JOINT INSTALLATION AT FORT ORD:

Nakagawa Calls for Strong Support for JACL Legacy Fund

By Fred Oshima

SALINAS, Calif.—National JACL President Cressey Nakagawa forcefully reminded some 200 members and guests of Monterey Peninsula and Salinas Valley chapters that the Japanese American Citizens League, in spite of its remarkable success in redress legislation, should not rest on its achievements.

The JACL leader said it is time to move forward and meet the inevitable challenge of the future. And that monumental question and goal is to build a more financially solid foundation—secure a stable base for organization's ongoing service to the Nikkei community.

A highly visible attorney from the "Streets of San Francisco," Nakagawa, in his sharp, articulate, jurisprudential fashion, gave the keynote address for the annual installation dinner of the two Northern California Coast chapters, Jan. 18, at Fort Ord's Ferguson Hall Officers' Club.

Give to the Legacy Fund

To achieve this lofty objective, the chief executive officer of the nation's oldest and largest Nikkei civil rights group of nearly 30,000 strong, eloquently urged the members and friends to actively support the new Legacy Fund campaign, the single most ambitious financial drive in the organization's long illustrious history.

Nakagawa said that JACL today is potentially in a much better operating position because it can provide a strong, positive leadership not only within the Japanese American body, but also in cooperation with the entire Asian American population as well.

The current Legacy Fund, a drive to raise $10,000,000, will serve as a vehicle to provide much needed monetary resource to enhance the many national programs for the future, such as strengthening JACL's key strategic Washington connection as a constant watch dog for issues that may affect Japanese Americans.

Matsuyama and Higashi

Joy Morimoto, newly hired JACL regional director for Northern California-Western Nevada-Pacific District Council, installed the officers and board members.

For Monterey Peninsula they are:

President, Kazuko Matsuyama; first vice president, Lyle Quock; second vice president, Keith Kuwatani; and treasurer, Aiko Matsuyama. Board members: Jack Nishida, Eric Pickering, Mark Okumura, Sam Kawashima, Tak Yokota, Nick Nakasako, George Uyeda, Lisa Mineta Minami, Frank Tanaka, Ken Esaki, Otis Kadani, Mickey Ichijui, Jack Harris, Gordon Miyamoto, Goro Yamamoto, George Tanaka, Helen Nakasako and Stewart Suzuki.

Salinas Valley officers are:

President, Shiro Higashi; first vice president, Ben Miyaoka; second vice president, Liz Swinscoe; treasurer, Bonnie Marquardt; recording secretary, Mark Amiya; Japanese secretary, Tsugu Kuramura; corresponding secretary, Doug Iwamoto; historian, Fred Oshima; and visitation, Gary Tanimura. Board members are: Sam Uemura, Akira Aoyama, James Tashiro, Helen Kitaji and Craig Yama.

Larry Hirahara of Salinas Valley was master of ceremonies while Rev. Nick Iyoya of the Lincoln Avenue Presbyterian Church of Salinas and Rev. Heihachiro Takarabe of El Estero Presbyterian Church of Monterey offered the invocation and benediction, respectively.

Civil Liberties of Arab Americans in U.S. May Be Threatened by FBI, Mineta Warns

WASHINGTON—Norman Y. Mineta, (D-Calif.) warned that there is a potential for civil liberties discrimination in the United States during the Middle East conflict.

Mineta issued his warning at a Capitol news conference Jan. 23 called by Rep. Don Edwards (D-Calif.) on "American Civil Liberties in Time of War: FBI and Arab Americans."

A week prior to the Jan. 16 outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East, Mineta and Edwards spoke to their colleagues in the House of Representatives about the potential for discrimination against Americans of Arab ancestry in the event of an armed conflict.

The Japanese American congressman who was interned as a child by the U.S. Government during WWII has been concerned by the Federal Bureau of Investigation's recent pattern of interviews targeting Americans of Arab ancestry.

Mineta's Statement

Here is Mineta's statement regarding civil liberties in the United States and the conflict in the Middle East:

"The armed conflict now raging in the Middle East has many aims defined by the President and the United Nations. One of those aims is the restoration of basic human rights of the Kuwaiti people, rights which have been stripped away by Saddam Hussein.

"There is no question that human rights have little value to Saddam Hussein, and his brutal treatment of prisoners of war is fresh and foul evidence of his sadism. Americans and the world have been infuriated. But unlike Saddam Hussein, our nation values the Geneva Convention and basic human decency. And because we do, we must never fail to uphold the principles of civil liberties here in the United States.

"Many Americans today fear a personal, random, and wholly unjustified backlash from the war on the Arabian peninsula.

Many Americans Worried

"Americans of Arab ancestry are worried that their civil rights may be caught up in the maelstrom of war hysteria.

"American Jews are worried that the Iraqi attempts to draw Israel into the war may make them targets of anti-Semitic hate groups that would manufacture a second backlash.

"The FBI, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and the Justice Department each have vital roles to play to protect the rights of every American.

"Americans have a right to travel freely in the United States without the fear of attack. Americans have a right to assemble in public without fear of being killed by insane madmen. Americans have a right to expect that their government for only one reason: my heritage. By accident of birth, I was an American of Japanese ancestry.

War Hysteria and Racism

"The fact was that when the Japanese Empire attacked Pearl Harbor, they attacked every American—including Americans of Japanese ancestry. But in time of war, facts are too often waived in favor of hysteria and racism. That was a fact of the Second World War.

"It is a lesson of history that I believe our nation has learned. But is a lesson that must be remembered and practiced to have true meaning.

"Today, I am concerned that mistaken assumptions about national security have been made and may be implemented without properly protecting the civil rights of individuals. I say this after being briefed by the FBI on their program of interviews specifically targeting Americans of Arab ancestry.

"Loyal Arab Americans are being asked about views. They are being asked for names of 'disloyal' Americans. Unfortunately, this spectre of a new McCarthyism is too obvious to be ignored.

"The United States is a diverse nation composed of a great tapestry of peoples and cultures. It is this tapestry that gives our nation its strength. If the FBI or any other government agency chooses to tear indiscriminately at any thread in this tapestry, every American must be concerned.

