overcritical. However, I think this reading comes from the concerns (almost exclusively young white men) self identification w/ how solo and unwillingly to accept their own misogynistic failings.
The story of solo is one of growth, change, and self improvement but like w/ many masculinist, stoic,

- Please keep an eye out for Doordash and Grubhub orders! A receipt will print when an order is received.
- Please ask for an email address for guests who have not registered their MHA memberships. Remind them that awards are not available to them unless their memberships are registered!
- Please be sure to scan PC passes as Discounts now instead of ringing them in as passes. The PlayCenter Pass button should only be used for verbal passes.
- Remember to extend display on your box exterior monitors.
- Please be sure to put all vouchers in your register drawer instead of on top or beneath the drawer.

Chandler Fashion Huddle Notes

- Employees must use the employee popcorn bags for popcorn. We may not use trays for this.
- Please keep an eye on trash levels next to the prep table. The trash must not overflow onto the table.
- Please be sure to wash rags throughout the day and have plenty ready for the janitors by 10pm each night.
- Please make sure we are not giving guests bad popcorn with broken pieces and a bunch of kernels.
- Also empty the dryer lint trap before each use to prevent the dryer from catching on fire.
- Please be sure to put all vouchers in your register drawer instead of on top or beneath the drawer.

Chandler Fashion Huddle Notes

- Verify that the switch to the automatic door is turned on.
- You can perform partial admittance for a ticket QR code by unselecting the seats that belong to guests coming later. The guests in a party will just need to share the QR code with one another via text message or email.
- In addition to reading the theatre number, also be sure to check dates. Your scanner will notify you when a ticket that is for a show longer than 30 minutes away in either direction.

Chandler Fashion Huddle Notes

- Please be sure to load the paper towel dispensers with the roll ending on the bottom. Installing them over will cause the dispenser to not work.
- Please check under all screen skirts for trash or remaining guests while cleaning every theater.
- Please be sure to check restrooms during down time. Your Lobby ushers are not solely responsible for these checks.
- Trash should always be taken to the compactor in pairs.
- Please notify a manager of any toilets or sinks that are out of order so that a help desk ticket can be submitted. Do not cover the fixture without a manager's approval.

I made a video about STAR WARS for fun (a factually innaccuaret video by the way I got the order of some of the scenes wrong) and i got the attention of, and this isn't an exaggeration (sic), about a thousand fascists. all desperate, frothing to tell me that I was wrong on one little dtail or two. Don't misunderstand, its not like i'm a woman they weren't commenting on my body (at this point) they were "debating me in the marketplace of ideas" - I do read as a man after all, they may disagree but they, lol, respect my apinion. (as a parenthetical aside you really can almost hear my accent in the spelling mistakes I Make) I made another video, applying the same sort of freshman critical theory to an aspect of STAR WARS, making tired well-trodden points, and again about a thoushand fascists showed up to correct the record. I decided to determine who these people were and where they came from. This proved difficult as they almost univerally sent their brave reports from behind pseudononymous (sic) handles and disguised profiles photographs of frogs and anime women, some wearing SS captains uniforms, swasitkas, and other isonography. Those people I reported, but som others I chose to speak to. The frog Wh-children had real attitudes, and strong opinions on the moral ^{imperitive} necessity of physical exercise as an expression of the purity of soul, etc., and one particularly, a child named Unruly Forest (hason now, Forest) went on a long discussion with me, at first quite pleasantly trading book recommendations, but then posting things that trended toward the lewd, but carefully never crossed a boundary of plausible deniability. (e.g. he encouraged me to make a video of myself laying on the ground with my mouth open, a suggestive image in itself, but when I pressed him on it he denied that it would be the butt of a joke when he added his commentary - which was why he asked me to make the video so he could stitch it with an additional element.) In writing this I became interested if Forest had posted a second video, his first being a clip of his friend mocking the way I speak in a message from Snapchat (a popular ephemeral communication program) and in fact he does, a video of a heavy-set man ~~doing~~ lifting weights. Which I believe is a video concept I suggested to him in one of our communications. Interestingly his face is obscured by an emoji of a cowboy, which leads me to believe it is him, and the caption is indecipherable to me but the amount and style of the workout is printed onscreen (225lbs x 12 PR for reps). The room is ugly and gives an eastern bloc vibe, with several posters of futbol players on the walls, one whose name is partially obscured by the machinery (rack?) interestingly: the song that he's added is embedded in the video, not added later and the video is in 16x9, poorly formatted to the 9x16 format of TikTok. The song is " SALEEL SAWARIM * _NASHEED " which is an ISIS propaganda song!

