhashi, after breaking world records, was nicknamed the "Flying Fish from Fujiyama".

Raised Morale

Furuhashi's feats contributed to raising the morale of the Japanese, victims of many years of war.

Wada virtually secured the 1964 Games for Tokyo almost single-handedly when he traveled through the Latin American countries on his way to attend the International Olympic Committee meeting in Berlin. He is also credited for paving the way for Mexico City to have the Games in 1968.

Wada is the first Mainland Nisei to be decorated by the Emperor. Dr. Kometani has made similar contributions to Japanese sports since prewar days.

"This honor conferred upon me by the Emperor of Japan is a very high honor for the people of Hawaii. Its recognition given to Hawaii and its community for the part they played recognizes the importance of sports as a channel of bringing world peace and better understanding among all people," Dr. Kometani said.

Minister Aichi praised the two Nisei as real "onjin" of Japan. "Japan owes them for what we have done here," he added. Meanwhile, Gov. Ryotaro Azuma of Tokyo stated that without the Nisei leaders, there would be no Tokyo Olympics. "Eleven million Tokyo citizens are truly grateful," he said.

1965 Nisei Week chairman selected

LOS ANGELES — The 25th annual Nisei Week Festival will be held from Saturday, Aug. 14, through Sunday, Aug. 22, 1965, with Mitsuhiko Shimizu, proprietor of Asahi Shoes and Dry Goods, as chairman.

Announcement of the new Festival Board and dates was made last week. Shimizu was the first president of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce of Southern California after the war and has been in business in L.A. since prewar. He is also a Downtown L.A. 1000 Clubber.

On the Festival Board are: Koshio Torii, Tad Ikemoto, v.p.; Roy Hoshizaki, Frank Hirohata, treasurer; Norikazu Oka, Ed Matsuda, auditors.

New Mexico Nisei speaks at United Nations fete

ALBUQUERQUE — Mrs. Ruth Hashimoto, New Mexico state president for United Nations Assn. of the United States of America, Inc., addressed the Lubbock (Tex.) Council for the United Nations at their dinner Oct. 23.

She spoke on the United Nations as "indispensable instrument for international cooperation", spotlighting its role behind the scenes in promoting social and economic welfare and in international cooperation in outer space.

The organization was recently renamed when the American Assn. for the United Nations and the U.S. Committee for the United Nations were merged.

Mrs. Hashimoto is an active 1000 Clubber.

Nisei favoring Prop. 14 are 'misguided' says Enomoto

TRACY — Making his final statement before Californians vote Tuesday, statewide chairman of Japanese Americans Against Prop. 14, Jerry Enomoto, called Nisei favoring the proposition, "in spite of all our efforts... misguided individuals, who seem determined to prefer darkness to light."

One Nisei he referred to in the statement was Richard H. Iwata, MD, of Los Angeles whose TV commercials for Prop. 14 have appeared in Central and Southern California and who subsequently released a fuller explanation last week to the Kashi Manichi.

"He has every right to do this and I trust that he will be tolerant of the blunt response to his views," Enomoto said.

Countering Dr. Iwata's claim that "a favorable vote on Prop. 14 will restore to the individual citizen certain basic human rights which American has long cherished since its foundation," Enomoto commented,

"No individual citizen in California has been deprived of anything except the basic right to discriminate against people on the basis of race, religion or ancestry in housing."

CREA Myth

Enomoto denied that the Rumford Fair Housing Act was an "unwarranted seizure of property" as Dr. Iwata asserted. "By playing the tune of the California Real Estate Assn., he is doing his bit to perpetuate a myth. In fact, it is worse than that because it threatens to influence unwary voters to be a party to legalizing the hoax (that is Prop. 14)," Enomoto added.

Dr. Iwata, as a Nisei, declared he felt qualified to know what it meant to be discriminated racially and is personally offended by it. "Yet, I feel that the power to discriminate is a basic human right and that a citizen should not relinquish this right to the state without losing his own freedom."

To which Enomoto declared, "He is not alone on Nisei being outraged and knowing racial discrimination first hand. But he is alone when he says he doesn't like to be discriminated against while reserving the 'right' to discriminate against others."

The analogies which Dr. Iwata used to explain the "right to discriminate"—in the choice of the community in which to live, the college, the car and friends—was regarded as "an insult to our intelligence" by Enomoto, who added that "these choices were not made on the basis of racial, religious or ethnic bigotry."

Broad Outlook

When Dr. Iwata said, "Freedom must come only when we have a broad outlook to what freedom is," Enomoto agreed. But when it includes racial, religious and ethnic discrimination, "the outlook is too broad," Enomoto continued.

Dr. Iwata then asked, "Because a newspaper writes contrary to the Nisei, are we to abolish freedom of the press?" Enomoto replied, "No one advocates abolishing freedom of the press or speech. He is being ridiculous when he says that."

Dr. Iwata also asked, "Because a home owner does not rent or sell to the Nisei, are we to abolish the freedom of property?"

Enomoto's answer: "If a homeowner does not rent or sell to the Nisei, we don't advocate abolishing freedom of property." However if he does this solely on the basis of race, religion or ancestry, I do claim my right to the recourse of legal remedy, something that Prop. 14 if passed will deny me.

"Laws are not only compulsion; they are educational. Sometimes they are the only media that educate some elements in our country."

Lesson from Experience

While the sentiments of Dr. Iwata that "anti-discrimination must come from within the hearts of individuals" were regarded as laudable by Enomoto, he noted that "experiences should tell us by now that human frailties are such that we cannot afford to wait for the 'milk of human kindness' alone, lest many of us die of malnutrition in the meantime."

Enomoto pictured the Nisei in favor of Prop. 14, now that Japanese Americans "have it made, as wanting to reserve the right to make it tough on others."

In closing, Enomoto quoted a fellow JACLer, George Matsumoto who eluded a "No on 14" rally in Stockton last week with:

"Being afraid of darkness is understandable. The real tragedy is when men are afraid of the light."

NEWCOMER BIDS FOR OREGON COUNTY POSITION

WHEELER, Ore.—C. Ernest Iseri, Samsel trailer camp operator here, is campaigning for a seat as Tillamook county commissioner. He is the son of the late Dr. Walter K. and Florence Iseri of Los Angeles.

In business here since early 1963, Iseri is on the Republican ticket. He is married to the former Kit Takemoto and they have four children: Gregory 12, Douglas 9, Cheryl 7 and Jorday 4. His mother is a member of the Hollywood JACL.

Local school boards still retain power to district zones, Supreme Court decides

WASHINGTON — The drawing of public school districts — whether they follow neighborhood color lines or cut across them to promote racial balance—was again left to local school boards to decide by the U.S. Supreme Court this past week.

The court declined to review a decision allowing the New York City board of education to minimize racial imbalance in zoning a new school. The New York Court of Appeals last May ruled that the board "may (not must)" zone a school district so as to bring a student body into racial balance.

The case arose in New York City—where white parents of Junior High School No. 275 recently protested a token school integration plan with a two-day boycott.

Parents of two white children in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn went to court to contest districting for a new junior high school whose attendance zone was laid out to include an initial student population, one-third Negro, one-third Puerto Rican and one-third other white. The parents said they were victims of a "political compromise."

The New York court ruled, however, that neither "an affirmative constitutional obligation... to reduce de facto segregation," nor "the issue of busing" was involved. It let the district stand and the case went to the U.S. court.

The action affirming the New York decision by the U.S. Supreme Court follows a similar ruling sanctioning a local district pattern in Gary, Ind. In that case the court let stand an Indiana ruling that a school board is not required to transfer children to achieve racial balance resulting from neighborhood patterns.

The Washington JACL Office noted that the decision is considered one of the most significant on the general problem of "de facto school segregation."

While the court's refusal to review a case does not ordinarily signify its approval or disapproval, the two actions (New York and Indiana cases) fall into a pattern that may indicate the tendency of the court's thinking.

A serious disparity was noted among Mexican Americans, however, in that 11.5 pct. of the city's population was Spanish-speaking and only 2.2 pct. of them were employed as teachers. The Negro teaching force was 13.3 pct. as compared with 14 pct. in population.

The district is the second largest in the U.S. with nearly 534,000 pupils and 28,000 employees. The FEPC investigation was requested by the United Civil Rights Committee to survey the distribution of minority employees in the district.

Calif. FEPC finds no Oriental teacher problem

LOS ANGELES — There appears to be no serious employment problem of Oriental teachers in the Los Angeles Unified School District, according to the California Fair Employment Practices Commission, and there is no serious disparity in the proportion between the teachers and students of Oriental ancestry.

The FEPC had conducted an ethnic survey with the cooperation of the school system and found that existing problems in the employment of Negro teachers were principally concerned with concentration in certain schools and areas rather than with the opportunity to be hired.