"On the whole, I believe the FBI and other agencies are doing a fine job of fighting terrorism and protecting civil rights. But there is a fine line between investigation and inquisition which must never be crossed.

"The United States Constitution must not become a casualty of our conflict with Saddam Hussein."

WWII Attitude Cited

As was anticipated, the FBI campaign has become controversial. Officials of Arab American, Japanese American, Jewish and civil liberties groups joined with six members of Congress to call on the FBI to discontinue questioning Arab Americans about terrorism solely on the basis of their ethnic backgrounds. The group described such interviews as a violation of civil rights, and said it reflects

SELANOCO JACL'S SILVER ANNIVERSARY:

Jerry Enomoto Recalled to Keynote 25th Inaugural

By Harry K. Honda

BUENA PARK, Calif.—In a unique return engagement, Jerry Enomoto, JACL Legislative Education Committee chair, responded to Selanoco chapter's invitation to speak again at its 25th annual installation dinner, which was held Jan. 19 at Buena Park Hotel.

Then the national JACL president, Enomoto was keynote speaker at the chapter's first installation dinner in 1966 at a Whittier country club. Referring to a copy of that speech he found at home, he unfurled what was the JACL canvas of 25 years ago (1965-66).

JACL, he reminded the 140 people, including several 25-year Selanoco members, was then in the forefront of a national campaign to repeal Title II (i.e., the emergency detention law of the 1950 Internal Security Act), the state of Washington alien land law, anti-miscegenation laws, and to defeat California

Proposition 14 (the anti-fair housing measure, which was later declared unconstitutional).

JACL Programs of the 1960s

The JACL was concluding its JARP (Japanese American Research Project) campaign that led to publishing of several books. The JACL had reached a place where both the young Sansei and the older Nisei were "coming together" as JACL had just hired Warren Furutani (who is now seeking re-election to his seat on the Los Angeles Board of Education) to open up communication with the youth, the disillusioned and other Asians.

The JACL was delving into its past and pondered, "Why JACL?" Enomoto reminded that JACL's future role was to serve the Japanese American community as an organization with a strong and proven track record in civil rights and human rights.

The JACL was also rehearsing the tragedy on internment during its repeal Title II campaign and JACL impetus for redress began at this time "though no one was expecting success nor the political miracle which came (in 1988)," the LEC chair commented.

Consolidation and Coalition

In looking ahead, Enomoto urged JACL to consolidate its gains in civil rights, expand and strengthen the coalition with other Asian and minority groups in view of the problems with anti-Asian violence, seeing that redress payments are made as scheduled for the next two years and promoting JACL's legacy fund to insure the welfare of Japanese Americans and all Americans through a strong national organization.

The longtime Sacramento resident also put in a good word for his congressman, Rep. Robert Matsui, a candidate for the full-term U.S. Senate seat in 1992.

Ken Inouye, CPA, who served two years as chapter president in 1983-84, was sworn into the same office again, succeeding Ruth Mizobe who completed two terms. Jimmie Tokeshi, PSW regional director, administered the oath of office.

In his brief acceptance speech, Inouye announced the chapter will conduct a 1991 series of community lectures on big issues facing Japanese Americans, such as Japan-bashing, college admission standards, and the so-called glass ceiling in jobs.

Survey on Internment Experience

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn.—D. Anthony Guglielmo will survey Japanese Americans on their internment experiences as part of a research project he is conducting at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn.

Guglielmo mailed the survey Jan. 5 to all the chapter presidents of the Japanese American Citizens League. The goal of the project, Guglielmo says, is to determine the political attitudes of Japanese Americans and how the internment experience affected these attitudes.

Since many of the chapter presidents are too young to have experienced the camps directly, the survey will also attempt to discover how the internment experience was communicated to them by the victims of the relocation process.

Paul Igasaki, then JACL's Washington representative, assisted in the development of the questions. Survey results will be made available to the JACL and the Pacific Citizen. For information: call Guglielmo (203) 684-2721 office or (203) 684-4878 res.

San Fernando Valley Japanese School Plagued by Vandals; Racism Not Seen

LOS ANGELES—The San Fernando Valley Japanese Language Institute is being plagued by recurring vandalism, including graffiti on walls, broken windows, theft and destruction of property.

The facility serves some 100 students and teachers on Saturdays as well as preschoolers during the week.

According to The New York Times news service, police and area parents believe the vandalism at the school and in the neighborhood is not racially motivated. The school is bordered on one side by a housing project where many young gang members reportedly reside, police say.

JACL Aware of Problem

Jimmy Tokeshi, JACL Pacific Southwest regional director, said he was aware of the problem but at this point could not yet determine if racism was a factor.

Sgt. Gene Fretheim of the Los Angeles Police Department said gang graffiti and vandalism are common occurrences in the neighborhood.

In the meantime, parents are offering a $500 reward for information about who is causing the damage. They are also planning to take shifts and guard the school themselves or possibly hire a security guard.

"The parents are concerned and we don't know what to do," said Paul Jonokuchi, president of the school's PTA. "I know it's getting worse. It's cost us two or three thousand dollars just to replace the windows and then they break them again."

Another parent, Frances Suruki, said, "We clean it up and they spray paint it again. It makes us mad."

United Way Keeps Pace with Needs of L.A. Asian Community

LOS ANGELES — United Way, Inc. kept pace with demographic changes in the Los Angeles Asian community, according to an in-house research report issued in December.

The report, "Ethnic Diversity in United Way: Serving our Global City," identified four trends affecting its relationship with the local Asian Pacific communities:

- 244,000 Asian Pacific persons, 7% of the total identified clients, were served by United Way member agencies in 1989—a 40% increase since 1986.

- $2,918,147—7% of the total $42 million of funds were used for services to Asians in 1990.

Edelman Announces Grant for Asian-Pacific Elderly

LOS ANGELES — The County Board of Supervisors approved a $60,000 award of Community Development Block Grant funds to the Little Tokyo Service Center, Inc., for operation of the Asian Pacific Multi-Ethnic Project for the Asian Pacific Elderly, Supervisor Ed Edelman announced.

