FOOTNOTES

It is gratifying to see that our 3rd V.P., Henry Kanegae, in the course of other business, has made it a point to be a JACL "ambassador." He recently flew to the Northwest and met with PNW JACLers. One of the important bits that he picked up was District Governor Henry Kato's concern that the District get help on its program efforts from staff. This seconds Ike Iwasaki's discussion with me in December in Portland.

Mas Satow plans a meeting with PNW the week of the National Bowling Tourney, and I hope that some concrete plans can be made. A beginning would be to get a good idea of just what kind of staff assistance is desired?

Had lunch the other day with "Mat" Matsuda, Major Phil Porter, chairman, U. S. Olympic Judo Committee, and Ben Campbell, former U. S. heavyweight Judo king. The contact could lead to a mutually productive program tie between JACL and Judo; certainly, a valid piece of the lations picture.

Shimasaki Lauds Pioneering Issei at PSWDC Luncheon

IMPERIAL — The slogan of the Japanese American Citizens League - "For Better Americans in a Greater America" - will show the cynical world the triumph of American democracy, Tom T. Shimasaki, national JACL st vice-president, said here. Some 60 JACLers and friends attended the PSWDC first quarterly session hosted by Imperial Valley JACL Feb. 10-11, which ended with a business session at the Airporter Inn. Shimasaki, the luncheon speaker, exhorted the group to remember the values of their pioneering parents. "They came to a country which did not grant them citizenship and they worked hard," he said.

"They didn't look for a handout. They exhibited the great values of ambition, responsibility, hard work and the respect for human dignity. And they instilled in us a great love for America."

Nisei Volunteers

And on the occasion of the hundreds of Nisei who volunteered from behind the barbed wire to serve their country on the fields of battle," Shimasaki continued. "The philosophy of our organization, 'For Better Americans in a Greater America', will show the cynical world the triumph of American democracy." He also commended those who were willing to stand up and be counted as friends of the Japanese Americans when they were forced to move from their homes during the early days of World War II.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Westmoreland, guests of honor, who were recipients of the PSWDC Certificate of Appreciation for service to Japanese Americans during the Evacuation.

WASHINGTON NEWSLETTER: Roger Nikaido

The Nisei Image

While the nation as a whole is experiencing an unprecedented time of prosperity, the Vietnam war, the Korean crisis, racial unrest in the cities, inflation and balance of payments problems, more taxes, and an apparent loss of Bronze Star for his perform- received $450 from Rustic tentiary near Seattle, prior to confidence in the national leadership have created an uneasy ance in Vietnam as a special mood of discontent throughout the land.

The Vietnam war is the centerpiece of discontent and Tan Son Hnut Air Base. He is Corp., Anaheim, paid leguneasiness; and admittedly, the uncertainties surrounding Vietnam and the ever present threat of an abruptly widened war have generated discontented people to direct their strong Calif . . . Two Eastbay Nisei, opinions and actions to the policymakers in Washington.

Almost all the urban specialists studying racial unrest in the cities agree that all signs point to a grim summer ahead of riots in the nation's cities. They note the upward trend in city riots: five serious riots in 1965; 20 in 1966; and nearly 80 last year. They also note that several contributing developments have emerged this year: cuts and restrictions in Federal programs for the unemployed; a hardening of whiteblack antipathies and a growing police emphasis on repression and weaponry.

Americans have sensed the growing threat to their cities and homes, and have made known their concern to the men and women on Capitol Hill.

Dr. Martin Luther King has said his "Poor People's" march on Washington this April will seek to gain public support for the enactment of legislation seeking deep-seated social and economic reform. However, there is a growing Freeman): number of urban specialists who are saying that Martin Luther King's march on Washington may signal the start U.S. rescue vessel was all set to of rioting, spreading from city to city.

The country's balance of payments problem has recently a close look at Willie been included in the Administration's "top priority" list of him abroad & he just might let "remedial" legislation. Among its legislative proposals, Pres- go with a hand grenade. Since the Administration's early indications of such plans to tax certain travelers going abroad, complaints from airline companies, travel bureaus, summer European vacationers, foreign government officials abroad, and the Jet-Set have filled the halls of Congress.

At this point, you might be asking, "Well, what does all joined the Colt's firearm divithis have to do with Japanese Americans and JACL?" And if you're concerned about these main controversies about fightnational issues that directly or indirectly affect your life, ing in Vietnam. your concern should be accompanied by some opinions, mild or strong, depending on how you feel about your life.