A serious disparity was noted among Mexican Americans, however, in that 11.5 pct. of the city's population was Spanish-speaking and only 2.2 pct. of them were employed as teachers. The Negro teaching force was 13.3 pct. as compared with 14 pct. in population.

Sen. Kuchel urges Californians not to dignify bias

WASHINGTON — Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R-Calif.) Sunday urged a "No" vote on Prop. 14 which "seeks unconstitutionally to bypass the U.S. Constitution which courageously and correctly sets forth the principle of 'equal protection of the laws' for every citizen."

Noting that Prop. 14 is a proposal to repeal some, but not all, of the Rumford Act, the senior California senator warned that Prop. 14, if passed, would render unenforceable all existing laws, state and local dealing with equality of opportunity in housing.

As a lawyer, Sen. Kuchel believed "Prop. 14 would create tremendous confusion with respect to real estate transactions in California and the legal obligations between the buyer and seller of property."

As a U.S. senator, he feared Prop. 14 "would endanger maximum participation by Californians in the benefits of federal housing and financing laws."

Basic Reason

"But most important of all, and simply as an American, I do not want California to dignify discrimination, to encourage tolerance, nor mock the American Constitution and the American conscience. Surely, this is a solemn issue of morality," Kuchel declared.

The senator also stated the effect of Prop. 14 "represents the very opposite of U.S. policy on non-discrimination" as set forth by the 88th Congress in the enactment of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"Passage of this law will help America set her own house in order, as we strive to achieve domestic tranquility among our people," the Republican legislator added. "Californians, to their infinite credit, have long approved a similar policy of non-discrimination."

S.F. Nisei Republicans support Chinese American

SAN FRANCISCO — The Japanese American Republican Assembly has endorsed Earl S. Louie, candidate for the 20th Assembly District seat, in the Nov. 3 elections. He is the first Chinese American to run for an elective state office.

K. Himeo Tsunomiya heads the Japanese American Committee for Earl Louie.

A MOST SIGNIFICANT PRIVILEGE

After one considers the 500-year history of suffrage as we know it in America, one might suppose it was our most valued privilege. It was the common conception until the 1920 presidential election, when only about half of the number of qualified voters had cast their ballot—and this on the eve when women gained the right to vote. That was the campaign when Wilson asked for a "solemn referendum" on the League of Nations. During the critical Civil War and Reconstruction periods, the percentage was about 85 per cent of the electorate.

The "vanishing voter" was a hot topic during the 1920s in both political parties. Slogans were "vote as you please, but vote." By the 1932 election, the percentage was back in the 60s where it has since remained—though Prof. William G. Andrews in a New York Times magazine article recently points out that in 1960, the percentage was 85.3 per cent of "registered" voters. The Congressional Quarterly statistics show that 63.8 per cent—an all-time record—of the "eligible" voters went to the polls in 1960.

This year, it's the "silent vote" so far as the poll takers are concerned. The enthusiastic Johnson and Goldwater supporters do tell their choices but how many aren't saying? No one knows how big it is. However, some are disaffected with both of the leading presidential candidates and may tend to stay away from the polls altogether. Some may go and then refrain from voting for either candidate when one has no confidence in either in the belief that by voting, more harm is done; by not voting, the least would be to fail to do some good. . . . Perhaps some statisticians may total these "blanks" or absentions and use the evidence as a lack of confidence in one candidate or the other.

But no person should be so disaffected toward the ballot itself for many other issues and candidates appear on the same ballot. In California, JACL has been encouraging the "No" vote on Proposition 14. There are important choices for senators and congressmen, for state and local officials. By going to the polls next Tuesday, a citizen will be exercising the most rich and significant privilege in a free society.

As an American political basic, the right of franchise dates back to the English kings of the Middle Ages from whom derived the rights of voting and holding office. Chart-ers were granted to municipalities, entitling them to choose their own officers and representatives to the parliament. In this early period, parliament sat for the purpose of giving popular consent to the levying of taxes. Of course, the king wanted a docile body but the property owners wanted, if not altogether a reluctant body, members who could insist on being shown very good reasons for the levy. The King wanted members who would not themselves feel the weight of property taxation — usually members representing the counties.

By the time the American colonies were organized, voting was limited to "men of substance"—those owning land and receiving from it an annual income equivalent in modern times to about $200. Women, minors, paupers and the insane had no vote. Catholics were unable to vote except in Pennsylvania and South Carolina during the colonial period. It was a period when the franchise was limited to a small minority — a constituency representing about 12 per cent of the whole population . . . today, it is about 50 per cent and nearly 90 per cent of that number (including the women who gained their rights in 1920) is expected to vote next Tuesday.

The religious requirements for suffrage practically disappeared before the Revolution. Land-owning and tax-paying qualifications, however, remained. The propertied class fought hard to prevent extension of voting rights though by 1860, tax-paying qualifications were all but eliminated.

Opening of the West and the great migrations of the 1840s from Germany and Ireland expanded the number of voters. In the West, where settlers were strongly desired, the requirements for citizenships were relaxed to admit "declarants"—persons who filed their intentions to become citizens upon fulfillment of their residency requirement. And the West also produced a large class of people who owned no land or taxable property. But in the East, where new immigrants were grouping in the large cities, literacy tests were proposed and adopted.

In 1870, the 15th Amendment was ratified to give the Negroes the right to vote, although in the New England states, there was unlimited Negro suffrage and in New York, the very few Negroes possessing land worth $250 a year were able to vote. Reasons for this amendment may not be as idealistic as it seems on the face for historians say the amendment was adopted because Northern leaders wrongly held the southern white man couldn't be trusted and the Negro vote was needed to keep the South in the Union.

It wasn't long before the South proceeded to eliminate the Negro vote through stringent residence, poll-tax and registration (with literacy) requirements.

Today, Negro voting rights have been secured in the 1964 Civil Rights Act; the poll tax was eliminated by the 24th Amendment.

Cause boosted

Editor:

Your special issue of the Pacific Citizen on No on Prop. 14 was admirable. My daughter, Pat Kamb (Okamoto before adoption by Mr. Kamb) is active in the Young Democrats group in Malibu and has been out every weekend, first to register Democrats who have not registered and the last few weeks has gone door to door to get people in the area to attend neighborhood coffee klatches to enlighten electorates regarding Prop. 14. This was in Santa Monica and Malibu where there are more registered Republicans than Democrats.

After encountering paranoia and empathy, she had told me that she was really discouraged and would not go out again.

I was given your paper by Mrs. William Zaima who had attended the meeting at the Union Church and showed this issue to Pat. After reading it she was elated and decided that what she thought was a hopeless cause was not so. She will work again until election.

Unless one lives in an area such as the one we live in, it is difficult to understand how much prejudice exists.

I am handing your copy to the Malibu Democratic Headquarters to let them know that others are as concerned. This will give them the additional boost they need until Nov. 3.

JACL and JACLers

Editor:

I read the article "Unauthorized use of JACL Name by Nisei for Goldwater Rapped" in the Nichi Bei Times (See PC Oct. 23), and it made me sick. Just because the great Daniel Inouye brought it to (Mike) Masaoka's attention—all this fuss is being made. If it was for Johnson, I suppose it wouldn't have made a particle of difference.

I believe Dr. (Tetsuro) Tanabe had every right in asking for contributions toward Senator Goldwater's campaign, after all he will be our President, if elected.

We Nisei in California were asked for contributions for Senator Inouye, a Senator from Hawaii—he doesn't represent California. At the present time JACL is conducting a drive for Spark Matsunaga—he doesn't represent California either—far from it!! Just because he's a Nisei we are to support him, even though he cut the California farmers' throats. We are to contribute to his campaign when he was so thrilled to have played such an important part in eliminating the Bracero Act.

If JACL is such a non-partisan organization—how come all these contribution drives for these Democrats!! I think the policies and politics of the JACL organization these days leave much to be desired.

LORRAINE KOMATSUBARA
Yuba City, Calif.

(A careful distinction needs to be made. JACL is not conducting any fund-raising campaigns for any political candidate; it never has. JACLers, on the other hand, as responsible citizens are being counted publicly to support their particular candidates—be they Republican or Democrat.—Editor.)

Sparky Pleased

Editor:

It has been a great source of encouragement for me in my campaign for reelection to the United States House of Representatives to find that there are so many members of the JACL who without solicitation on my part have voluntarily formed committees throughout the United States to lend me assistance. It is unfortunate that a campaign costs a lot of money which constitutes one of the biggest headaches of a candidate. JACL volunteers have helped me immeasurably. What has pleased me most is that contributions have been made by total strangers who have placed their own economic advantages in subservience to the philosophy they know I represent.

As a member of the JACL myself, I am extremely grateful at the spontaneity of the support which has come from fellow JACLers. Through your column may I express my sincere gratitude to all who have helped me to make my bid for reelection less burdensome. In all that I do I shall endeavor to uphold the favorable image of the Japanese American which has emerged since World War II.