The Little Tokyo Service Center's contract provides technical assistance, organization and administrative services, and will run through Oct. 31.

- 10% of the Board of Directors in 1989 were Asian—an increase in representation from 8% in 1988.

- 12% of United Way employees were Asian—an increase from 9% in 1988.

54 Nonwhite - 46 White Ratio

In 1970, 68% of the Los Angeles County population was white. By 1989, Los Angeles had become 54% non-white. During this period, the Hispanic community tripled in size from 9% to 33% while the African American population grew from 11% to 12%.

Listed in the report were the following 10 member agencies serving a primarily Asian clientele:

Chinatown Service Center, Center for Pacific-Asian Family, Japanese Community Pioneer Center, Korean Youth Center, Salvation Army-Congress Hall, Seamen's Church Institute, Search to Involve Filipino Americans, United Cambodian Community, Western Region Asian Pacific Project and the WMCA-West San Gabriel Valley.

MISLS GRADUATES:

Caucasians Completing Studies Were Commissioned, but Not Nisei

LOS ANGELES — The "intelligence" that Nisei had faced rank discrimination upon graduation from the Military Intelligence Service Language School during WWII was revealed in the MIS Club newsletter for Jan./Feb. 1991.

Min Hara, relating his WWII experiences in the newsletter, noted Caucasians completing similar classes were commissioned as second lieutenants "while we got T/5 rating upon graduation."

The faculty at Camp Savage was excellent, the prewar Terminal Island Nisei who volunteered from Poston, Ariz., in November 1942, noted, "but the rank discrimination we faced there was terrible." (Eventually, many received recognition with battlefield commissions.)

Writing from New York, his greetings related some of the MIS staff still claim that there were no such discrimination.

Item from the Archives

"Nearly 40 years after WWII, I found that there was a standing order to Col. Rasmussen from the War Department ordering him to make sure that no AJA (Americans of Japanese ancestry) will become an officer upon graduation. There is also a reply message to the War Dept. from Rasmussen assuring them that he will make sure no AJAs will become one.

"Anyone who doubts my statement is free to go look through the files in the Archives in Washington, D.C.," he challenged.

Hara was in the Dec. 1942 Term class, Section 10 with 21 classmates—all of whom survived except for George Nakamura (KIA Luzon) and Sam Takahara (KIA Korea).

Robert Honda, James Izumi, Hisashi Komori, Tom Matsumura, Sully Matsunaga, Roy Nakada and Masami Tahira came from the 100th Infantry training at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Hiro Fuchiwaki, Tak Hirabayashi, Joe Ikuta, Joe Iwatsaki, Nobuo Kishie, Calvin Morimitsu, Genji Norimoto, William Toriumi and Kenichi Uyeno came from various Army units from all over the U.S.

Ace Fukai, George Nakamura, Sam Takahara, Tom Taketa and Hara had volunteered from various concentration camps.

The group's theme emphasizes Asian American achievements in all areas.

"The Asian American community is new to the political scene, but part of America's fastest growing minority population," said Irene Cualoping, co-chair and press spokeswoman for this year's celebration.

"Our community is growing in many areas, including that of political maturity," added Rudy Urian, chair of the AAC voters registration drive committee. "And our desire to participate in the American political process, as witnessed in recent elections, must be heard."

Illinois has the fourth largest Asian American population in the country. Promoting fair representation and diversity in government have long been goals of Chicago's Asian American community, which numbers approximately 400,000.

"It is important that elected officials are made aware of, and sensitized to, the issues confronting our Asian communities," continued Urian. "This will only happen if eligible Asian Americans register to vote," he said.

The coalition believes that results of "Together, We Can: Voters Registration Drive '91" will not only produce more Asian voters, but will also heighten political awareness in the Asian community; be informative to the larger population; and help alleviate certain stereotypes of Asian Americans.

Among the communities represented by the coalition are: Chinese, host for the 8th Annual Lunar New Year Celebration to be held Feb. 23, at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare; and Asian Indian, Filipino, Indonesian, Japanese, Korean, Pakistani, Thai and Vietnamese.

"Full participation of Asian Americans in the current and future local, state and national elections is a key goal," added Cualoping. "This worthwhile project for our community will show that 'Together, We Can' make a difference," she concluded.

SALT LAKE JUDGE RAYMOND UNO:

Calling It Quits After 14 Years on the Bench

■ Clipping from Utah Area JACLers
The story covers Judge Raymond Uno's illustrious career. However, we must preface the story with his JACL connections: he was president of his Salt Lake JACL (1964-66); then Intermountain District youth commissioner (1966-68), parliamentarian at the National JACL Convention in 1968, National JACL president (1970-72), national JACL legal counsel (1972-74), and JACLer of the Biennium (1974).

By Chris Jorgenson
Salt Lake Tribune

Ray Uno is the only Utah judge to ever be thrown into prison without a trial, without hope of an appeal and without having any idea when he would be released.

In 1942, he and his family were rounded up with thousands of other Japanese Americans and locked into internment camps for the duration of World War II.

Most were patriotic Americans who lost their homes, their friends, their jobs, and for Judge Uno, his father—a World War I veteran—who died in camp.

It was a dark and uncertain childhood, admits Judge Uno. But it was the impetus for a long, rich career as an attorney and a judge who would earn a controversial reputation as a relentless champion of the underprivileged.

14 Years on the Bench

After 14 years on the bench, the 60-year-old father of five is calling it quits and on the eve of his retirement is looking back on his life as a judge and a minority in Utah with a little pain and a lot of exaltation.

Judge Uno was born in a Yellow Cab in 1930, and as legend has it, was named after the cab driver. He was raised in the West 25th Street area of Ogden, which at the time was a tough mix of railroad workers, transients and ethnic groups.

His family later moved to El Monte, Calif., where he attended segregated schools and his father, Clarence, worked as secretary of the Japanese Association and on the draft board, Uno recalled, until the news came that Pearl Harbor had been bombed by the Japanese.