However, it is apparent that very few, if any, Japanese Americans are concerned enough to let their Senators and Congressmen know about it. After a year and half of visiting and talking to Senators, Congressmen and their staff, and Administration officials, it is no longer surprising to hear that of all the hundreds of daily letters written by "concerned" Americans to their Senators and Congressmen, very few, if any, are acknowledged as being written by Japanese American constituents. Another "no surprise" is to hear that men on Capitol Hill still retain the image of Japanese Nationals when encountering Japanese Americans.

On this same subject of the relationship between Japan's national image and the image of the Japanese group in America, the Pacific Citizen and the Japanese vernaculars recently reported on a special project of Associate Professor Gene N. Levine, chief of the Japanese American Research Project.

At this point, in view of the results of the polls in Cali- in principle. Also under confornia where the greatest concentration of Japanese Amer- sideration was a recommendaicans reside, there appears to be three choices from which we can select.

1-We can keep constantly well informed of the peoples and policies of Japan so that we may have knowledge of our current image in America.

2-We can re-appraise and accelerate our public relations program, through the JACL organization, to emphasize that we are a proud ethnic group striving to be "better Americans in a greater America".

3-We can permanently adopt the attitude of "I don't give a damm about our image".

However, if we have learned anything from the past, as Japanese American, we cannot afford to select either the first or last choice, and risk the chance of being a part of another "great mistake" in American history.

From the Frying Pan

Little Tokyo, U.S.A. THIS IS THE PLACE—Down by the Los Angeles City Hall, where the writhing tangle of freeways comes together and somehow untangles without total chaos, there's an official state highway sign that points out the exit to Little Tokyo. This, supposedly, is the heart of the largest concentration of Japanese Americans on the mainland, a place of exotic restaurants and quaint bazaars where, sometimes, one can see a dainty maiden tripping by in kimono.

Once upon a time, it used to be said that if a fellow stood long enough on the corner of East First and San Pedro, he would see any Nisei he was looking for. This was the crossroads of Niseidom, and for all I know that's where the weekly that Wimp Hiroto edits got its name.

Of a recent Saturday afternoon, however, Little Tokyo was just another shabby section of the sprawling Los Angeles megalopolis, badly in need of a paint job, window-washing and just plain housekeeping. We couldn't wait around for darkness to conceal the grime and neon to gild the glamor; by daylight it was only an enlarged version of the staid, down-at-the-heels section of the city that makes up Denver's disreputablelooking Japanese town.

Kajima building which rises where the venerable Miyako Hotel once stood. There has been talk, we under- ter chairman; George Ishimaru, Tom Hashimoto; stand, of an Urban Renewal project for the Little Tokyo area and to an outsider, it would seem wise for the residents to listen.

For a variety of good reasons, the Japanese busines communities in the United States have never been architecturally or esthetically attractive even though MICRONESIA AT DETROIT INAUGURAL Nisei architects now are designing beautiful buildings elsewhere. And while Nisei families have fled the core city to build and furnish attractive homes in the suburbs, gracing them with delightful gardens, little more than false fronts have been added to Little Tokyo storefronts.

Perhaps someone will send me an angry letter about all this, defending the honor and beauty of Little Tokyo, but I write this not so much in criticism, but in disappointment and sorrow.

LITTLE JOHN — One of the bright spots of the hurried visit to Little Tokyo was an opportunity to see John Yamamoto who, I learned, has been setting the type for this column. PEACE OF MUNICH

There is no quarrel with the general thesis expressed in William Hohri's letter-to-the-editor about "Vietnam and JA-CL"-that JACL chapters make an effort to become informed about Vietnam through speakers, discussion or study groups. And don't be afraid of individual research either. But we did warn against any negotiated peace like the Peace of Munich of 1938.

As casualties mount, organizations to solidify popular sentiment increase. The new Citizens Committee for Peace with Vietnam and the JACL Freedom in Vietnam includes among its members former Presidents Truman and Eisenhower, former Senator Douglas and General Bradley. It believes that voices of dissent over Vietnam has received attention far out of proportion to their actual numbers. It doesn't want to pull out of Vietnam or to start dropping nuclear bombs. Negotiations Now!, headed by Clark Kerr, former president of the Univ. of California, is change minds, at least, not imanother, of which Hohri is a member.