Goldwater Leaflet

Editor:

Referring to the Goldwater leaflet case, if JACL is used on the leaflet as an indication of endorsement by the JACL as an organization, then, it is fully unjustified and is in error for doing so, since the JACL as an organization is a non-partisan organization as specified in the JACL Constitution. However, if the word, "JACL", happens to be used referring to a man who is so happened to be a recipient of the JACL award and who is actively supporting Goldwater for President, then, this is not in error. All in all I cannot get into this issue of right and wrong without having the leaflet on hand to make a proper comment.

But, there is another issue all Nisei must take into consideration in reference to support a political candidate of another State who so happens to be a member of same ancestry. I personally do not oppose this man from Hawaii running for U.S. Congressman. I am proud of the fact that he is running. However, I do not condone this practice of individual support by the people to a man not representing his or her own state. I would rather support the National Organization, who in turn will help the candidate win his or her election.

Let us not go back to old ways of this Nihonjin-Doshi approach. Let us support the political party of your choice on a national scale. What would happen if the Republican party candidate is of Japanese ancestry, who would run against Democratic party candidate, who is of Japanese ancestry? Aren't we going to vote for the party of your choice, then? Helping hand is good, but helping solely because of his own ancestry is not good in the interest of good American citizenship.

Thus, as a true Republican believing in non-conformity toward strengthening of individuality, I support the party as a national sustaining member of the Republican Party, member of the Michigan State Republican Party, member of the Republican Congressional Committee (Second District of Michigan), supporting the Republican Congressional Committee, and supporting the local candidates, particularly the governor and state senator financially.

Now the support of Vote No for Prop. 14 is different. Since this is an issue that one votes for.

November 3 Elections

LOS ANGELES — Next Tuesday, Nov. 3, more than 70 million Americans are expected to go to the polls in what has often been described as perhaps the most important election since the end of World War II. This is supposed to be so because of the basic issue differences between the two party standard bearers, the personalities of the candidates for the presidency and vice presidency, and the grave international and domestic challenges of the times.

As of this writing, it appears that the Democrats, with their platform of peace, progress, and prosperity directed toward the Great Society, will not only remain in the White House but also retain control of both the Senate and the House in the Congress. If this estimate proves accurate, then those of Japanese ancestry should have relatively ready access to not only the Executive but also the Legislative branches of Government.

In addition to electing national, congressional, state, and local officials, the voters are being called upon to pass on 338 different state propositions on the ballots in 39 states, not to mention perhaps several times that many local issues in most of the states. Georgia leads with 117 proposals for its citizens to determine, with Louisiana next with 41, and California third with 17.

No proposition on any ballot, however, has more significance to those of Japanese ancestry than Prop. 14, on the California ballot, which is a throwback to the era of racism and jingoism in the Golden State.

And yet, though it has evoked the most controversy and the most discussion, it appears as we move through the state as a part of JACL's campaign against Prop. 14, there still remains much confusion about the precise meaning of Prop. 14 and its objectives and implications. Much of this is due to the clever and misleading language of the Proposition itself, as well as to the type of campaign being carried on in its behalf.

To the uninitiated, as it was deliberately calculated by its advocates to do, a quick reading of Prop. 14 suggests that it is a forthright and meaningful civil rights, of human dignity measure.

As most Americans of Japanese ancestry know, however, its goals are segregation and humiliation.

If any voter doubts this evaluation, simply look at the roster of those who support Prop. 14 and the roll of honor of those who oppose it.

Its proponents number those individuals and organizations in California whose entire history is one of seeking racial discrimination in some form or another against one group or another. The actual sponsors of Prop. 14 is the California Real Estate Assn., which has been about as anti-Japanese as any organization in the United States. From before the turn of the century, it and its predecessor groups, have not only tried to secure legal restrictions against the Japanese but also have incited public opinion against the Japanese. A great deal of the credit for such infamous anti-Japanese activities as the alien land law, the Japanese Exclusion Act, the wartime Evacuation, and the postwar hostility to the return of the evacuees to California can be attributed to the CREA and its associated members.

On the other hand, those who oppose Prop. 14 are those who fought against the bigotry and the intolerance that the CREA and others, over the decades, have inflicted upon those of Japanese ancestry, the men and women of goodwill, the churches, the civic organizations, etc. Those who believe in human decency and equality of opportunity are all enrolled on the side of the opponents of Prop. 14.

Should not such a simple and easy comparison be sufficient to persuade all voters to vote in the negative?

The smear campaign of the Prop. 14 endorsers appeals to the so-called freedom to sell to any person, in the seller's "absolute discretion".

They ignore the freedom of individuals to acquire property, which is guaranteed in the Constitution of the State of California, a "right" which is at least equal to the "right" to freedom to sell property, for without the ability to acquire, one cannot dispose of property.

Japanese Americans should not forget that the alien land law was written as a constitutional amendment as a prohibition against the "right" and the "freedom" of "aliens ineligible to citizenship" to acquire property, and that it took more than 40 years before that constitutional provision was nullified by federal law.

Prop. 14 is also a constitutional amendment.

But, it goes much further than the alien land law constitutional amendment. It takes away from aliens and citizens alike, including those of the white majority, the "right" and "freedom" to acquire property, except and unless the seller, in his "absolute discretion", happens to "like" that particular individual.

Its passage will result in "whites only", "no Japanese", etc., signs and advertisements once again in real estate publicity.

Prop. 14, as brother Tad tells me, recognizes that there is a housing problem. Then, it provides that no one can do anything about it. And, in a nut shell, that's about the size and shape of Prop. 14.

Once approved, it denies the state legislature the authority to do anything about fair housing. It prohibits counties and cities that might have special housing problems from doing anything about such problems. It even goes so far as to prevent the courts from passing judgment on any housing matters.

Prop. 14, if related to crimes on the streets, for instance, recognizes that there is a problem, but would prevent the police or any other lawful agency from doing anything to protect the individual and the public.

What a way to solve a problem, especially one as important as fair housing? Write a specific prohibition against any action by any one into the state constitution, so that the problem cannot be resolved through constructive action by responsible agencies.

In the past several weeks and months, so many arguments and appeals have been made against Prop. 14 by responsible men and organizations of goodwill and decency that there is no need to repeat or summarize all of them at this late date.

Suffice it to say that no American citizen of Japanese ancestry should be able to vote any way but "NO" on Prop. 14 next Tuesday, Nov. 3.

To vote "Yes" would be to deny his birthright, his history, his conscience, and the future for himself and his children.

Statement of Sen. Kuchel in Opposition to Prop. 14

(Following is the text of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel statement in opposition to California's Prop. 14 on the November ballot.)

Washington

The last California legislature has enacted a statute—the Rumford Act—dealing with the subject of fair housing. The law is restricted to single family dwellings which have been publicly financed or assisted, and to all multiple dwellings of three or more units. It recognizes that the owners of such properties have the right to refuse to sell or lease for any reasons, other than race, color, religion, national origin, or ancestry. The legislature next year may amend it, or modify it, or repeal it, or let it stand, as a majority of the members of each house may determine.

Some people then sought, by petition, to refer this statute to the people by the process of referendum. They failed. Thereafter, an attempt was made, successfully, to qualify a proposed initiative which would add a new section to the California Constitution. This proposal—Prop. 14—would repeal some, but not all, of the Rumford Act, but it would do far more. It would, if approved by the electorate, render unenforceable all existing laws, state and local, dealing with equality of opportunity in housing. It would abruptly take away from the California legislature and from local government, city and county, as well, all authority to deal with the subject of decency and fairness in real estate transactions, except in the case of eminent domain proceedings and transient hotel-motel lodgings.

Diversity Lends Strength

The population of the United States is made up of many kinds of people, of diverse racial strains and divergent religions. It has always been so from the time of the first colonists. My own view is that our heterogeneous population has lent strength and vigor to our republic. Our Declaration of Independence proudly proclaims that "all men are created equal." Our country has grown to greatness by constantly striving to attain equal treatment under law for all our citizens, rich or poor, high or low, Christian or Jew, black or white. Thus, unequal treatment, based solely on a citizen's race, color, religion, national origin, or ancestry, is repugnant to our historic concept of freedom.

The greatest domestic accomplishment of the 88th Congress, in my opinion, was the enactment of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It was in the tradition of our historic American concept. Congress sought to fulfill the mandate of the Constitution and, as a matter of both conscience and law, to provide that in voting, public accommodations, public facilities, education, various federal programs, and job opportunities related to interstate commerce, there shall be equal opportunity for all our citizens regardless of their race, color, religion, or national origin. This Act was clearly in accord with the powers of Congress to regulate commerce, to prohibit states from denying to their citizens the equal protection of the laws, and to prevent denial of the right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. The passage of this law will help America set her own house in order, as we strive to achieve domestic tranquility among our people.