Morning of December 7, 1941

"I remember it well, I was outside, the weather was pretty, there wasn't a cloud in the sky and I saw a B-17 bomber fly overhead," he recalled. "And then I heard the president announce what had happened over the school's intercom. War was such a foreign thing to me then."

Eventually, Uno's family was loaded onto heavily-guarded trains and transported from Pomona Assembly Center to Heart Mountain, Wyo., where a makeshift concentration camp had been quickly constructed to intern the prisoners.

The prison was dirty and barren and the whole Uno family shared a small room for more than three years. Fences topped with barbed wire circled the camp and guards with loaded rifles watched the prisoners from tall towers.

"They told us the guards were there to protect us from the people on the outside. But the towers all faced inside the camp and the guns were always pointed at us," he said.

Father Died in Camp

He recalls the camp and his father's death with a twinge of bitterness.

"I thought the internment was unfair and it was motivated by racial prejudice, wartime hysteria and the failure of government officials to make right decisions," he said. "There was a lot of pressure put on Congress to remove the Japanese because they had such an expert interest in farming and the competition with whites."

After being released, the Uno family moved back to Ogden where Judge Uno became state wrestling champ in 1948. Finally, broke and jobless, he joined the Army at 17 and went to Korea.

"I wanted to get educated so I could get off the bottom rung. At the time there were no jobs and anti-Japanese-American sentiment was still around," he said. "But to this day I thank God for the GI Bill which was how I paid for my education."

Following the Korean war he earned a science degree from Weber Junior College in 1954 and then moved to Salt Lake

City where he eventually earned his law degree at the University of Utah.

Tough Finding a Job in 1954

But getting the degrees didn't prove to be as difficult at finding a job and integrating to Salt Lake City as a minority.

"I grew up here a non-white, a non-Mormon and a non-Republican. It wasn't easy. I didn't feel welcome in a lot of places," he said, remembering his move to Salt Lake City.

"I know for a fact there was a lot of discrimination being practiced in this community both socially, economically, religiously and politically when I first moved from Ogden."

In fact, when he moved his family to Salt Lake City in the early 1960s, his realtor refused to sell him a home until he got permission from all the surrounding neighbors.

Needed O.K. from Neighbors

"I had to ask the neighbor on the right and the neighbor on the left and if any of them said no, I could not have moved in," he said.

"I know there were jobs I was turned down for, which I know I was qualified and passed on because I was not white and Mormon." For a time he even thought of leaving.

"But you learn to live with it if you spend any time at all in this community," he said.

While many things have changed in Salt Lake City since the judge moved here, prejudice is one thing that has remained constant, he said.

"I know for a fact it still exists," he said. "A lot of it is economic, competition for jobs, competition for places to live and education. But it's still around."

Mother 97-years-old

Retirement won't be a slowdown, but a shift of passions, the judge said, from the law to the community and family. For more than 30 years, Judge Uno has taken care of his mother, who is now 97 years old.

"I've got a lot of hidden agendas for my retirement," he joked. "But seriously, one of the primary reasons I want to retire is my mother. I thought for the last few years of her life I'd like to do the things with her I wasn't able to do all during my years as a judge."

And if there's any time remaining he plans to work in some weekends skiing, some tennis lessons and a long-overdue meeting with some old Army buddies.

EDITORIAL OF THE PACIFIC CITIZEN:

The 'War' at Home

Regardless of what one thinks of the war in the Persian Gulf area, there is at least one universally supportable reason for gratitude. With the exception of a few minor incidents, citizens have refused to let emotions overcome rationality in their attitude toward Arab Americans.

The media have been forthright in condemning bigotry and urging understanding. And repeatedly the possibility of violence against Arab Americans has been likened to the shameful treatment of Japanese Americans under wartime conditions a half century ago.

One important objective of the Japanese Americans' persistent Redress campaign was to make their fellow citizens aware of the violence that can be done to human rights in a time of stress. Happily, the efforts have enjoyed encouraging success so far.

The early victories of United Nations forces and the limited number of casualties have helped to keep home front hate subdued. Unfortunately, the situation may change if ground action leads to heavy bloodshed. While there is reason to hope that sanity will continue, we are not yet certain that the domestic war on hate has been won.

General Colin Powell

Gen. Colin Powell, the unflappable chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, is the officer directing the United Nations war effort against the forces of Iraq. General Powell happens to be an African American, but no one has made a point of it. His competence to lead a multi-national war against the aggression of Saddam Hussein is unquestioned.

Not infrequently in American civilian life the ability of blacks to command is made an issue. A black quarterbacking or coaching a National Football League team is still unusual enough to draw comment. Blacks in the topmost corporate echelons are still scarce.

Now the lives of hundreds of thousands of American servicemen have been entrusted to a black general whose performance inspires confidence. Powell has been likened to a black Eisenhower. Some have suggested that Powell might be President Bush's vice presidential nominee in the next election as a stepping stone to running for the presidency when Bush has completed his two terms.

While such conjecture is premature, the fact that such an idea is being aired is progress. Powell is being judged by his competence as an organizer, his performance as a professional and his character as a leader, and not by the color of his skin.

LOS ANGELES—Summing up the progress of the WRA relocation work an official of that agency said that 16,000 of the 36,866 who resided in the county before evacuation had returned. A total of about 11,000 are now living in the city of Los Angeles.

NEW YORK—Yeichi Nimura was named the choreographer for the new Broadway production, Lute Song, with Mary Martin in the lead role.

VISALIA, Calif.—The county supervisors were told that more than 150 pieces of property in Tulare County owned by Nisei are subject to investigation as to violations of the anti-alien land act here. The district attorney's office said 51 cases have been set and six recommended for prosecution and confiscation of the premises.

'Come See the Paradise'

I should have been suspicious when I read the gushy testimonials in the advertisement.

"One of the truly great motion pictures of our time. A film of staggering brilliance. No motion picture in recent memory is so overwhelmingly moving."—Jim Whaley, PBS Cinema Showcase.