There is also the Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace, which advocates cessation of bombing in North Vietnam, de-escalation, negotiation with all parties, eventual withdrawal of American troops and support of the Geneva Agreements. BEM stresses the war's adverse effect on the economy in enlisting public support for disengagement in Vietnam . . . And there are those sources which Hohri men-

Only time a peace isn't negotiated is when a conquering concern and that, too, is good. United States senators. They Editor: power dictates the terms of peace.

Read that sentence from our Feb. 2 column over again: "The longer that conflict lasts, the louder and greater the clamor for negotiated peace will be-though a negotiated peace like a Munch is just buying a brief respite for an even bloodier holocaust."

So what kind of a peace can be negotiated?

The bitter fruits of the Peace of Munich ripened within a half year; Czechoslovakia was overrun by Hitler's blitzkreig after Germany was ceded the Sudetenland at the insistence of Chamberlain and Daladier. (The Sudetenland contained all of the Czech defenses against Germany). With-In two years, France fell. The second World War followed in another 18 months when the United States entered.

In this day and age, the time table of events may not afford the 40 months that stood between the Peace of Munich and Pearl Harbor

There are several version for negotiating a settlement or stopping of the slaughter in Vietnam. Does America negotiate or be dictated to?

In discussing Vietnam today, many read North Korea's Shaplen recently reported in seizure of the Pueblo as a diversionary move in support of the New Yorker magazine, al-Hanoi and at this stage of the war in Southeast Asia, one most all of the countries can easily realize a bit of pressure applied at other points neighboring Vietnam, some of have. We come to the heart of the question: if negotiations in Vietnam (or over the Pueblo incident, for that matter) fail, do we: (1) use nuclear force? (2) start a second front by invading enemy territory? (3) retaliate on limited targets? (4) do nothing?

This is what we mean by a "negotiated peace like a Munich." The real test is the kind of peace which would follow-and predicting the future is not our game. Only the historians of the future will be able to assess how correct the actions were.

The peace we speak of is not a mere cessation of warfare but a recognition of social justice, understanding and love in the relations between nations, within the nation; in the relations between citizens and their rulers, and of the freedom of peoples in all its expressions-civic, moral, cultural and religious. Peace should not be a mask of partisan interests as some of the so-called "peace movements" seem

"The United States has bought time for some 200 million people to develop without their being ceaselessly confronted with combined external-internal Communist threats of growing proportions."