California in Forefront

Californians, to their infinite credit, have long approved a similar policy of nondiscrimination. Our state first enacted a law on March 13, 1897 providing equal treatment for all citizens in public accommodations. Over the years, our state has been in the forefront in advancing legislation so that people are treated as people, not as separate, differentiated categories.

Why should the people of California now take a long step backwards by writing into our State Constitution a virtually unchallengeable authority to practice racial or religious bigotry in real estate transactions within our state? It undermines the good works which have been achieved in the elimination of needless and damaging discriminatory practices. It makes a mockery of the American concept of fair play. It repudiates our deep religious heritage of tolerance by which each of us seeks to be judged on the basis of our own competence and capacity, not because of our race, our faith, or the country from which we or our ancestors may have come. It would be well for all of us to recall that we, aside from our indigenous Indians, are a nation of immigrants ourselves. We should ponder also, why we or our ancestors came to this land of ours.

Views on Prop. 14

Prop. 14, in my view, seeks unconstitutionally to bypass the United States Constitution which courageously and correctly sets forth the principle of "equal protection of the laws" for every citizen.

By establishing a California policy of discrimination in real estate sales, Prop. 14 would purport to repudiate the Federal Constitution and many federal statutes. It would undermine the best that is in each of us. Racial bigotry and religious intolerance have never marked a very auspicious milestone in the progress of mankind.

Difficulties would also arise, by Prop. 14, among Californians seeking FHA home financing assistance, which is based on the federal rule of nondiscrimination. In the area of urban renewal projects, Prop. 14, by apparently preventing local agencies from acting at all regarding discrimination, could completely preclude FHA guarantees to California communities.

As a lawyer, I believe Prop. 14 would create tremendous confusion with respect to real estate transactions in California and the legal obligations between the buyer and seller of property.

As a United States Senator, I fear that Prop. 14 would endanger maximum participation by Californians in the benefits of federal housing and financing laws.

But, most important of all, and simply as an American, I do not want California to dignify discrimination, nor encourage intolerance, nor mock the American Constitution and the American conscience.

Surely, this is a solemn issue of morality. I urge a "No" vote on Prop. 14.

In the national race, the Advertiser endorses Lyndon Johnson, Hiram Fong, and Sparky Matsunaga. It takes no position on the contest for the second House seat. Patsy Takemoto Mink is the Democratic nominee for the second House seat and seems to have the edge. Matsunaga is practically conceded to have won reelection. After a poor showing in the primary, Hiram Fong is conducting a vigorous campaign against his sharp-tongued adversary Tom Gill. Fong refuses to debate, but he has been running newspaper ads in which he refers to Gill's charges of neglect of the public interest as "lies."

Time may tell whether this kind of campaigning is advancing the cause of Fong. The public may interpret Fong's vituperation as emanating from panic and personal pique.

Fong may unwittingly be campaigning for, instead of against, his cunning adversary.

HONOLULU — State Sen. Patsy Mink's headquarters said two West Coast organizations have endorsed her campaign for the U.S. House. One was the Sunset Parkside Democratic Club board of directors and the Golden Gate Business and Professional Women's Club, both in San Francisco.

Vagaries

Clear-Cut Choice

TUESDAY'S elections are the first in many years—not since 1944 in California, perhaps—in which American voters of Japanese ancestry have had such a clear-cut choice involving their welfare as citizens of the republic.

Next Tuesday the matter of party designations should be blurred for most Nisei. The reason is that a great number of Nisei Republicans will be supporting Lyndon Johnson, along with Nisei Democrats. This choice has been forced upon Nisei in the GOP because of Barry Goldwater's record of ambiguity regarding the citizen rights of non-white Americans as well as his consistent voting record against civil rights legislation.

No matter how hard Senator Goldwater or his partisans protest their friendship for various minorities, the record remains.

In California, there is a test for candidate's sincerity on civil rights and that is Prop. 14, the proposal to revoke the state's Rumford fair housing law and to prohibit any further anti-discrimination legislation.

Prop. 14, if it passes, will deny access to decent housing for thousands of Nisei as well as for other non-Caucasians since housing bars are most frequently raised on racial grounds.

Although Senator Goldwater has not taken any stand on Prop. 14, the proponents of this racist measure are generally to be found among his supporters. For example, the California Republican Assembly and the United Republicans of California are among those supporting this vicious proposal.

It also is significant that there are many Republicans who oppose Prop. 14, the most prominent of them being Sen. Thomas Kuchel who has urged a "No" vote. Senator Kuchel is not supporting the presidential candidacy of Senator Goldwater.

George Murphy, GOP candidate for U.S. Senator from California, has announced that he is not taking a position on Prop. 14 which is tantamount to giving tacit approval to this notorious proposal. One does not take a neutral position on bigotry.

Among the Democrats, however, Murphy's opponent, Sen. Pierre Salinger, has come out against No. 14, while Governor Pat Brown is waging an all-out battle against the housing initiative. The opponents of No. 14 started out at a disadvantage in fighting the proposal which was supported by the California Real Estate Assn. and early predictions were that it would pass despite the inevitability of a Johnson victory in California.

The governor's efforts and that of the broad lineup of Californians who have become aligned against Prop. 14 is changing the political picture in the state and the outcome Tuesday on this initiative is currently regarded as a tossup. The statewide campaign of JACL chapters and individuals has been matched by similar campaigns by other interested groups.

Prop. 14 is a political instrument of the white backlash. It is aimed directly against Negroes but its effect is equally severe against any American group which is subject to arbitrary discrimination on the basis of race, color or creed.

THIS is an election which the Nisei will support Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey in the national voting, but it should also be remembered that there are Republicans like Senator Kuchel, as well as members of the state legislature, which are actively fighting Prop. 14. These men of conscience, however, are in the far minority of their party and a wholesale change of attitude would be needed before the GOP once again merits the support of the Japanese Americans on a national level. Yet, here again, it should be noted that the present Civil Rights law, which seeks to implement Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, one hundred years after the fact, would not be on the federal statutes today were it not for the support of Senate Republicans marshalled by Senator Everett Dirksen.

IN TERMS of number the Japanese American vote is of significance only in Hawaii, where it constitutes a determining factor, and in certain California areas where it wields sizable influence. In Hawaii, it is a recognized fact that the Nisei vote is preponderantly Democratic—Americans of Japanese ancestry in Hawaii appear to be far more candid about their politics and their status than their counterparts on the mainland.

The way the campaign has gone in the area of race relations, the Democratic ticket of Johnson and Humphrey probably will score the largest ratio of Nisei ballots against the GOP since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt. In California the Democratic party's strong fight against Prop. 14, led by Governor Brown, probably will sway many Nisei votes and the lesson is not entirely lost on Nisei in the other 49 states.

Passage of Prop. 14 may inspire similar legislation in other states. Twenty years ago in California politicians used anti-Japanese racist campaigns in state election campaigns. Most of these racists were defeated and bigotry as a political factor was not raised on a statewide scale until the white backlash of Prop. 14 was placed on the ballot.

Nisei sense of responsibility put to test by Proposition 14 fight, as San Fernando Valley gears for overwhelming 'No' vote

BURBANK—The role of Nisei in the fight to defeat Prop. 14 was succinctly put in an article authored by Mabel Takimoto, San Fernando Valley JACL president, for the Human Relations, a quarterly magazine published here for San Fernando Valley.

"Apart from the mechanics of our fight against Prop. 14, there is the larger question of identity for Japanese Americans," the chapter president declared.

"Now that we have 'almost arrived,' will there be an active concern for the rights of other minorities—or will we identify ourselves with other groups, other causes?"

"It is certainly predictable that as more and more Americans of Japanese descent are accepted in vocations, communities, churches and social life that we will identify ourselves as individuals who just happen to be Japanese."

Tragic Consequences

"It would be tragic if, having gained acceptance, we were to lose our sense of responsibility for not only those who share imperfectly the rights of our society, but also to those whose actions made our progress possible."

Mrs. Takimoto's article related the early experiences of the Nisei who were born at a time when racial discrimination against persons of Japanese ancestry "was the norm."

Individually, the Nisei pressed ahead in the only areas open to them, to be industrious in the few vocations welcoming the Nisei and to press for equality politically through JACL, the article explained.

While Japanese Americans problems have been largely resolved, she reminded that there remains areas of concern "as there always will be for people whose physical characteristics are distinctive from others."

Nisei More Concerned

Mrs. Takimoto said, "It is precisely because our experiences are so fresh in our memories that many Japanese Americans are becoming increasingly active and concerned about Prop. 14 as it affects all Americans."

The article also told of the coordinated efforts of the Japanese Americans Against Prop. 14.