"One of the year's best films. Enormously moving. It will shock you and anger you, but it will also touch you very deeply."—Jeffrey Lyons, Sneak Previews & CNBC.

"A masterful achievement, it's powerful and controversial, one of the best pictures in many years, and destined to become an American classic."—Susan Conger, American Movie Classics.

"One of the year's best pictures. Powerful yet intimate. 'Come See the Paradise' is a moving, enlightening and satisfying film. Don't miss it."—Jeff Craig, Sixty Second Preview.

They should blush.

Some day someone will write a story about the Japanese American experience and someone will transform it into a film worthy of the accolades above. But this isn't it, despite a valiant effort and the thoroughly professional performance of Tamlyn Tomita and assorted Japanese American friends.

"Come See the Paradise" is evidence that not even competent Japanese American actors in front of the camera can make up for an absence of fire and passion in the front office and behind-scenes cinematographic arts. It requires something of the heart and of the culture—perhaps possessed only by Japanese Americans—at every step of the film-making process to capture their tragedy and triumph within the limitations of the medium.

"Come See the Paradise"—the title's relevance is obscure—is the story of the Kawamura family in prewar Li'l Tokyo. The tawdry Li'l Tokyo scenes are authentic enough. Older Nisei may wax nostalgic. But it is never made clear why an Irish-born union organizer, with a foul-mouthed brother, should be cast as the hero who falls in love with Lily Kawamura played by the lissome Tamlyn.

War comes. Papa Kawamura is collared by the FBI and his family hauled off to a detention camp. Those familiar with the Evacuation story understand the tensions that built up behind barbed wire. But the film doesn't make clear why some of the inmates choose to cooperate with the authorities and others rebel, whether it is the pros or the antis who get beat up, and why one of Lily's brothers volunteers for U.S. military service while another decides to seek refuge in a Japan he's never seen.

These are the profound, gut-wrenching realities in the Japanese American story. This film touches on them only superficially. "Farewell to Manzanar," a film made some years ago based on the book of the same title by Jeanne Wakatsuki Houston and James D. Houston, is more deserving of the reviewers' praise.

At the 7:05 p.m. showing on opening night of "Come See the Paradise" at a Denver theater there were exactly 13 seats occupied when the lights dimmed. Two others came in before the feature started. That's a pity because the Japanese American story needs to be told. But perhaps those missing from the audience know more about this film than I did.

EAST WIND

BILL MARUTANI

'Are You Chinese? (Or What?)'

THE OTHER DAY the wife and I were having lunch at a Chinese restaurant when the waitress (an Asian) turned to me and asked, "Are you Chinese?" This has happened with some degree of frequency and for some inexplicable reason, there is a combination of factors each time: first, Vicki (the wife) will be with me; Vicki fixes me with a wry smile that I pick up from the corner of my eye; and almost never is the inquiry posed to her. Always me.

I'M NOT OFFENDED in the least by these Asian queries, and while I'm not sure what the thrust of the question is, I simply accept it as an opening banter from one Asian to another. A few years back, more often than not I would be asked if I were Korean—and, yes, again Vicki somehow is present. And yes, comes that almost-hidden smile. But of late, it's shifted from Korean to Chinese. Perhaps, it's part of aging. Very seldom "Japanese," by the way.

GETTING BACK TO the waitress in that Chinese restaurant of the other day:

after responding that I was of Japanese ancestry, I asked where she was from (she spoke with a heavy accent). She replied that she was from Vietnam and had been in the United States a number of years. In fact, my social response opened up such reaction that she stood at the table and went on at some length about her background. As my won-ton soup was getting cold.

And out of the corner of my eye, I spot Vicki's wry smile turning into a gleeful grin on account of my big mouth.