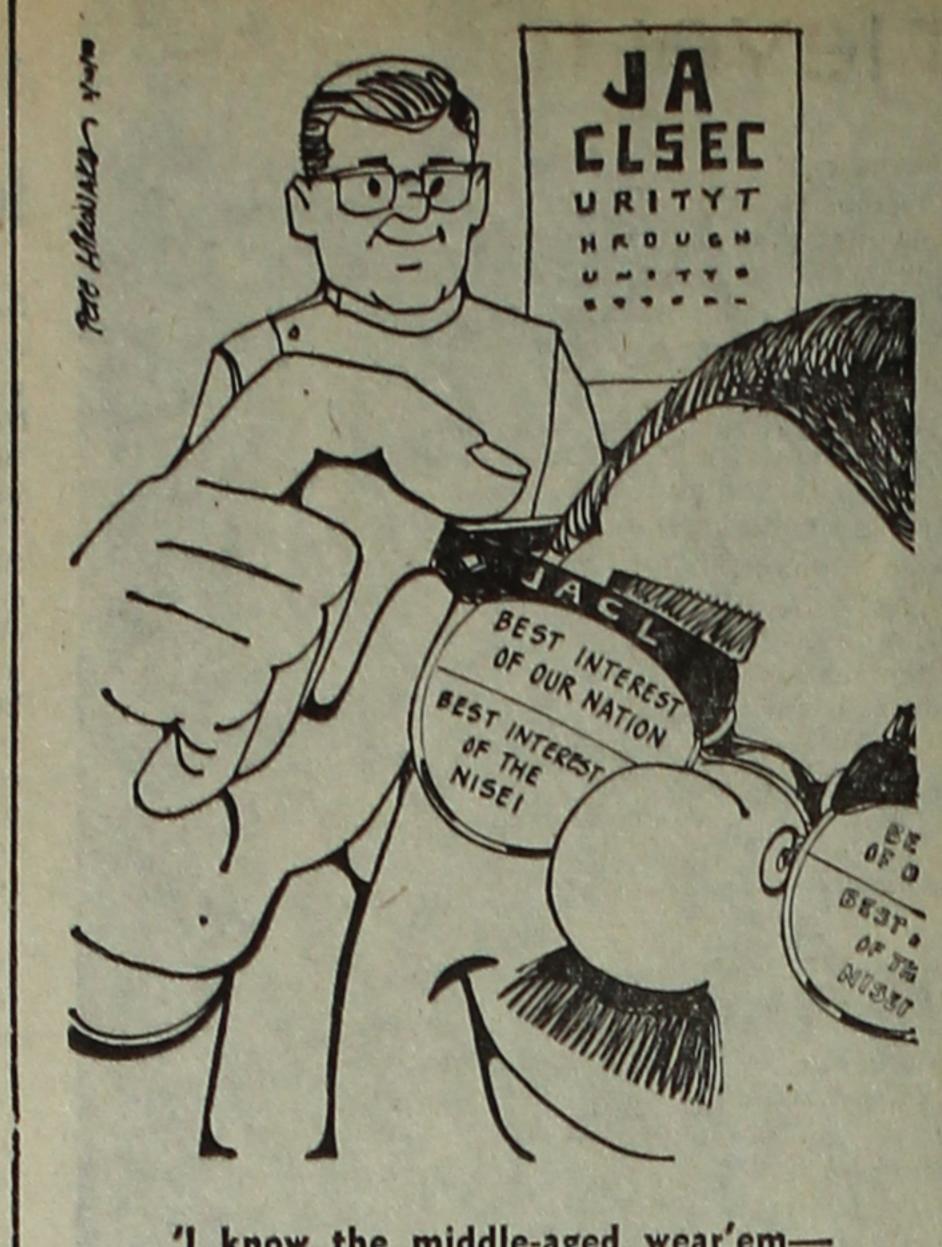

What is at stake in Vietnam, therefore (according to these scholars) is the technique of the "national liberation movement", which may be the pattern of future Communist aggressive policy for the rest of underdeveloped Asia . . . IN JUNIOR JACL:

The Advisor

AUTHORITY

The advisor is not the leader, but neither is he just a disinterested observer. The advisor should be aware that there can come a time when direct intervention is called for, when initiative must come from him.

The advisor must know and respect the fact that in special situations and extreme emergencies, all powers and authority rest with him.

But successful operation of the group requires that the advisor gain the respect of the members. It usually takes a few meetings to win this respet; all groups have some degree of resistance to adults, and youth groups tend to have more.

Youth often try to test an adult to see how much they can get away with-a sort of "test of strength". It does not reflect personal animosity. If youth is given a voice in the making of the rules he can and will accept them. Once rules are made for a given event such as closing time for dance or curfew for a week-end conference it is important to adhere to the agreement. Otherwise, the advisor will be involved in a continual "testing game".

There are times when the advisor must say "no" or say "I can't agree" and explain why. Youth can accept this as long as one gives honest answers. Youth can deal with honesty and consistency and so can the advisor. It is difficult to deal with deviousness.

Often the youth will accept the advisor's position and back away from their insistent demands so that a compromise agreement or rule to which both advisor and the youth can live with will result.

It is important for the advisor to be firm especially at first—but he must also be considerate and fair. Sincerity and fairness will get across to youth much better than sterness and dominance.

Youth often as as though they want lots of freedom, yet deep down they want and need firmness and guidance.

If all this sounds a bit conflicting, it is, in a way. The advisor, over a period of time must work out the relationship and balance between firmness and permissiveness, between his power and their freedom, between his authority and their rights, between short term results and long term goals.

QUALIFICATIONS

It is not necessary that an advisor come from the ranks of the older JACLers. He should be a step or two older than the Jr. JACL age group, but he does not have to be an experienced group worker. He can learn to be an advisor, even as he advises. He can get advice from those more experienced, and can profit from exchanging notes with other advisors.

The approach to youth groups outlined here requires that the advisor have a great deal of trust and faith in youth—and a lot of patience. Trust that youth has the potential to do many things, faith that with proper guidance youth can realize its potential and patience to wait for such potential to come to fruition.

WHO

Who will be the advisors? Where will they come from?

You have just read what they are, what they do. Does the preceding description of the advisor describe you? Maybe it does. Think of it this way:

You are the advisor. You are that volunteer person in the Jr. JACL program. You are important—really important and badly needed. This is no build-up of your ego. The position of advisor would not have been created if you weren't needed. This handbook would not have been written if you were not needed. No one would have asked you to make time in your busy schedule for this work if you weren't needed. But it is no cinch. You will be giving of your time, energy and feelings. You will be helping youth develop a concern and consideration for others, which is the heart of democratic citizenship. You will pay a significant role in the lives of the Jr. JACL.