The publication also reported the efforts of local Negro, Mexican Americans, church groups and youth in their drive to secure "No" votes on Prop. 14.

Local political pundits have predicted a "no" vote predominance in San Fernando Valley may be the Soil conservation supervisors hail Nisei farmer for 'pay as you go' practice

BY TOKIE NAKAI
(Special to the Pacific Citizen)

KENT, Wash.—Frank Miyagishi of Kent, was named District Conservation Farmer of the Year recently by King County Soil Conservation District supervisors. He will be honored locally and will be entered for the state honors in Spokane in November.

The hard-working Nisei has built a thriving farm in nine years by following good farming practices, without resorting to government loans. He started out with 19 head of milch cows and now he has 37 Holstein and many young stock.

Following his "pay as you go" plan, Miyagishi built a neat whitewashed brick house where he, his brother and mother live; a barn, silo and milking parlor. He is a member of the White River Valley Civic League (JACL). To be selected as the Soil Conservation Farmer, a farmer must cooperate with the district, and the board of supervisors reviews the way in which he has put in his drainage tiles, seeded grass, etc.

ISSEI PIONEER HEADS RAISIN DAY FESTIVAL

FRESNO — Asataro Sakata, pioneer Issei resident, served as grand marshal of the Raisin Day celebration last week at Biola. Tak Morita, Biola Chamber of Commerce president, was chairman of the festivities, which included a parade and a queen.

Sakata, now retired, founded what now is a large scale farming, fruit packing and trucking operation in Biola.

TWO CHECKS PRESENTED BY 'SPARKY'S FRIENDS' TO HAWAII CONGRESSMAN

WASHINGTON — Two "modest checks" have been sent to the Nisei congressman by "Sparky's Friends," the bipartisan Nisei Mainland Committee to Re-elect Matsunaga treasurer, Paul Matsuki, announced this past week. At the same time, he regretted that there has not been a more favorable response from many who directly or indirectly have benefited from activities of the Aloha State lawmaker.

Cut-off date for Mainland contributions is Oct. 31. Checks may be sent to:

Sparky's Friends, Rm. 205, 919-18th St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20006. Mary Toda, secretary, announced Dr. Terrance Toda is chairman of the Seattle area committee, assisted by:

12,000 NISEI REGISTERED VOTERS IN LOS ANGELES URGED TO GO 'NO - 14'

LOS ANGELES — This past week, the Southern California Japanese Americans Against Prop. 14 concluded two huge mailings, urging registered Nisei voters in the Southland to vote "No" on Prop. 14. The mailing committee, chaired by Mrs. Toshi Yoshida, distributed 12,800 copies of the special Oct. 16 issue of the Pacific Citizen and the JACL leaflet.

To secure some 12,000 names of Nisei voters in Los Angeles, the committee went through a great portion of the 12,000 precinct lists made available by the County Registrar of Voters.

The special Oct. 16 PC was also sent to mayors and supervisors in counties with sizeable Japanese American populations, members of the State Board of Education, Fair Employment Practices Commission staff, members and advisory board members, county human relations commissioners and local Californians Against Prop. 14 committees throughout the state, as well as to local Negro press and church groups.

PC's Greatest Press Run

For the PC, the Oct. 16 issue was the biggest single run in its local history—29,000.

The committee met at the Japanese Language and Cultural Center at 12th and Menlo to address the supplemental run of PCs and at the JACL Regional Office to address the leaflets.

In addition to the JACL leaflets and special PC issue, the committee dispatched 2,500 invitations for the Oriental American dinner against Prop. 14 and 2,000 letters in Japanese explaining the "No" stand to naturalized Issei and an appeal to be registered as voters before the Sept. 10 deadline.

Mrs. Yoshida gratefully acknowledged the assistance of following volunteers of the mailing committee:

Masaoka speaks on '14' at San Diego JACL meeting

SAN DIEGO — Mike Masaoka, Washington JACL representative, was guest speaker on Prop. 14 at the Kimball Park Community Center, National City, Joe Miyoshi, chapter president, presided.

Invited as special guests were Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin and San Diego Councilman Tom Hom, first Chinese American elected to public office here.

A Skeleton In The JACL Closet

By Ronald Shiozaki, PSWDC Chairman

Recently JACLers were startled to learn that there were two resignations from our JACL National staff within a week's period. This perplexing and unexpected situation brought about a dramatic and vivid attention to our JACL personnel problem.

Reactions in the Pacific Southwest District among our chapters and members were immediate and poignantly expressive. The PSWDC's spontaneous expressions indicated a tremendous concern over the sudden loss of two highly qualified staff members, and evoked a sudden search for the underlying causes that precipitated such resignations. It was obvious that reasons given, "because of personal reasons", was totally inadequate and unacceptable.

The PSWDC was acutely disturbed by the loss of both staff members, but quite understandably, more upset about the loss of the PSWDC's highly competent regional director since he was the person that we all knew well and was our area man.

The profuse number of communications to our national president and to the national headquarters immediately followed after the news of the regional director's resignation became public knowledge.

The requests were unanimous in asking that every possible effort be made to persuade our director to reconsider his resignation, and that immediate attempts be made, to alleviate any condition that might have caused him to tender such a resignation. As most of the chapters and members in the PSWDC now know, because of the effective work of our PSW regional office advisory committee and our local and national officers, we have been successful, and most fortunately so, to have our PSW director reconsider and he is continuing on and performing in his fine, conscientious and dedicated manner.

The prime purpose of this writing is not to re-discuss what has just transpired, but to re-evaluate the circumstance and conditions that brought about such a situation. We must reappraise our entire personnel structure and find workable solutions to such problems and take steps to avoid similar conditions before they arise. The personnel problem is something that we have quietly stowed away in the dark confines of the National JACL closet.

True, we have a National Personnel Committee which is supposed to have the responsibility of settling grievances, setting salary scale, firing and so forth. The truth of the matter, however, is that it is brought out of the closet, dusted off and ceremoniously displayed only at appropriate intervals, and rubber stamp what has been previously decided. After that back it goes into the closet and is not heard from again until similar approval is needed.

I think it is high time that we give this committee, and I mean from the members and the chapter level, some direction to follow and some indication of what is expected of them. Too long have we tolerated the deplorable sub-standard conditions that we have expected our national officers to work under. Too long have we left in the closet our personnel problems and dismissed the inadequacies of their pay scale and employment conditions that we know exists.

Our JACL organization has always had the good fortune of obtaining highly qualified and dedicated men and they are entitled to a fair living salary with various employment benefits provided by any similar organization.

We are proud of our organization and for the principles for which it represents. We attack with vigor and courage any political or community condition or situation that arises that we feel is detrimental or injurious to us or our government. Then surely we can give some thought and consideration to the inequity problems that exist within our own JACL organization.

I say let's give the National Personnel Committee and our Regional advisory committee some guidance, direct them to reappraise our entire personnel structure, and come up with a realistic program to reevaluate this problem and present remedial recommendations to improve this long neglected condition.

Let's take the committee out of the closet, give it direction, and provide it with the necessary encouragement to do a job that needs immediate attention.

Charles F. Seabrook, 83, dies; was pioneer in frozen foods, paved way for relocation of 2,000 evacuees to east coast

BRIDGETON, N.J. — Charles F. Seabrook, whose early experiments with freezing fresh vegetables helped to change the eating habits of the nation, died Oct. 20 at his home in nearby Upper Deerfield, He was 83.

Surviving are his wife, whom he married in 1905, a daughter and three sons, 14 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Seriously ill and confined to bed for many weeks, his immediate family except for eldest son Bedford, now serving as chief of the Industrial Development Division of the U.S. Mission to Thailand, was present when the farmer-industrialist died.

During World War II, he arranged for more than 2,000 evacuees to leave WRA camps to live and work at Seabrook Farms 4 miles north of Bridgeton. Today, about 500 remain in the area though relatively few now work at the plant.

In Washington, Mike Masopka declared:

"Great credit is due him for his courage and his Americanism in taking the lead to bring out the evacuees. His efforts helped open up the East Coast to evacuee resettlement and helped create public trust in the loyalty of Japanese-Americans."

An Agricultural Expert

Charles Franklin Seabrook was a farmer with a dream. When he took over his family's 60-acre farm near Bridgeton, N.J., he decided to try to expand its produce, overcome its problems and make it a year-round business, rather than a seasonal livelihood.

The dream began in 1930, when Seabrook and his three sons began experimenting with quick-freezing techniques for fresh vegetables. The beginning was crude. They collected some good-looking lima beans grown on the farm and packed them into a wooden box with dried ice.

Some time later, Seabrook returned to the box, took out the lima beans and cooked them. They tasted better than he had expected. He was overwhelmed at the success of the quick-freezing technique, and he realized the market possibilities immediately.