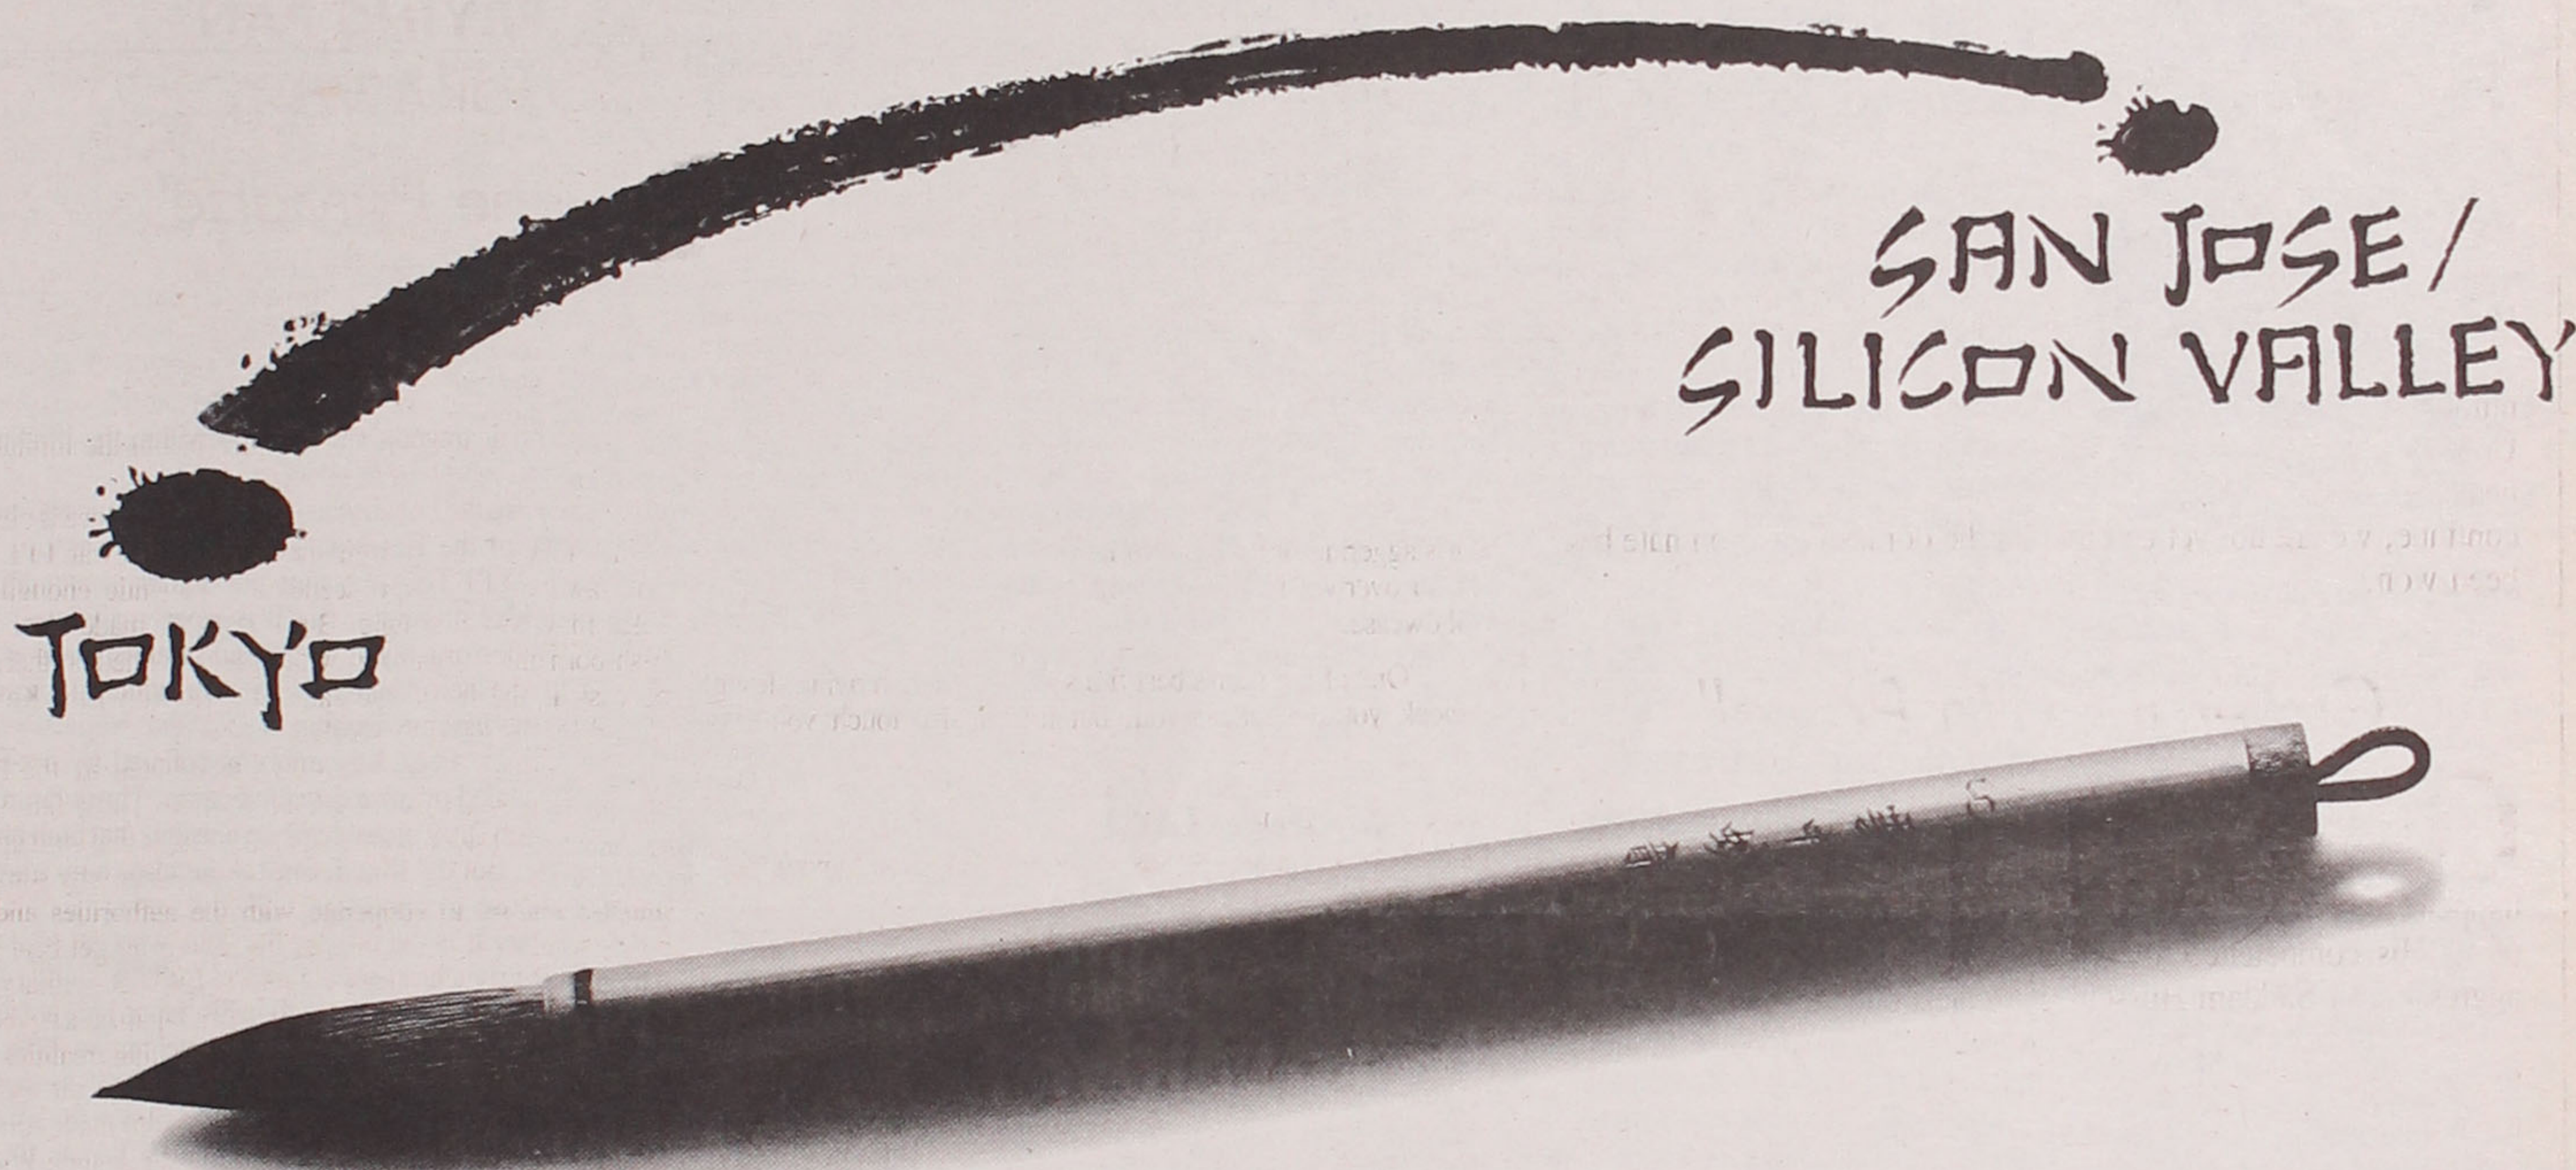

ACTUALLY, THERE WAS another incident when Vicki was not present. On my way home from the office, I stopped in at a new Korean grocery to pick up some persimmons (ama-gaki type). The middle-aged cashier spoke to me in Korean—or at least, I assumed it was Korean. I responded in the negative: I figured whatever it was that she said, it would be safer to respond "No" while shaking my head. She then switched to perfect nihongo and asked Anata wa nihon-umare desu ka? (Are you Japan born?) To which I responded in the best impeccable nihongo that I could muster,

Iie, watakushi was America-umare desu, 'Nisei' desu. This led to a discussion of a number of other aspects of the Nisei experience, much to the interest of the "audience" of three—for by now several other store employees had gathered to listen in.

THIS LAST EXPERIENCE gave me thought as to how little the Korean community—or at least the "community of three" that I was dealing with—knew about Japanese Americans. My "community," for example, was surprised to hear that Japanese Americans had served in WWII, and they were absolutely astounded (as well as a bit delighted) to learn that Nisei had served in the Pacific Theater against Japan, their ancestral land. And then there's the Korean Conflict in which many AJA's also served, a story that ought to be shared with Korean residents in the U.S.

Come to think of it, I don't know all that much about the contributions of other Asian Americans: Chinese, Filipino and Korean. An exchange program might well be organized.

MINETA

an attitude that prompted the internment of 120,000 Japanese Americans during World War II.

Rep. Mineta related his own WWII internment "when the U.S. government placed us in camps for our protection . . . but how come the rifles and lights in the watchtowers were turned on us?"

Rep. Edwards, who is chairman of a subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights, said the subcommittee might begin hearings on the subject if the FBI persists.

FBI Interviews

FBI Director William S. Sessions stated that interviews of Arab American business and community leaders "for the most part" have been completed, but added that the FBI would continue to investigate about 3,000 Iraqi nationals believed to be in the United States with expired visas.

"Terrorist acts cannot be prevented by law enforcement alone," Sessions said. "We must continue to seek the cooperation of any American who may become aware of information that might help prevent a violent act."

David Najjaab was one of those Americans whose cooperation was sought. The 29-year-old advertising photographer recalled how he eagerly met with an FBI agent at a Denny's restaurant in North Dallas after the agent called and said he was concerned about Najjaab's safety. A native Texan, Najjaab, is co-chairman of the Arab American Institute, a bipartisan organization that encourages Arab Americans to participate in American politics.