The book that Forest recommended to me was called something like, the the bronze age mindset - in fact thats exactly what it was called .

I tried to get a copy but the only way to buy it was on amazon and from the publisher (amazon).

I usually just read books on my phone, and I try not to read buy things from amazon. I tried to find a used copy but that proved to be twice as expensive - I think the resellers understood that they were applying a protective layer between the consumer and supporting outright fascism, and that is a service worth around ten extra dollars.

The powers that compell this man along this path fascinate me. There is clearly shame, that was clear from the jump, but the - what? lack of support? that shame has? When you're lonely, you look for comrades. I found that in various anglo girls online talking about terry pratchett and doctor who, or trying desperately to keep Seth's friends from killing themselves over tumblr messaging.

But if you're someone else, someone more invested in a particular image of masculinity, you fall in with people who say that, oh it's that you're bad, like you thought, but it's a simple fix - and one you don't have to feel stupid for too. Is that the resistance? Oh, you're fat and stupid, well, I can fix one and by fixing one your morality will improve exponent? I think to create a larger scheme of single-handedly solving the alt-right pipeline

I'll need to first identify some of the problems.

1. Men - this is a joke entry but like

2. Capital

3. Sex

4. Desperation

5. Connexion

6. Lies reinforced by interactions with libs

7. the problem is just patriarchy isn't it

In my initial response to him I told a story about being a teenage atheist - this was to show a sort of solidarity of oppression, but I was then mocked by him because of course I wasn't demonstrating strength. I believed I was, after all I show my face and use my voice and expose myself to his shadow-borne criticisms. In many ways I'm both braver and stronger, I assure myself. Just as dumb, though. For the MEN's Rights Activists (MRA's) of my youth on tumblr it was easier to visualise what their winstate was, as it was very similar to my own: they figured having a girlfriend would solve all their problems - hilariously mirroring the "happily ever after" narrative of the women they despised. To them a girlfriend was not a woman, a GF is an objet, a prize to be won through trickery and cheat codes. This was another element of my radicalization away from masculinity - for whatever trick of fate my friends have always been girls and I could tell these guys sucked. That, and like Dr. Jones, I hated them not for whatever ideological reason but but that they came and ruined the Fedora Lounge, a forum I often lurked on of very supportive men who would post photos of each other and hype each others expensive hats up, ask fashion questions. There was even a small hobbyist haberdasher community I found really interesting. But that all changed when the bronzies attacked. (this is a reference to the american cartoon "Avatar: The Last Airbender") The bronzies used the word fedora but never really understood it, instead favoring cheap hats from target which were actually mis-labeled Trilbies, an australian ^{extraction} invention, of the fedora idea. The fedora was actually originally a womans hat, and is named after the main character of an opera set in russia but sung in italian, as most opera is. Where the lawyers and bougie men of the Fedora Lounge mostly complimented each other and wore their hats for themselves, the Bronies lusted after the image of superiority and "class" they projected onto these bourgeois. Never mind that the FL men "looked good" and "looked classy" b/c they were either making their own clothes, or thrifting them, spending hours on this expensive and esoteric hobby, this benjamianian "aura" was created by their labor, and self-confidence, and cash. a lot of cash. The bronzies wanted to simply purchase the aura, and for 14.95 not for any 300 pound sterling. This cowardice and dishonesty was present throughout all their actions, a man in a rick-and-morty t-shirt and a cardboard trilby is a compromise built on fear. I built a thrift-store suit and wore it, along with my own compromise, a series of wool hats from hunting and fishing stores, a strange sort of thing.