Worked With Birdseye

Working with Clarence Birdseye, Seabrook continued to study and experiment with the problem of packing frozen foods. By 1932, they began marketing vegetables in consumer packs under the Birdseye label.

Seabrook was a farmer at heart as well as in his dreams. When he worked with his father, Albert P. Seabrook, on the family farm in 1912, he took charge of the planting and harvesting. His father handled the sales. By 1920, their farm had increased to 2,000 acres and they were shipping vegetables to commercial markets by the carload.

It was the land that concerned Seabrook. He once said that he regarded the weather as his biggest problem. "It's always too cold or too hot, too dry or too much rain," he said. "Weather is always trying to lick a farmer."

Because of his concern with what his farm looked like and produced, Seabrook pioneered in the development of overhead irrigation. He installed artesian wells to feed the miles of overhead pipe with the water necessary for a portable irrigation system.

He developed assembly-line techniques for food processing and growing and was an early advocate of airplane spraying of crops. In addition, he devised a system of floodlights so that crops could be harvested at night.

At its peak, Seabrook Farms comprised 19,000 acres directly owned and crops from 35,000 acres owned by neighboring farmers.

Seabrook envisioned the large acreage as a site where displaced persons from other countries could thrive.

Evacuees Come

During World War II, he brought 2,000 Japanese who had been evacuated from the West Coast to his farmland. Later, he arranged for 3,000 refugees from Europe, primarily from the Baltic states, to come to this country and live on his farmland.

The postwar period also earned for Seabrook world-wide tribute as a farmer, canner and packer. Fifty-four European technical specialists, brought to the United States under the Marshall Plan, toured his farm. Their reaction was described in a newspaper account this way:

"European technical specialists who toured the vast Seabrook

Farms termed the growth of the system in a single life-time by one man as fantastic."

Yet, there was a period when Seabrook was discouraged by farming. When the fresh vegetable market grew shaky in 1924, he sold the farm and set up the Seabrook International Engineering Corp., to construct highways.

For the next five years, Seabrook built highways in 11 Eastern states and in parts of the Soviet Union. He also built docks at Murmansk on the White Sea, paved streets in Paris and Bepin and surveyed the route of the Volga-Dunay canal.

But, in 1929 he returned to Bridgeton and bought back the farm from the people to whom he had sold it. During this period he and his three sons concentrated on canning food. Later, however, they paid little attention to anything that could not be quick-frozen or dehydrated. The produce was sold under 150 different labels before they added their own "Seabrook Farms" in 1943.

Developed New Goods

Among the products they developed, especially for freezing were a jumbo asparagus with improved color, flavor and tenderness, and a baby lima bean of waxy texture, rather than the mealy type usually found in larger sizes.

In 1950, to dramatize his company's importance in the South Jersey financial picture, Seabrook paid 3,200 employees their wages in 150,000 silver dollars. Merchants in the area keyed sales promotions to "hard money" only, and Seabrook made his point.

Later, the company ran into hard times and Seabrook turned over its management to his son, John. Meanwhile, his stock was placed in a voting trust. This led to a bitter family dispute, which was patched up before court action was necessary.

In 1959, Seabrook Farms was sold to Seaman Brothers, but Seabrook retained ownership of the farm land.

In recent years, he maintained his office in the village of Seabrook.

Seabrook was born on a farm at Beebe's Run near Bridgeton on May 28, 1881, and was introduced to farm work at the age of 5, picking beans at five cents a basket. Through the years which followed he began to develop a loathing for farming; not only the drudgery but also the gamble of depending on unpredictable rainfall.

First Irrigation

As a teenager he heard about a farmer in Denmark who had strung iron pipe with holes in it over a field to get artificial rain. Charles Seabrook installed one line of pipe over a bed of celery plants. It worked. Year after year he added more pipes. Rain or drought his crops flourished. As he and his father profited they paid the money into more land.

In 1952, he received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Ithaca College and in 1955 he received the honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Rutgers.

He had been a member of the Deerfield Presbyterian Church since 1897 and had served as an elder for several years. In 1947 he was instrumental in restoration of the church, which was built in 1771.

egrity and foresight, envisioned the possibility and the potentiality of having an influx of many new races and cultures become a vital part of this community.

"At a time most critical, he paved the way for relocation, and by offering both housing and employment, restored self-respect and faith in mankind to over 2,000 persons of Japanese ancestry who were uprooted from their homes on the West Coast at the outbreak of World War II.

"Those of us who have made New Jersey our permanent home, as well as those who have moved elsewhere, are all indebted to Mr. Seabrook for extending a helping hand when it was greatly needed."

"While words of condolence to Mrs. C.F. Seabrook and the family do not restore the loss of one so dedicated, we take this occasion as a challenge to promote those ideals and traditions which he cherished."

Ph.D. candidate in optometry addresses UC Optometry Alumni Assn. reunion

BERKELEY — Among the speakers addressing the 14th annual reunion of the Univ. of California Optometry Alumni Assn. recently was Dr. Ellen Takahashi of Berkeley, acting assistant professor of optometry.

She spoke on the "Use of Multiple Pinholes in Optometric Practice". Her major interest is visual acuity and binocular vision.

Dr. Takahashi was recently appointed acting assistant professor of U.C. She was an optometrist at Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco for five years before joining the U.C. faculty in 1962.

She recently passed her final examinations for a Ph.D. in optometry and is currently preparing her thesis for the award.

She is the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry M. Takahashi of 1 Vicente Rd., Berkeley. Their other daughter, Mrs. Joyce Doi also is a recipient of a Ph.D., gaining the degree in physical organic chemistry at UCLA in 1960.

Currently she and her husband Dr. Roy Doi and family are in Syracuse, N.Y., where he is associate professor at the Syracuse University.

Dr. Doi, formerly of Loomis and San Francisco, recently received an appointment as assistant professor at the Univ. of California at Davis and will return to California in June.

State nurserymen elect

SACRAMENTO — George Oki of Sacramento, was elected vice president of the California Assn. of Nurserymen at the recent 54th annual convention state-wide organization at Hoberg's Resort.

Oki is a partner of Oki Nursery, Inc., of Sacramento, Northern California's largest wholesale container-grown ornamental nursery. He is also a 1000 Club member of the Sacramento JACL.

Next year's convention will be held in Palm Springs at the Riviera with the Inland Empire chapter as hosts.

Fellowship granted Nisei to study use of new computers

TUCSON.—Dr. I. Roger Yoshino, research specialist with the Univ. of Arizona college of business and public research, is on leave of absence for a year to be spent at Harvard on a National Science Foundation fellowship.

While at Harvard Dr. Yoshino will study the latest developments in research methods and techniques, particularly the use of electronic computers. He will teach one course. He plans to "dive into philosophy" believing that "there needs to be a balance between rapid technological advancement and automation and philosophical concern for human problems."

Dr. Yoshino was an Army intelligence officer in World War II and served in the Far East. He then worked as a government economist and social science research analyst in Washington, Tokyo, and the Philippines before returning to academic work.

He taught at the Univ. of Southern California and Washington State University before joining the Univ. of Arizona faculty in 1958.

For the past year he has conducted studies of mobile home living, retirement, and people and housing.

Third Generation: by Ken Kuroiwa Seikaku o Tsukuru

We are fortunate that we can draw upon our cultural heritage for a concept—I am not sure what this abstraction should be called—which exercised great power over men's minds in days of yore. This power was not exercised subconsciously so much as it was actively sought for; that is to have it was a consciously desired state of being. Although in this country we are geographically far-removed from the main cultural body, it was inevitable that the tradition-minded pioneers from Japan would seek to perpetuate this concept in their succeeding generations. Perhaps in this generation, in this age, however, the distance is not only geographic, but cultural as well. The present trend seems to indicate that in the next generation or two this concept will be but a vague feeling of an approach to life. It will become a passive concept, not an active one.

My father calls it Seikaku—character—and in its entirety the concept is Seikaku o Tsukuru—to build one's character. What has come down through at least our culture is not only this, but the downright importance of having and striving to attain it as well. Seikaku does not merely exist, somewhere, somehow, in this cultural context. It is something that has to be shaped into a work and an instrument of and for the art of living.

In one sense, having character means that one knows his responsibilities and how to deal fairly in everyday matters of social intercourse. Seikaku, however, encompasses more than this alone. It is an active, dynamic approach to life, intended as much for the severest of passages as for the normal.

How does one build and use Seikaku? A single sentence ought to suffice: using adversity to overcome adversity. Publilius Syrus, the slave who gained fame in Rome, uttered a basically similar statement: "Numquam periculum sine periculo vincimus"—we never conquer danger more simply still, is training. Athletic conditioning is to improve performance and lessen the chance of injury in the real game where it counts—endurance and tolerance is the key. A serious injury may be incurred in practice, but that is a necessary risk if there is to be any training at all.

