Samson netcar not

On the Bus I started focusing on people's noses, at first noting the differences. But soon I couldn't imagine noses and they seemed such an. Part. unrec. I stared at my shoes, the ceiling, waiting to not be surrounded by noseless alien freaks wearing obviously fake prostheses, like my friend's head or something. My heart pounded and I could not breathe. I was surrounded by monsters in people masks.

You Build It

Floor 2

(January 25, 2016- May 15, 2016)

Create, collaborate, and innovate. Help the Burke build a "living exhibit" by telling us about the people, places, ideas and objects that shape your life. Displays will change and grow as visitors share their opinions and experiences.

Life and Times of Washington State

(ongoing)

Floor 2

This exhibit, spanning 545 million years, features Washington State's geological and biological history in addition to current biodiversity. It is separated into five sections, each exploring a different period in geological time. During your journey through the past, make sure to check out our display on evolution and our hands-on Discovery Lab.

Pacific Voices

(ongoing)

Immerse yourself in the lives of peoples from around the Pacific. Discover how communities retain their traditions through their languages, stories, teachers, and ceremonies. This exhibit features 17 different cultures from Washington State and the Pacific Rim. Below many displays you'll find drawers to open with even more objects to explore!

Rare Birds of China

Floor 2 (Burke Room)

(October 5th, 2015- June, 2016)

Rare Birds of China was commissioned in 1984 as a unique record of China's rare and endangered birds. Renowned artist J. Fenwick Lansdowne spent nearly ten years producing the prints, paying particular attention to details, color, form, and habitat.