Texas-Born Najjaab Worried

The FBI agent told a worried Najjaab that, as he would recall, the agency was "concerned with hate crimes against our people." Then, Najjaab said, the agent began asking for names of the Arab American Institute members and whether he was familiar with any dissident student groups.

"What," Najjaab said he asked the agent, "does this have to do with why you called me?"

Najjaab said the agent told him he had a second reason for calling—"to get a handle on the (Arab American) community." Najjaab said the agent then asked matter-of-factly, "Do you know of anyone planning to blow up federal installations?"

Najjaab said he couldn't help but laugh.

"I said, 'I don't know anyone like that.'"

By the end of the meeting, he said, he was shaken and suspicious. He noted that he is the Democratic co-chairman of the Arab American Institute. His Republican counterpart, he said, had not been contacted by the FBI.

'Iraqi Agents in U.S.'

"There are definitely Iraqi agents in the United States and around the world," said one Iraqi-born businessman from Los Angeles who was jailed under Hussein's regime 10 years ago. "We kept trying to get the FBI to look for them for years. Now, at least, they are looking. I didn't mind talking to the FBI a bit."

Other Iraqi Americans who have lived in the United States for many years were less sanguine about what they considered unfair scrutiny.

"I was expecting harassments from rednecks or what [do] you call them—skinheads?" said Razak Salman, an Iraqi-born hotel owner from Rancho Palos Verdes who has been a U.S. citizen since 1978. "But not from the FBI."

After his call came from the FBI, Salman said, he was convinced Iraqi Americans were going to be interned like the Japanese Americans. He promptly paid off all his credit cards and gave his employees lessons in how to run his business.

Sen. Matsunaga Memorabilia to Be Shown by JANM

LOS ANGELES — Selected memorabilia of the late U.S. Sen. Spark Matsunaga has been donated to the Japanese American National Museum.

The items offered by his family will be brought from Washington, D.C. and Hawaii to Los Angeles by Matsunaga's widow, Mrs. Helene Matsunaga. His son, Keene Matsunaga, who resides in Southern California, will also participate in the reception.

These items will be on display at a reception honoring the late senator on Feb. 9, from 5 to 7 p.m., at the Pacific Ballroom, Los Angeles Hilton and Towers, 930 Wilshire Blvd.

"Senator Matsunaga was one of the early pioneers who supported the establishment of the Museum," said Manabi Hirasaki, trustee and chairperson of the event. "He was a man who spent a lifetime promoting peace and civil rights. At the reception, we will acknowledge his contributions, especially his untiring work in securing passage of the 1988 redress bill."