"Thus" is life. Adversity must be met early and at times intentionally even when there is a detour. That we may not be able to cope with the adversity we confront is the risk, but the more serious risk is not conditioning oneself at all. Now, how does one select an adversity of not too great a magnitude and yet which will provide sufficient competition? If I knew that! In short it is "doing things the hard way." The earlier character-building begins, greater becomes the chance that the conditioned person can overcome the adversity. "Because the future does exist, the present is all-important," said Buddha; let us also remember that there is forever a future.

Seikaku o Tsukuru is therefore a conscious effort to relate as much of the whole of life-experience as possible to the growth of the non-physical self and the applications arising therefrom. Each life experience is a valuable lesson. The greater the sphere of experience, the greater the efficiency is in coping with new problems beyond this sphere. It is preparation.

None of this is strange to anyone. If the topic is brought to mind, there is certainly recognition. The critical factor is whether we can convert this passive recognition and knowledge into applications for our own benefit. This is not the selfish motivation for one's own material gain, but rather the seeking of man for ways of self-betterment.

These points I raise to Japanese Americans, for as our name implies, we are the products of two cultures. Americans we are and there is unity in that. But this does not mean sameness, for the incipient American culture is the result of many a hybridization. The hybrid offspring is generally stronger than either parent, and therefore we should not turn our backs on our heritage in the rush to become Americanized. Americanization is also what we too can contribute.

Oliver trophy goes to Glendale athlete

LOS ANGELES—Ted Maneki of Glendale, an all-Foothill League second baseman last year, was selected the outstanding Japanese American high school athlete of the year in Southern California by local Nisei sportswriters.

The athlete is currently at Santa Barbara State College, playing on the frosh football team. He will receive the Nellie G. Oliver Trophy, donated by the Oliviers, one of the oldest Nisei athletic organizations in California.

Maneki is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Satome Maneki, was born in Honolulu but attended grammar and high school here. He was Boys League president, voted outstanding senior athlete at Glendale High, and was coached by former UCLA Roy Vukovich.

THE 1000 Club was initially organized to recruit 1,000 loyal JACLers who would contribute $25 annually for the support of the national organization.

Being Prepared for Dec. 18-25 Issue

Chapter Reports, outlining highlights of the year and detailing the most successful program, are due Nov. 30. Photographs would be most welcome. Suggested length: 1,000 words (Approximately four pages of letterhead size paper, typed double space).

Special Features, which may contribute to the "Issei Story Project," are especially invited. Stories of how the Japanese community started (or disappeared), of how the first Issei pioneers succeeded, of the trials they faced, or of how Nisei came back after evacuation are desirable. Suggested Length: About 2,000 words. Deadline Nov. 30.

Youth groups are invited to submit separate pieces for this year's Holiday Issue.

ST. LOUIS CLUBS WELCOMED, FILL SPECIFIC INTEREST

JACL Newsletter Editorial Explains Success of Groups

ST. LOUIS —Two unique women organizations formed this past year were welcomed in an editorial of the St. Louis JACL Newsletter this month.

They are the Harusame Club, comprised of wives married to servicemen who were stationed in Japan. The other is the Young Wine Club, comprised of young women who married fellows of Japanese ancestry and are interested in learning about Japanese culture, cooking and customs.

The Newsletter editorial feels the groups will endure since they were formed primarily "for fun and fellowship" as other similar interest groups have been.

Since the St. Louis JACL does not aim to fulfill the social interests of the Japanese American community here, except for the July 4 picnic and the October fall festival, the well-organized smaller group activities thrive, the editorial noted.

Specific Interest Groups

Many clubs and specific interest groups within the JACL have been rewarded with enduring enthusiasm," the editorial said. "Camera fans organized in 1955 as still clicking shutters together; JACL bowlers' calendars revolve around the first Saturdays; and who can deny that the Himeode girls (alias Sunrisers) have not fulfilled their function to aim at net scores under 70 in regular week-end meetings?"

Reason may be "we see each other so seldom that familiarity breeds friendship instead of contempt."

St. Louis JACL may be unique, according to the editorial, in that its membership is scattered geographically about the vast metropolitan area. No one section can claim more residents of Japanese ancestry than any other. "It is incidental rather than commonplace to find more than a handful of children of Japanese ancestry at any one school or school district. So scattered are we that even private social cliques are impractical," the editorial explained.

Chance to Assimilate

"Perhaps this involuntary separation is a good thing. Each family has had a chance to assimilate into their own neighborhood and community activities as they have seen fit."

"The widely recognized characteristics of reservation and non-boisterousness of our race have been a distinct asset. Generally speaking, we seem to have fit into most communities with very little difficulty," the editorial added.

Meantime, the St. Louis JACL is pushing its 1965 membership drive: $6 single, $10 couple or $25 for 1000 Club. It hopes to have it concluded by the end of the year.

SPECIAL LIFE membership certificate and pin attachment for the JACL pin are given to 1000 Club Life Members.

NAT'L CONFAB ON CITIZENSHIP GRATIFYING EXPERIENCE TO YOUTH

WASHINGTON — The sending of two youth delegates by JACL to the 19th National Conference on Citizenship, held here Sept. 16-19, was a gratifying experience and lauded by Paul Ishimoto, D.C. JACLer who was an adult representative and voting delegate to the conference.

The youth delegates were Paul's son, Norman Ishimoto, senior at Northwood High (Silver Spring, Md.), and Christopher Ueyehara of Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiroshi Ueyehara and a junior at Westchester High School.

It was the first time that JACL, a charter member of the conference, had sent junior delegates. The conference board expressed the hope that National JACL would continue to send youth delegates to the conference. The youth were welcomed by Earle Hawkins, conference vice-president, and Judge Carl Hyatt, executive secretary who has served without pay for 18 years and retired this year due to his health.

Hata-Nagase sweep Bridge Club honors

SAN FRANCISCO—A large turnout of 48 enthusiasts competed in the second annual San Francisco JACL Open Pairs championships held Oct. 16. Bernard Hata and Magnus Nagase swept the field and dethroned the 1963 champions Will Tsukamoto and Aki Watanabe.

Twenty trophies and prizes were distributed. Eddie Moriguchi was events chairman. The next regular Bridge Club session will be held at the Christ Episcopal Church, Piece and Clay, on Friday, Nov. 20, 8 p.m. The results:

1. Bernard Hata - Magnus Nagase, 148½ pts.; 2. Ed Nagase - Mas Nobuto, 137 pts.; 3. Jeff Fong - Norm Taira, 132½ pts.; 4. Alice Moriguchi - Rosalie Tokunaga, 131 pts.; 5. Will Tsukamoto - Aki Watanabe, 129 pts.; 6. Keiji Shibata - Keiji Taira, 126½ pts.

UCLA professors speaks to JACLers on Prop. 1

LOS ANGELES — Dr. Malcolm Gordon, assistant professor of zoology at UCLA, spoke on the growing recreation needs of Southern California at the West Los Angeles JACL dinner meeting this week.

Active in the Friends of the Santa Monica Mountains State Park, Gordon spoke in support of Prop. 1, the state park and beaches bond issue. "Hopes for a major park in this area are pinned to a 'yes' vote," Gordon pointed out.

Dr. Gordon recently returned from Madagascar where he led an oceanographic expedition studying deep sea life. He was introduced by Mrs. Toy Kanegai, chapter president.

Luncheon for Younger

LOS ANGELES—Mrs. John F. Al-so invited several of her friends at a luncheon to elect Judge Evelle J. Younger for L.A. county district attorney this past week at the Ambassador Hotel.

Bound for Honduras

STOCKTON—Phyllis Doi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Katsumi Doi of Acampo, departed for her U.S. Peace Corps assignment in Honduras this week after a brief vacation.

tion," Prof. Herzeberg declared. If American civilization is to endure, the Rutgers professor cited three spheres of influence:

1—Education. He was appalled by the ignorance of Americans toward government, politics and politicians. He stressed the need for improvement in social studies courses in public schools.

2—Reform of Voting Laws. He quoted President Eisenhower who said "the future of the Republic is in the hands of the American voter". He explained that during the 1960 presidential election, nearly 69 million Americans voted, yet this represented only 63.8 pct. of the eligible voters; whereas the percentage was 90 pct. in Italy, 80 pct. in England and in Germany. He called for reform of American voting laws because millions do not vote simply because of archaic and ponderous election codes. Over 21 million Americans lost their voting rights because they changed residences and he predicted some 15 million Americans would be ineligible to vote in the coming presidential election because of the same technicality.

3—Citizen's Role in U.S. Society. He stated that right to participate in government is extended to everyone and that it was important a tradition be developed to foster this right. America needs men and women who are prepared to give time, effort and devotion to government.

Judge Hyatt's Report

Judge Hyatt remarked in his annual report to the conference that just as the Founding Fathers put aside their prejudices and local interests to produce the U.S. Constitution 177 years ago, Americans can bring unity out of division and help the Nation so that "the least shall be heard and considered side by side with the greatest".