You will also be learning, maturing and gaining valuable experience, but more important, you will be rendering one of the most valuable services anyone can render in today's world because you will be assisting in the development and maturation of youth into responsible participating citizens of our society.

This is you reward; this is your opportnuity; this is your challenge.

What we need in our lives is some sparkle, some divine touch that makes the commonplace seem wonderful. We don't all have it, and no one knows what it is. There is an old Chinese pop tune that says "how many times in life can we be as happy as this, so drink, drink up." The JACL has a stodgy image, where many people imagine it has hanging on to the old ways, where a great deal of time is expended to make it more "efficient." It might be that it is easier to be efficient than it is to spark the imagination, to lead people on to brighter things.

Well, that's enough platitudes for this day. It's time to get my shoes shined at the topless shoe shine parlor. That's doing a common thing, uncommonly well.

Big Bear

Any worthwhile program should be evaluated to show Its impact to date, indicate progress and determine needs. Evaluation is the process by which we carefully appraise a situation and ascertain the resulting values. While evaluation of programs and activities is important, orientation is an ingredient which cannot be denied for a smooth functioning operation.

Orientation can take many forms and with an organization such as JACL and Jr. JACL, the creation of awareness of purpose, goals and objectives of the group can best be handled by a workshop. Orientation materials have long been sought and the best to date have been materials written and prepared by the people who live within the area and who can give specific information.

SNOW AND KNOW-Thus on the weekend of Feb. 10-11 at Big Bear, the PSWDYC met under the pretense of a snow trip entwined with a leadership workshop in the elements of: snow, boys, girls, adults, snow, food, discussion, talk, snow, chit-chat, fun, and weariness.

It all began with a bus ride for the 110 participants, followed by lunch (the kind you make yourself or have someone make for you) a struggle in the snow, two hours of discussion—one before dinner and one after—the first session for individual officers: presidents, v.p., treasurers, etc., and the second on chapter problems. Finally in the wee hours came something that was not so much a formal business meeting as it was declared by PSWDYC Co-Chairmen Merilynne Hamano and David Takashima as announcements.

The remark that was the most appropriate after the long | day: "If we have another discussion after all these hours of discussion, we'll all turn into a discussion." That made certain an end to the serious side. The morning after found special guests from Northern California-Russ Obana, Nat'l. Jr. JACL chairman; Ben Matsuura, NC-WNDYC chairman; and Shirley Matsumura of San Jose-get in the last word about the Nat'l Convention and give their views of PSW.

THE EVALUATION - While areas could be improved (like shorter sessions) on the positive side were comments on the evaluation sheets. "What have you gained by the leadership workshop?" "An understanding of JACL . . . gaining of new friends . . . an interest in JACL . . . feeling that JACL is running in a realistic course in the program they have established . . . excellent leaders, advisors, and membership . . . P.S. an enjoyable weekend."

What did you like most about the workshop? "Peopletheir thoughts . . . their enthusiasm . . . their sincerity." With this combination of fun and work, all signs must point to the most successful DYC function to date for the PSW. Their evaluation recognized areas of improvement and areas of accomplishment. Their orientation to officers and members must be considered a positive one.

We hope that each DYC and chapter will evaluate themselves on a period basis, orientate themselves as to group purpose and objectives so thus once clarified all could work efficiently and effectively towards their own recognized goals.

Does a Member of the Professions Need a Sponsor or an Employment Contract?

Question: A friend of mine who is a member of the professions, filed a petition for himself for a third preference under the immigration law and his petition was approved. When he went to the American Consul to apply for a visa he was asked whether he had a sponsor or employment contract. We were puzzled by this, as we were under the impression that persons in the professions do not need a sponsor and can petition for them-

Answer: You are correct. Persons in the third preference category, chiefly persons in the pro-fessions and the arts, may now petition for themselves. Even though such a petition is approved, however, they must still comwith all other requirements the immigration law. One such requirement is that they have to establish that they are not likely to become a public charge. It is probably in this connection that your friend was asked about a sponsor or employment contract. He will have to satisfy the American Consul that when he arrives in the United States he will be able to sup-port himself, and the two things the Consul mentioned-a sponsor and an employment contract — would be helpful. He will not need either one, of course, if he substantial independent