Among the special guests confirmed to attend the reception are Congressmen Robert T. Matsui and Norman Mineta.

Proceeds from donations from this reception will establish the Spark Matsunaga Collection and further the Museum's educational programs. Hirasaki said that contributors of $100 and above will be listed in the program booklet. A contribution of $500 will provide the donor with a message space in the booklet.

NIKKEI RETIREMENT COMMUNITY:

'Orchards at Penryn' Survey Underway in Northern California

LOOMIS, Calif. — A Sacramento area survey focusing on Nisei interested in the proposed Japanese American Heritage Center's "retirement community" has begun, according to James Makimoto, chairman of the Orchards at Penryn board of directors.

For the past 10 years, Makimoto and a group of Placer County area-Japanese Americans have been doing the spadework for the retirement community, overcoming many obstacles to secure county clearances.

The survey is sponsored by one of Northern California's major providers of retirement housing and long-term care services, Eskaton Health Corporation, which is interested in financing and building the project.

Three-Part Project

The Orchards at Penryn, as designed by the architectural firm of Takata and Sugioka, will consist of three parts:

- (1) An apartment complex for retirees who independent and active but want a central dining, housekeeping, maintenance, social and recreational activities, transportation and security at all times in the event of an emergency.
- (2) An assisted living complex for people who need a little more help with daily living routines, but do not require medical care.
- (3) A cultural center, museum space

Jude Narita in Lead Role for East West's Opening to Ibsen Play, 'Hedda Gabler'

LOS ANGELES—East West Players presents a new production of Henrik Ibsen's play, "Hedda Gabler," beginning Wednesday, Feb. 6. The setting of this classic is transformed from Norway in the 1890s to Japan in the 1920s.

When "Hedda Gabler" was published and produced in 1890, it was denounced and vilified as "obscene," and received the worst press notices of any of Ibsen's plays. One critic went so far as to declare that it was a book that should not be found in the home of "any decent family."

The play is now, of course, regarded as one of Ibsen's greatest works. In "Hedda Gabler," Ibsen demonstrates not only his dramatic craftsmanship, but also his penetration and probing of the darker side of the human soul.

Jude Narita in Lead Role

The role of Hedda Gabler in the East West Players production is played by Jude Narita. Hedda's husband, George Tesman, is played by Michael Paul Chan. Tesman's aunt, and major influence in his life, is Pat Li. Alice Carter plays the young and compassionate Thea Elvsted, and Khin-Kyaw Maung plays the poetic and crushed Eiler Loevborg.

Shelly Desai is cast in the role of the opportunistic and caddish Judge Brack, and Josei Dapar plays the country servant, Bertha.

"Hedda Gabler" is directed by Dorothy Lyman, a television actress who has appeared in "All My Children" and "Mama's Family." She was artistic director for three years at A Director's Theatre in Los Angeles. She directed and co-produced the off-Broadway and national touring productions of "A Coupla Chicks Sitting Around Talking."

"Hedda Gabler," the third production in the East West Players Silver Anniversary Season, opens Wednesday, Feb. 6, and will run Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m., with Sunday matinees, at 2 p.m. through March 17.

Tickets are $12 for Thursday evenings and Sunday matinees. Friday and Saturday evening performances are $15. Student, senior citizen and group discounts are available. For information and ticket reservations, contact the Box Office at (213) 660-0366.

Classic Pianist Nojima in Concert at Occidental

LOS ANGELES—One of Japan's premiere classical pianists, Minoru Nojima, will perform works by Haydn, Ravel and Brahms Friday, Feb. 15, at 8 p.m. in Occidental College's Thorne Hall.

Nojima first received recognition in America by winning the silver medal in the 1969 Van Cliburn Competition. He made his Carnegie Hall debut in 1970, and has also appeared at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Alice Tully Hall.

This concert replaces an earlier scheduled event which was cancelled because of illness. General admission is $14, with a $2 discount for seniors and students.

For further information, call (213) 259-2737.

'And The Soul Shall Dance' to Be Staged

PALOS VERDES, Calif. — Pan Asian Repertory Theatre's production, "And the Soul Shall Dance," will be presented at the Norris Theatre on Friday and Saturday, March 8 and 9, at 8 p.m.

The play was written by Wakako Yamauchi, an award-winning leader of the Asian American theater movement. It is a story of two Japanese American families farming in the California desert during the Depression. One family is still in the thrall to an old culture, the other is successfully adjusting to the new. Like the pioneer families before them, the children of these families hold the promise of the future in this retelling of America's ongoing immigration experience.

Yamauchi is a native of Southern California. Her work has been seen at East/West Players, the Mark Taper Forum, Asian American Theatre Company and Yale Rep as well as Pan Asian Repertory, an East Coast professional Asian American theater company. The company tours nationally and internationally, has won widespread critical and popular acclaim.

The Norris Theatre is located on Crossfield Drive and Indian Peak Road in Palos Verdes. For tickets and information call (213) 544-0403.

A WWII Story of Enemy Alien Issei

SAN FRANCISCO—For those who saw the movie "Come See the Paradise" and wondered about the arrest and internment of the father (Sab Shimono, Tamlyn Tomita's father) may be interested in reading Rev. Y. Fukuda's "My Six Years of Internment: An Issei's Struggle for Justice." It is the story of the over 5,000 Issei who were arrested by the FBI as "dangerous enemy aliens" at the outbreak of World War II. Separated from their families, they were interned in Department of Justice camps such as Bismarck, North Dakota; Missoula, Montana; Crystal City, Texas; Santa Fe and Lordsburg, New Mexico.

This information is available in the book originally written in Japanese by Rev. Yoshiaki Fukuda of the Konkko Church of San Francisco in 1957 and translated into English in 1990 by the Konkko Churches of North America. This is one of the few books written in English about the experiences of these Issei during this turbulent time.

This book can be purchased for $15 from the Konkko Church of San Francisco, 1909 Bush St. San Francisco, CA 94115, (415) 931-0453 ($2.25 additional for postage and handling).