Hyatt stressed the importance of maintaining faith in the American way of life and asked that "we stand together and work together on common problems and objectives".

He repeated President Johnson's message to the conference that "our form of government still stands constantly young and vigorous and ever resolute in its quest for peace, liberty, justice and economic opportunity for all mankind".

President Kennedy was also quoted by Hyatt, noting that every citizen regardless of his interest in politics "holds office"—"every one of us is in a position of responsibility, and in the final analysis, the kind of government we get depends upon how we fulfill these responsibilities."

"We the people are the boss, and we will get the kind of political leadership, be it good or bad, that we demand and deserve."

STATEWIDE ORGANIZATIONS SUPPORT 'YES ON 17' RAILROAD INITIATIVE

SAN FRANCISCO — The importance of Prop. 17, the railroad anti-featherbedding initiative on the November ballot, as a non-partisan economic issue vital to all Californians, was underscored today with announcement of an impressive array of organizational support for the measure.

More than 50 major civic, business and agricultural groups whose activities bear directly upon consumer welfare and over 100 California chambers of commerce have urged a "Yes on 17" vote, reported State Senators Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno) and John F. McCarthy (R-San Rafael), co-chairmen of the public committee backing Prop. 17.

Among the statewide groups endorsing Prop. 17 are:

Agricultural Council of California, Building Contractors Assn. of California, California Farm Bureau Federation, California Grocers Assn., California Manufacturers Assn., California State Chamber of Commerce, California Trucking Assn., California Water Assn., California Wool Growers Assn., Engineering and Grading Contractors Assn. of California, Printing Industries Assn. and Western Oil and Gas Assn. Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, Fresno and San Diego Chambers of commerce.

CHAPTER CLINIC

Election Day officially terminates the countless number of hours given by many throughout the State of California in their intense effort to realize the defeat of Prop. 13.

PSW JACLers will move to another target date of Nov. 8 for the coming Santa Barbara Chapter Clinic. Because of the importance directed to the Prop. 13 campaign, we were forced to sacrifice the usual early preparations for our Chapter Clinic.

Last Friday, together with PSW Chairman Ron Shiozaki, we were able to meet with Mrs. Jane Uyesaka, Mrs. Caesar Uyesaka and Mike Hide of the Santa Barbara host chapter. We returned home feeling assured that another terrific Chapter Clinic was in the making.

Will PSW readers, please take note? The clinic will be held at the Santa Barbara Inn. Those traveling north on US 101 to Santa Barbara, get off at Milpas turn off, go west on Milpas towards the ocean. The Santa Barbara Inn is located at the corner of Milpas and Cabrillo Blvd. You can't miss this beautiful hotel.

Registration and coffee time begins at 9 a.m., business session from 9:30, luncheon at noon, chapter clinic from 2 p.m., general assembly at 4. Registration fee: $5. Please pre-register with your chapter president before Nov. 5. This is important as all presidents will be contacted that evening to determine the number in attending the Santa Barbara luncheon. An early response will be greatly appreciated.

PSW YOUTH

Will chapter members also take note of the youth meeting at Santa Barbara? Fulfilling a special request of youth that they meet separately, Mrs. Caesar Uyesaka has graciously opened her home and rumpus room for the entire use of youth delegates. Hospitality is the theme for there will be lunch: youth style hamburger, etc. Due to this invitation, James Ito of Hollywood Jr. JACL and Richard Kawasaki, Hi-Co, are busily planning a most interesting youth program. Adults are asked to refer interested youth to their chapter presidents. All youth delegates must register at the Santa Barbara Inn (50 cents), prior to departure to the Uyesaka residence nearby.

DETAILS TO FOLLOW

The details of luncheon program and afternoon clinic sessions will be released to the Nisei press and to chapter presidents. Please work closely with your chapter presidents for information.

We shall be looking forward to seeing delegates from San Luis Obispo, Santa Maria, Ventura County as well as from Arizona, Imperial Valley and Coachella. Don't forget the date: Nov. 8, Sunday at the Santa Barbara Inn.

Chicago JACL sets stage for 20th annual inaugural

CHICAGO — The Chicago JACL 20th anniversary inaugural dinner-dance will be held at the Banquet Room of McCormick Place, instead of the Chicago Room as previously announced on Saturday, Nov. 28, 6 p.m.

Sidney R. Yates, former UN Ambassador and a candidate for the seat in the U.S. House which he formerly occupied, will be speaker for the evening.

Dr. Thomas Yatabe of Chicago, first national JACL president to be elected constitutionally, and his wife will be special guests. Dr. James Takao of Cincinnati, Midwest DC chairman, will install the 1965 Chicago board members.

Dinner-dance is $7.50 per person. Dance tickets are $3.50 per person. Martha Hikawa (784-3605) is handling table reservations.

East L.A. bank chartered

LOS ANGELES — A federal charter was issued to the Pan American National Bank of East Los Angeles this past week by the Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, D.C. Tentative site of the bank will be near E. 1st and Rowan.

Frank Kurihara and Yosh Inadomi are among the members of the board of directors. Francisco Bravo, M.D., is chairman.

Dayton JACL float with teahouse wins Columbus Day prize

DAYTON — Participating once again in the annual Columbus Day parade sponsored by the Mayor's Committee, Dayton JACL's beautiful Japanese teahouse, 8 by 12 feet, won first prize in the float division.

Parade theme was "Americans All", and was meant to depict the manner in which different ethnic and religious groups and institutions are represented in the land of freedom and liberty.

Four lovely young ladies, attired in western dress and kimono, added their beauty and talent to the float by depicting the blending of Western and Eastern cultures. The four young ladies were Joyce Yukawa, Marcia Toyama, Yuriko Hance and Ryoko Green.

The float committee in charge of construction was composed of Richard Hance, Dean Knutson, Fred Fisk and Ken Sugawara. The teahouse itself was skillfully designed by Hance. Frank Sato completed the sign.

The Dayton Chapter placed second in the float division last year.

"Winning of first prize this year was quite an honor to all those connected with the project. It was a lot of work yet a lot of fun and certainly worth the effort put into it," chapter president Ken Sugawara commented.

Japan Culture night program attractive

PHILADELPHIA — A well-attended gathering of 60 local JACL members and guests enjoyed the Japanese Culture Night program presented on Oct. 9 at the Nationalities Service Center.

Kathy and Polly Yamamoto and Kimi Horikawa performed in a dance game called "Okasano Okata o Tatakimasho". Noboru Tsutsumi provided a rare treat in playing the Yokobue (Japanese flute), an instrument seldom heard in this area.

Mrs. Sakaeko Kamei demonstrated the tea ceremony after Herb Horikawa explained its background briefly. Members from the audience were invited as "guests", getting a first-hand experience.

Mrs. Hatsumi Harada, who spends countless hours teaching others the Japanese dance but seldom performing herself, charmed with two classic numbers in the Fujima style.

Harlow Lewis, who toured the less-visited attractions of Japan, showed his slides to conclude the evening program. George Oye was emcee and program chairman.

Banking Industry award

SACRAMENTO — Bill S. Taketa, operations officer for the Bank of Elk Grove Branch, has recently won the bank's V.M. Caselli Award for obtaining the highest score for standard banking subject under American Institute of Banking. Taketa is a member of 1000 Club, Florin Chapter and of Florin Japanese Methodist Church.

RICHARD YAMADA NAMED 1965 PRESIDENT OF CHICAGO JR. JACL

CHICAGO — The Chicago Jr. JACL is anticipating another "banner year" under the leadership of Richard Yamada, who was elected 1965 president on Oct. 1.

The Jr. JACLers participated in the International Folk Fair at Navy Pier recently, selling Japanese food. Yamada was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Masako Inouye, adviser.

For the Thanksgiving weekend workshop, to be attended by Jr. JACLers from the Midwest District, event chairman Bob Yamada said "Perspectives" has been selected as the theme. Workshop will stress structure and purpose of Jr. JACL.

Omaha JACLers continue their sukiyaki project

OMAHA — The Omaha JACL, which has made its sukiyaki dinner project well known throughout Omaha, continues to serve small and large groups. For October, two groups were served—one with 11 guests and another with 63.

To serve the 63, the Mariner's Club at the Church of the Cross, the chapter volunteer staff numbered 15 members and three who entertained with Japanese dances. They were:

Gladys Hirabayashi, Kiyoko Watanabe, Joshi Zaiman, Yoshiye Codera, Koko Kueire, Rumi Okada, Toshiko Vendet, Kimi Nakodori, Mary Smith, Mary Arikawa, Mary Mizuki, Lily Sat Okura, En and Bob Nakadai, dinner, Jackie Kaya, Robin Hirabayashi, Sue Simmons, dances.