It's surprising, but you can often find wool fedoras, and for that matter cotton/paper fedoras, in hunting fishing stores. I believe they sell them to fishermen as a nod to the tradition of the Bing Crosby fisherman and to display or store prominent fishing lures. Creating fishing lures is one of the few acceptable male hobbies, and it is essentially jewelrymaking, but because it has the implied threat of violence (against fish) it is acceptable. All man hobbies (I won't use male here even though it feels more PC, as it is misleading and inaccurate in this case) are just Women hobbies - but with an implied or actual threat of violence, or explicit utility. I am thinking here of things like automotive repair or woodworking. A good substitute for violence is Adrenaline, or great speed. Some element of danger. Fishing becomes Quick Boat Adventure, the meditative or conversatory aspects replaced by fear of death or, the tightness below one's groin you feel on a roller-coaster. The emotions men feel comfortable expressing in these games becomes excitement at survival, proximity to death legitimizes emotional outbursts. If the only good emotion is emotion near death, then this creates in the man a desperate barrenness. Much of life is lived and communicated through the sharing of emotion, and this falsely imposed limitation on the self creates a distance between him and mankind. That distance creates an insularity in man-culture, and deepens that gap.

but because self-reflection, while spiritually frightening, is not proximate to death, it is not encouraged. The trick, then, would be to sell introspection as a scary, difficult pursuit that roided-out hockey players could dare each other to attempt. Without coming across as a youth pastor. I remember, as I often do, when I was talking to my uncle by marriage about my painted nails, and he felt the need to tell me about how a "beautiful naked woman" painted his nails at a burning man (not my aunt). They seemed quite ornate and proved difficult to remove, he told me, but in reality only because of his own embarrassment and ignorance, he told some boring story of having to ask the kid at the corner store how to remove acrylics. He was trying to relate to me, I think, but it sort-of came across as him telling me what I was doing was for girls. He is a disgusting man, and I believe the girl in his story was playing an elaborate trick on him, somehow. He emphasized repeatedly the physical attractiveness of the woman, in a way that communicated somehow, that #girlpower is good for everyone? because liberated women don't wear shirts. This is the sort of distasteful midway tact that I feel would be most useful in radicalizing the uber-bronies that ravage our streets and message boards. As K. Ren says, "I know what I have to do but I don't know if I have the strength to do it."

Turning now to TheBronze Age Pervert, who i will refer to as pervert and not his self styled acronym, becuase I despise him. I went to his twitter account and he appears to be an either american or french man doing a german or russian accent. The page is full of homo-erotism, and outright exhortations of the nazis alongside the standard anti-biden and pro republican rhetoric. the anti-biden stuff doesnt land, because hes such a wet sock, but the pro-nazi shifts both worrying and overt. Also, amazingly, pro-saddam hussein rhetoric, specifically I saw a celebration of S. Hussein's supposed collection of 80's fantasy art, but its the fact that the LIBS don't like him that unifies these disparate elements. It's hard to imagine a political ideology that unifies these people, but they've found ~~ence~~ it, a paranoid celebration of selfishness as strength, and a lot of talk of "essence" that reminds of Gen. Jack D. Ripper from starngelowe "precious bodily fluids". The things Ripper says as insane parody of red scare are being said, apparently full-throated by Pervert, even down to denying their essence to women and commies are destroying masculine culture. as I sit here and write these pages I think, I have a big degree I'm not using, I have the time, I even have a typewriter. I could get a job at the post office and create an unhinged screed that I self-publish pseudononymously. Get myslef a couple of U. Forest types of my own harrasing people online because I told them that i had the secrets of real masculinity, that I can put them to peace.
